Today

Busy Chicago.
Chez James Simpson.
Walter Chrysler Visits Ford.
About Wang Lung's Sons.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, March 11.

EVERYBODY IN Chicago is busy, but all find time to ask—knowing that you come from New York.

"What news is there of the Lindbergh child?"

The "Century of Progress" Exposition in Chicago, which you must not miss, will open on time in June, 1933. Every city, big and little, should pay the expenses of its Mayor to the exposition and back, and make him promise to examine the wonderful architectural development of the lake front.

That lake front has an especially valuable lesson for proud New York, with its endless miles of hideous, grimy waterfront to which poor mothers and their children have no access.

IF IT IS your desire to hoard, keep out of Chicago's stores.

For instance, an energetic young woman on her way to a ranch in the West spent two hours in Chicago yesterday while waiting for her train.

She went to Mr. James Simpson's store—every merchant knows which one that is—"to buy two old-fashioned canton flannel nightgowns, with long sleeves and high neck for use on the windy ranch."

She bought them, but before she got to the nightgown place, on the fifth floor, she had bought three bracelets and one necklace.

She was about to buy a dress in addition to the nightgowns, an extremely pretty dress of pale satin, with dainty embroidered rosebuds in front and no sleeves. Fortunately it turned out to be a nightgown.

BLOCKING HER way to the elevator was the shoe department, with particularly fine "pumps" of black suede with low heels. Some of those were bought.

Then came the door, and the automobile revolving round and round the block because it could not park.

But before the door came the watch counter, in charge of Mr. Sunshine, who smiles in a fashion worthy of his name. He sold three watches to the lady who wanted only two canton flannel nightgowns.

ONE WAS a dainty wrist watch with little diamonds on it, one was a rugged wrist watch for a young man, the third was a big watch that you could put under your pillow, guaranteed to keep absolutely perfect time.

The moral is that much depends on salesmanship, and display of goods.

THE NEXT stop on this trip will be Detroit, where everybody is making, thinking, talking and planning automobiles. These news items come from there.

Mr. Abbott, of the Hudson company, informs you that you will be met with a car built by William J. McAneeny especially to accomodate a dictating machine to be used while motoring.

Mr. McAneeny, president of the Hudson company, who had seen this writer's homemade arrangement for an automobile phonograph, built a special body with a dictating machine that fits into the cushions of the back seat, and comes down like the arm that is lowered to divide the rear seat in some cars.

Progress never ceases.

THE DETROIT TIMES news department sends this on the telephone:

"Walter Chrysler, rambling along at 60 miles an hour from Detroit to Dearborn a little before 11 o'clock this morning taking with him two engineers, was on his way to show to Henry Ford his new Plymouth, to appear about the first of April."

Henry Ford, in Chrysler's opinion is to automobiles what Mohammed is to Mohammedanism. And Chrysler drives out with his engineers to Dearborn to show his new car to Ford and ask, "What do you think of it?" as a devout Arab might journey down to Mecca to look at the Kaaba stone from which Mohammed mounted to heaven, and get some inspiration there.

Mr. Chrysler had already told this writer, at Ziegfeld's "first night":

"When you see my new Plymouth you will see SOMETHING."

You see something when you see any first-class American car. The thing is to BUY it, OWN it, USE it, and feel prosperous.

WILL ROGERS went to China, and flying back read Pearl S. Buck's book on China, "The Good Earth." Says Rogers:

"Go get this book and read it. It will teach you all about China and you will thank me."

Many have read the book already, and will be glad to know that a sequel to it called "SONS" is published by Pearl S. Buck in the April COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, just published. This continued new story tells you what happens to the sons of Wang Lung, the hero of "The Good Earth" and how one of them, Wang, third of the sons, who left his father's court "a wild, angry lad," comes back a war lord in western uniform.

A remarkable woman, Pearl S. Buck, who has lived many years in China, and sees that country with an eye as accurate as that with which Kipling looked upon India in his early days.

MR. ALPHONSE CAPONE, with whom the writer talked for an hour yesterday morning, believes that he might be of use in helping to locate the Lindbergh child if he were allowed to leave

J. V. THOMPSON COLLAPSES

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 11.—J. V. Thompson, 78, former banker and coal baron, collapsed this afternoon in the Recorder's office in the Courthouse and is in a serious condition in Uniontown Hospital.

Thompson had gone to the office to transact business when he fell to the floor. He struggled to his feet, dropped again and was in a semi-conscious condition when aid reached him.

Thompson's assets were listed at $70,000,000 when the big coal bubble burst a number of years ago. Thompson's bank closed its doors and many of his associates failed.

Newsboy Made Torch By 3 Gamins Dies

DALLAS, Tex., March 11.—(AP.)—Three street gamins who made a blazing human torch of a 14-year-old newsboy because they objected to his presence at a dice game, were sought today by police, assisted by newsboys.

Before his death at a hospital, the victim, Howard Day Moore, said the boys seized him and tied his hands with strips of cloth. Then they poured kerosene on him, after which they pushed him against an electric heater and his clothing burst into flames.

Rosa Ponselle, Ill With 'Flu,' Better

CLEVELAND, March 11.—(AP.)—Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has apparently recovered from an attack of influenza that caused cancellation of her concert engagement here two weeks ago. Miss Ponselle has been undergoing treatment at the Cleveland Clinic during the two-week period, although the siege of "flue" itself was not of great duration, she said.

CULBERTSON WIDOW FREED

Widow Amused by Trial of Another Case as Jury Debates Murder Charge

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Laverna M. Culbertson today was acquitted of the murder of her husband, Albert L. Culbertson, shot to death during a party in their Mt. Lebanon home, November 15. The jury, out since 11 a. m., returned a verdict of "not guilty" shortly before 3 o'clock.

The prosecution had asked that she be convicted of first degree murder with a recommendation for life imprisonment.

As the jury foreman read the verdict, Mrs. Culbertson stood calmly before the crowd which packed the tiny courtroom. Not even a flicker of her eyes betrayed emotion as she heard the words which brought her freedom.

Mrs. Laverna M. Culbertson sat in Judge Samuel H. Gardner's courtroom this afternoon, awaiting the verdict of the jury which has heard her accused of killing her husband during a week-end of hilarious parties in their Mt. Lebanon home four months ago, and, apparently at ease, smiled at the recital of amusing incidents in a minor assault and battery case which followed hers before the court.

She made an effort to check the display of amusement which she shared with the rest of a crowded room as the details of how a 70-year-old storekeeper punched a younger man on the nose when he hammered too loudly on the closed door of the store.

FRIEND IN COURT

Mrs. Hazel Walker, of Mt. Vernon, O., a friend of Mrs. Culbertson, and, with her husband a weekend guest in the Mt. Lebanon home when the killing occurred, sat beside the defendant and smiled openly as the testimony progressed.

Mrs. Culbertson's case went to the jury at 11 a. m. today, after four and one-half days of a brilliant defense, directed by her chief of counsel, Oliver K. Eaton.

At mid-afternoon the jury was still out.

The seven men and five women listened to Judge Samuel H. Gardner's charge for more than an hour before retiring to deliberate the fate of the chic young woman, who claims that her husband was accidentally shot as she struggled with him for possession of a shotgun she sought to hide to prevent him from going on a hunting trip while intoxicated.

Swedish Prince Renounces Rights, Weds Commoner

LONDON, March 11.—(AP.)—Prince Lennart, grandson of King Gustav of Sweden, and Miss Karin Nissvandt, commoner daughter of a wealthy Stockholm businessman, were married at the Prince's Row Registry office at 11 a. m. today.

The prince, who renounced his rights to the succession to the throne, and his fiancee came to London a fortnight ago for their wedding. They came here because King Gustav refused his consent to the marriage and it could not be solemnized in Sweden.

The prince's mother, the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, came from New York a week ago, but did not attend the ceremony.

It appeared that there had been a difference of opinion between the Prince and his mother, who said:

"Marriage is too solemn an event to be undertaken in such undignified surroundings. He should have gone to a church—any church just so it was a church."

The bride's mother, a small smiling figure in black, crowded into the little registry office with the party.

A large crowd cheered as the Prince and his bride drove away to start their journey to Switzerland, where he will devote his time largely to cattle-raising.

Kline Judge Arrives; Delay in Trial Looms

Finletter Declines To Hold Hearings Until Tomorrow

BUTLER, March 11.—Judge Thomas D. Finletter, who reached Butler today from Philadelphia to preside at the trial of Pittsburgh's Mayor Kline and his deposed Supplies Director, Bertram L. Succop, announced this afternoon there would no court hearing on a possible postponement or any other phase of the trial until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mayor Kline and Succop are scheduled to go on trial Monday on charges of misdemeanor in office, but the feeling in Butler today was stronger than ever that a postponement loomed.

Judge Finletter announced the Saturday hearing following a conference in Pittsburgh today with counsel for both sides.

Mother Near Nursery When Girl Discovered Child Had Been Stolen

SON THOUGHT WITH LINDY AT FIRST

By ROBERT J. CAVAGNARO
(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was on the same floor as the nursery when the kidnaping of her baby was discovered a week ago last Tuesday, it was learned today, and the mother and nurse were not immediately alarmed, both thinking Col. Lindbergh must have taken the child downstairs.

All previous reports have indicated that Mrs. Lindbergh was downstairs with her husband and that Betty Gow, the nurse, found the crib empty and rushed down to the parents with the announcement of the kidnaping.

But it was authoritatively determined today that at 10 o'clock of that night Mrs. Lindbergh was in a bathroom on the second floor, where the nursery is situated, preparing to take a bath.

DISCOVERY OF CRIME

When Miss Gow, who had only been called to the Lindbergh estate that afternoon, despite previous announcements that she spent the week-end with the baby, found the crib empty, she went to the bath-

COUNCIL FAVORS RELIEF BONDS

Members of Council sitting as the Finance Committee this afternoon approved, by a six-to-one vote, two bond issues, relief measures that had been urged by the Emergency Association of Allegheny County.

One provides for sumbitting to the voters of Pittsburgh at the primary election, April 26, a $3,000,000 issue for direct relief—food, clothing and shelter.

The other calls for a $2,000,000 councilmanic bond issue for labor, materials and supplies.

The measures will come up for final passage in Council Monday.

Gangster King Seeks Chance To Join Hunt

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, March 11.—Very busy and very cold in Chicago. First, a talk with Mr. Alphonse Capone, in Cook County Jail. Marshal Harry W. Laubenheimer in his office in the Federal Building signs the permit for a visit "unaccompanied."

David Monnypenny, warden, admits you to the prison, far over on the West Side, in the Bohemian neighborhood. Mayor Cermak, who is a Bohemian, had the courthouse and jail located there, to "help real estate."

CAPONE PLAYING CARDS

John Dohmann, assistant warden, takes you up five flights in an elevator, of which he has the key, and you land in front of the heavy door of iron bars that admits you to "Section D 5." Capone's room is behind that door and before it sits a United States deputy marshal, night and day, three deputies on eight-hour shifts. No other prisoner is thus honored.

Dohmann turns a heavy double key in the lock, and there sits Alphonse Capone, playing cards at a table to pass the time. It's a big room, several windows and sunlight, several beds. The jail is crowded. Fifteen hundred are packed into a building planned

SPITALE GIVEN 'GOOD' LINDY TIP

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—Counsel for Salvatore Spitale, go-between named by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to deal with kidnapers of his baby, said today that Spitale has been receiving hundreds of tips daily, one of which "looks pretty good."

The lawyer, Abraham Kesselman, said the tips are being received by mail and otherwise. Kesselman added that Spitale will "leave for the West" on the tip that "looks pretty good" as soon as his trial on a prohibition conspiracy charge in Brooklyn Federal Court is completed.

Kesselman refused to amplify his statement. He would not discuss the nature of the one tip he singled out of the mass he said was being received, and would give no indication what part of the West he meant.

DETROIT, March 11.—(AP.)—The Detroit News, in a dispatch from Clare, Mich., today quotes Isaiah Leebove, identified by the newspaper as New York attorney for Salvatore Spitale and Irving Blitz, go-between in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case, as stating that, according to information received by him, the child is safe.

The paper quoted Leebove as saying the ransom would be much more than the $50,000 heretofore mentioned.

SAILOR, GIRL STILL LINKED BY POLICE

By FRANCIS A. JAMIESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 11.—(AP.)—As a spectacular offer of assistance in the search for Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was made by "Scarface Al" Capone, reports believed to be authentic were circulated today that the kidnapers had increased materially the ransom demands for return of the 20-month-old child.

It was reported the original sum sought, $50,000, was jumped in subsequent communications received by Col. Lindbergh from the child-stealers, who have been keeping their identity and hiding place a close secret.

While the famous flier was represented as willing to meet the new demands, it was learned in a reliable quarter the abductors had informed him they did not feel the time safe yet to conclude negotiations.

CAPONE MAKES OFFER

Capone made his offer to aid in Colonel Lindbergh's private hunt, from a cell in the Cook County (Chicago), jail. He agreed to post a $200,000 bond if the Federal government would release him temporarily.

State police here said they had not considered the offer and did not contemplate considering it. They added that it was a matter for the Federal government, not the state police.

It was impossible to learn the attitude of Col. Lindbergh himself toward the suggestion, for he remained on his hilltop estate, where he is directing his own negotiations, independent of the police investigation, but protected from questioning by troopers.

The state police let it be known they were pressing forward vigorously with their own line of activity; that they had not yet vindicated Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nursemaid, or her friend, Henry Johnson, and that an international investigation of the pair was being conducted.

SAILOR FORMALLY HELD

They said that it had been established that Johnson had entered the country illegally and that if responsibility for participation in the kidnaping were not fixed on him, he would be turned over to immigration authorities for deportation.

As this statement was being issued word came from Newark, N. J., where Johnson has been held since the first of the week, that he had been formally arrested on a charge of violating the immigration laws.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf issued a long statement in an effort to clear up the mystery that has surrounded Johnson. He said so far, Johnson's story of his activities up to the time of the abduction at Lindbergh home Tuesday night had "checked satisfactorily" and that police had not been able "to fix any definite responsibility in connection with the kidnaping on Johnson or Betty Gow."

Then he explained that because of the investigation of the two abroad, he did not want to be

COYNE TO OPEN HEADQUARTERS HERE FOR EASTERN LEADERS

W. H. COLEMAN SLATED TO BE CHAIRMAN

Holds Parley With Senator; Labowitz Likely to Get Post of Local Secretary

State Senator James J. Coyne next Monday will open headquarters in the William Penn Hotel for the state ticket indorsed by the Philadelphia War Board and Gen. Edward Martin, State Treasurer and chairman of the Republican State Committee.

In all probability Attorney William H. Coleman, Republican leader of McKeesport, will be chairman of the campaign committee. Visitors at the City-County Building late yesterday reported that Coyne and Coleman held a lengthy conference, and that Coleman seemed in a receptive mood to accept the job of being pilot.

LABOWITZ IN LINE

Gossip has it that the secretary of the campaign committee for Allegheny County will be Edward Labowitz of Etna, major domo to William H. Ziefel, who as secretary of the Republican County Committee, handled all the fights for the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and in the last county campaign sponsored William D. Mansfield, County Commissioner and Republican county chairman.

Martin and Coyne are trying to arrange a reception in the William Penn Hotel headquarters next week, at which all the candidates indorsed by the Philadelphia and state Republican organizations will be given an opportunity to meet the leaders and voters of Western Pennsylvania.

CANDIDATES TO ATTEND

Candidates scheduled to be present include Senator James J. Davis, Auditor General Charles A. Waters, running for State Treasurer; State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, for Auditor General; Supreme Court Judge W. B. Linn, seeking to succeed himself, and these aspirants to the Superior Court bench, W. F. Parker, R. S. Gawthrop and Arthur H. James.

Coyne and other local leaders are pledged to support Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, serving as Judge of Superior Court through appointment by Gov. Pinchot, for one of the three vacancies to be filled by the voters.

LEAGUE ADOPTS TRUCE PLAN

GENEVA, March 11.—(INS.)—With Japan and China both abstaining, the League of Nations assembly this evening adopted a resolution providing for a peaceful settlement of the Far Eastern conflict.

The vote was taken by a show of hands and with the exception of the two powers immediately concerned apparently was unanimous.

The resolution serves notice upon Japan that no territorial acquisition in China as a result of the recent fighting will be recognized as valid by the League of Nations, and reminds both parties to the dispute of their obligations under the League covenant.

PEIPING, March 11.—(INS.)—A Japanese invasion of North China within the next few weeks is believed to be imminent by neutral observers.

They point to the designation of Maj. Gen. Kotoro Namakura as commander of the Japanese forces in North China as evidence of this, as well as to frequent Japanese accusations that Chinese under Chang Hsio-Liang are plotting against the young Manchurian government.

Maj. Gen. Namakura is scheduled to arrive March 16.

Senate Sanctions 6-Hour Day Probe

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP.)—The Senate today agreed to the House resolution authorizing the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate the feasibility of a six-hour day for railway employes.

Judge Arrives for Kline Trial

Edgar H. Negley admitted today he would "be very much surprised" if a number of indictments were not returned by the grand jury which today is investigating attempts to influence members of the Kline jury panel. He added that the investigation had progressed "beyond earlier expectations."

Four men, two of them Pittsburghers, already are under arrest on embracery charges as a result of the investigation.

Judge Finletter said he would little of the case and preferred not to discuss it. He was not told of reports that counsel for the Mayor may ask for a second change of venue, but he was asked whether two changes of venue ever had been granted in one case. He replied he had never heard of such procedure, but he explained that it might have happened.

RECALLS VISIT

Judge Finletter was in excellent humor as early as 8 a. m., even after an all-night ride on a train. Five minutes after breakfast he was smoking his pipe and recalling his last visit to Pittsburgh when he was a practicing attorney.

He said:

"That time I walked from Pittsburgh to Franklin and I went through Butler. I like to walk for exercise, but my fondest exercise is fishing. I like to fish . . . A pipe? I smoke a pipe all day. I guess I shouldn't, but I'd smoke on the bench if it were proper."

Schenley, in Pittsburgh, Judge Finletter chatted with jurists of the Supreme Court, who are in session in Pittsburgh.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard, defense counsel, denied that he would go before the Supreme Court today and ask for the second venue change, but it was recalled that Kline counsel also denied before the first application that such a move would be made.

POSTPONEMENT OPPOSED

District Attorney Negley expressed strong opposition to plans for a postponement. He voiced full confidence in Butler County citizens.

Questioning of witnesses continued today. The Rev. Father Leonard Dorn, of Carbon Center, Butler County, was called this morning. Quizzed as he left the grand jury room, he said someone had visited him at his parish house early this month and asked him if any of the Kline jury panel were residents of his parish. He said he was not certain of the man's identity.

The visitor is believed the same who called on the Rev. Father Francis Clifford, of Murrensville, who testified before the grand jury yesterday.

SUSPECT CALLED

Roy Eakin was taken into the grand jury room from the county jail after District Attorney Negley had called two of Eakin's neighbors from Bakerstown. Eakin was alleged to have boasted he would get a "swell job" from R. J. Cunningham, Pittsburgh contractor. Both Eakin and Cunningham stand charged with embracery.

Cash G. Phillips, former alderman of Butler, was summoned but not required to testify when he gave Negley the name of the Pittsburgh policeman who had requested Phillips to provide $2,000 bond for Howard Gross, a third defendant.

RELIEF BONDS URGED ON SENATE

Public Work Best Way to Remedy Unemployment, Sub-Committee Informed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Unemployment will increase by 10 per cent this summer unless federal aid is granted to states and municipalities, F. E. Schmidt, editor of the Engineering News Record, of New York, told a Senate committee today.

Urging immediate enactment of the La Follette $5,500,000,000 prosperity bond issue to finance a national public works construction program, Schmidt, testifying before the Metcalf Sub-Committee on Education and Labor, said:

"Federal assistance to local governments is a vital necessity if local public work programs are not to be almost entirely curtailed. A million men face unemployment this year unless the states and municipalities obtain aid. Construction curtailment has mounted rapidly since the first of the year and may reach a billion dollars. A large part of this money will not be saved, but is being and will be paid out in doles."

PROVISION OF BILL

The La Follette bill would authorize the government to loan $3,750,000,000 to states for public works and highway construction programs.

America is at war, whether it knows it or not, testified John Sloan, New York architect. He urged immediate enactment of the La Follette bill as the "sole and fundamental" means to meet the emergency. Sloan said:

"For three years I have watched the destruction of the construction industry. There is a general disintegration and destruction of human life, property, effort and consequent mental and general inertia. Relief is beyond any normal method. The government must take the lead and be the agency to relieve and hearten industry and the people.

STATE BONDS

"A great public works construction program, as designed in the La Follette bill, seems to best meet the situation."

Sloan suggested the states and municipalities should float their own bond issues to finance the construction programs, and the government should purchase the bonds instead of having the government float the issues as proposed in the measure.

DR. EDGAR HELD SUICIDE

A verdict of suicide was returned by a Coroner's jury today at the inquest into the death of the Rev. Dr. Thomas D. Edgar, 63, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, killed by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at Edgewood Station, February 24.

Two witnesses, Dr. T. C. Davidson, a dentist, of 121 Race street, and George A. Tait, who has a barber shop at 121 Edgewood avenue, Edgewood, testified that the minister stepped in front of the approaching locomotive.

Dr. Edgar, nationally known in the United Presbyterian Church, resided at 417 Todd street, Wilkinsburg. He had been suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Big Bill Delahanty, Noted Sleuth, Dies

TOLEDO, O., March 11.—(INS.)—William (Big Bill) Delahanty, one of the country's most noted detectives, died here today just one month after he was called from retirement to become Toledo's police chief.

Twice Delahanty was offered executive positions in the United States secret service, but declined with a curt satement that most government police officers "were just a mess of farmers."

WIDOW FREED BY JURY

T. Adair's warning to the jury, in his closing argument, that they must not be influenced by the fact that the defendant is an attractive woman, a mother and of some social standing, Judge Gardner said:

"Social standing and the fact that she is a woman have nothing to do with this case at all. Everyone is equal when they are brought to trial, whether a man or woman, black or white."

CONSULTS ATTORNEYS

He then asked the opposing attorneys if they had anything to add to his charge.

Prosecutor Adair called attention to the fact that testimony had showed that Mrs. Walker had told conflicting stories from the witness stand and before the grand jury.

Attorney Eaton recalled the testimony of Mrs. Emma Mild, Mrs. Culbertson's mother, about finding Culbertson's hunting boots in a clothes chute during a visit with the couple last year, apparently to stress a point upon which the defense hammered constantly during the trial—a contention that Culbertson was a frequent and excessive drinker.

Yesterday, the most strenuous day of the trial, saw Mrs. Culbertson take the stand in her own defense. Then came the story of her 11-year-old son, Albert, Jr., who told of preventing his mother from committing suicide in her grief over the tragedy which climaxed a gay week-end house party.

BIBLE IN HAND

Holding a Bible in his hands, Attorney Eaton made an impassioned plea for the jury to acquit the defendant. Quoting from Scripture, he said:

"The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy.

"He will not always chide: neither will He keep His anger forever.

"He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities."

RETURN TO SONS ASKED

He closed the book and then said:

"This woman has had her Gethsemane. She has walked in the shadow of the Valley of Death. Send her back so that as far as motherhood can, she can be a companion and a guide to her two boys."

Eaton declared that the prosecution has not proven guilt nor established a motive for murder. He charged that the tests of the ballistic expert had proven nothing and were worthless; there was no motive proven and every witness called testified to Mrs. Culbertson's good character.

Assistant District Attorney Adair, the prosecutor, following, said:

"This is an odd case. The people concerned are all of a strata of society which seeks to climb up and up. They live in one of the best homes in one of the best communities. They point this woman out as a model woman with a beautiful disposition. I have brought out that they quarreled often and that everything was not as they want you to believe.

ILLUSTRATES WITH GUN

"Here is a brilliant man murdered. She is a brilliant woman, and very clever. Her story is weak and is supported only by her friends. This was a deliberate murder. She stood in the doorway and fired."

Here Adair took the gun, paraded up and down before the jury with it, bumping it on the floor and on the railing of the jury box to show how it must have been held out from the shoulder when discharged.

7 MORE HURT IN COASTING ACCIDENTS

One Sled Hits Auto, 2 Others Ram Poles; 2 Collide; Boy Injured Catching Ride

Seven additional coasting accidents added casualties today to the growing total of four dead and nearly a score injured in the Pittsburgh district.

Hansel Ilsner, 24, of 5 Vincent street, was injured last night when his sled collided with a parked automobile in Estella street, near Climax street. He was removed to the South Side Hospital where he was reported suffering from a dislocated shoulder.

Albert Stanbal, 14, of Thorn Run Hill, near Coraopolis, suffered a fractured left leg when a sled on which he was riding crashed into a parked automobile in Locust street, Coraopolis, last night, according to police. He was taken to the Valley Hospital at Sewickley.

TWO SLEDS COLLIDE

Herman Lomolimaro, 7, of 1015 Sarah street, was injured last night when his sled collided with another sled driven by Henry Chinski, 10, of 111 Eleventh street, at Tenth and Sarah streets. He was taken to the South Side Hospital, suffering from head lacerations.

Billy Jones, 17, 1446 Ruben street, North Side, was in St. John's Hospital today in a serious condition, his bladder punctured, physicians said, by a splinter which ran through his back when a toboggan on which he and a party of friends were riding in North Park last night was wrecked.

James Plumm, 16, of Maple avenue, Dravosburg, suffered a fractured left thigh when a sled on which he was riding crashed into a pole in Ravine street, last night. He was taken to the McKeesport Hospital.

TRIES TO JUMP SLED

Dominick Marieanna, 14, of 1140 Grant street, McKeesport, was in the McKeesport Hospital with severe lacerations of the head and face and a possible fractured nose suffered when he attempted to jump on a moving sled in Canal street, McKeesport, last night.

Mike Tinko, 17, of 51 Orchard avenue, McKees Rocks, suffered a fractured left leg when a sled on which he was coasting struck a pole in McCoy road, McKees Rocks, last night. He was removed to the Ohio Valley Hospital.

the jail, connect with his various associates or "angles" and seek information throughout the country.

In an interview with this writer Capone offers to put up a bond for his return, leaving his young brother in prison as a hostage, and start a hunt for the Lindbergh child, accompanied everywhere by Thomas Callaghan, a skilled man of the United States Secret Service.

News concerning the Lindbergh child is unfortunately not encouraging. A statement by the police proves that vague hopes that the child had been found and that announcement of the finding was being withheld, amount to nothing.

THE FIRST "baby bonds" were sold in Chicago yesterday. Those hoarding money should investigate those bonds and INVEST in them. The bonds pay two per cent and the government will pay them in full at the end of a year. If you want your money you can get it back at any time on 60 days' notice. Any bank will get the bonds for you.

And remember this, IF THOSE BONDS WERE NOT GOOD, THE MONEY YOU HAVE HIDDEN AWAY WOULD NOT BE GOOD EITHER. Both get their value from Uncle Sam's promise to pay. It is a good promise.

JOAN LOWELL TELLS HILL WOMAN'S STORY OF KIDNAPING

IMPLICATES 4 NEIGHBORS IN LINDY CASE

Urged to Join Baby Stealing Plot, She Informs Novelist; Troopers Investigate Clues

By JOAN LOWELL

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW HOPE, Pa., March 11.—I never thought that stark tragedy would bring me back to Cradle Valley Farm in New Hope, Pa., which was my country home.

I was writing a novel of characters of Sourland Mountains. Their loves, their hates, their superstitions. I know every deserted house within a radius of 10 miles from the Lindbergh mansion.

The natives of Sourland Mountains are for the most part trappers, fisher folk and farmers. Their world extends no farther than the thick forests and streams which bound the Townships of Hopewell, Zion and Skillman. And yet within the narrow confines of their world gruesome murders have taken place which have never been solved.

KLAN STRONGHOLD

The Ku Klux Klan has a strong foothold in the community. Wednesday night a fiery cross blazed on a hill behind Zion. A mute warning to the kidnapers, "Give up." Members of the Klan foregathered and swore death to the abductors of the Lindbergh baby.

I mixed in the crowd, dressed as a native. An old woman mumbled:

I left and sought out again a woman who knows more than she will tell. Fear stalks behind her. Fear that if she tells what she knows the kidnapers will avenge themselves on her.

Antonia Cholewsky, a woman with keen mind and the physical strength of a man, lives in a house down a winding gully-like road from Zion. She stands apart from the community because "she ain't like a woman. She does man's work."

Antonia says the hill people are mixed up in the kidnaping.

FEARS FOR LIFE

She lives in fear of her life. She knows too much. Here is her story, told exclusively:

"They tried to get me into the kidnaping ring. Last July a stranger moved into a house up the road. A big man who said he came from Brooklyn. He said he was a retired sheep man with enough money to live on. He begun making friends with the neighbors. He come to me. He asked me: 'Have you kind feelings or bad feelings toward Col. Lindbergh?'

"Before I answered his question I asked him why he wanted to know. He said: 'It will pay anyone well who doesn't have friendly feelings towards him.'"

"I am a foreigner. I've lived in these hills for 19 years and have reared three young ones. I haven't got no hatin' for anybody what leaves me to earn my living. I told that Brooklyn man as much. He left and said I'd be sorry.

"Then there began a series of troubles for me. One of the natives who took up close friendship with the Brooklyn man threatened to burn down one of my houses. Two of my dogs was poisoned and killed.

NOT FOR RANSOM

"The kidnapers ain't no underworld gangsters. One big gangster in Brooklyn is the head of the ring. But the ones what stole the baby are right here in these hills. There are four of them. Two women and two men. There wasn't any ransom mixed up with their doings."

"It wasn't to have vengeance on Col. Lindbergh. It was to plant the whole thing on a rival head gangster in Brooklyn to break up his gang."

I asked:

"Why haven't you told the police this?"

"I'm afraid to. They'll be after framing me. Not the police but the mountain people. It costs high to open your mouth in these mountains if you know too much.

"The ladder was built back in the mountains by one of the four in the kidnaping ring. The plans was to wait for a stormy night when the wind would kill the sound of feet approaching the Lindbergh house."

I asked:

"What were the local four to get from the Brooklyn man for kidnaping the baby?"

"Money, of course. One of the women has been the sweetheart of a trapper who is one of the ring.

"Then along came this rich sheep man from Brooklyn and the woman become the sheep man's woman. In the past few weeks that woman has been getting money. . . . More money than was ever spent in Zion or Skillman."

'SHEEP MAN' GONE

I asked:

"Does the sheep man still live here?"

"Oh, no. He just lived here last summer and said he wasn't coming back until next summer. But when I was walking up Zion road Tuesday morning . . . and me not knowing anything about the kidnaping at all because no papers come until night time. . . . I saw the sheep man coming out of his lane and he drove away fast.

"I walked on past. A neighbor called to me, 'Antonia, did you hear what happened? Lindbergh's baby was kidnaped last night.' That was the first I heard of the kidnaping.

CLUES IN COTTAGE

"I own three summer cottages. Fearing that maybe the kidnapers had used one of my houses as a hideout I went to them. My houses are in a direct line through the woods from Lindbergh's home.

"I noticed woman's footprints. They led up to a window in the middle cottage. The window had been pried open. I had nailed the window up myself only a month before. I took the rusty locks off the door and saw muddy footprints of a woman's feet and men's feet leading to a bedroom at the back."

I notified Maj. Schoeffel at Lindbergh's home, who is in charge of the investigation. He immediately went with a corps of troopers to the scene. Schoeffel said:

Mrs. Cholewsky told me the name of one of the women whom she alleges is part of the ring of four local natives who are involved in the kidnaping. I went up to the shack where that woman lives. I knocked.

I heard a woman scream:

A man answered:

"I will go and I am going after it now."

MOUNTIES FIND LINDY CLUE IN VANCOUVER

Woman Grilled on Link to Baby's Nurse and Johnson; Hunt on for Mystery Man

International News Service.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 11.—A "valuable trail" in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping has been uncovered in Vancouver, members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police indicated today.

American and Canadian authorities sought handwriting specimens of a mysterious Fred Short whose name suddenly was injected into the case yesterday.

The police intimated that as a result of local developments an arrest "would likely take place in the United States."

WOMAN QUESTIONED

Officers likewise declined to amplify a hint that "this kidnaping plot was hatched in Vancouver more than a year ago."

Mrs. Grace Vanderweg, who was questioned by American officers and Canadian constables regarding Short, revealed the investigators had "gone through all letters, cards and photographs" in her houseboat in an effort to find samples of his handwriting.

Mrs. Vanderweg, during the course of a three-hour grilling, said she told the officers she knew a Fred Short in Australia where her father raced horses. She declared:

"The last I saw of him was in 1930."

Mrs. Vanderweg, wife of Jack Vanderweg, known in wrestling circles as "Tiger Jack" Whitey, said she was also asked if she did not remember meeting "Red" Johnson in 1930 when the Lamont yacht, aboard which Johnson worked, was in Vancouver.

DENIES KNOWING PAIR

Mrs. Vanderweg declared she never met Johnson. She also flatly denied knowing Miss Gow.

Officers attempted to refute Mrs. Vanderweg's denials by producing a Vancouver financial clerk, whose identity was kept secret.

This clerk, it was reported, declared that in 1930 he had been introduced to Miss Gow here by Mrs. Vanderweg, then Miss Elsie (Babe) Jeffries.

Mrs. Vanderweg, however, insisted she never had met either the financial clerk or Miss Gow. She said:

"Far from having been a friend of Betty Gow and "Red" Johnson when the Lamont yacht was here, I do not recall the boat, and I certainly never met Miss Gow or Johnson in my life."

Considerable significance was added to the local situation when police admitted they had been in communication with New Jersey authorities.

Lindys Relax Under Strain Of Hunt

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 11.—(AP.)—The father, the mother and the maternal grandmother of the kidnaped Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., relaxed for a short time yesterday, the ninth since the child was stolen from his crib.

For nearly an hour Col. Lindbergh cast aside the worries of the private negotiations he is pressing for the return of his son and read a book.

Meanwhile Mrs. Lindbergh and her mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, went for a brief walk around the hilltop estate. Both wore fur coats. Last night a chicken dinner was served at the home.

room and asked if Mrs. Lindbergh had the child there with her.

The mother said she did not have the baby, but even then no feeling of consternation was experienced by the two women, though Mrs Lindbergh did immediately begin to dress. Miss Gow is reported to have said, in effect:

"I guess the Colonel must have taken him downstairs."

Then she went down to ask the father.

When Miss Gow learned that the Colonel did not have the baby, however, she suddenly realized the seriousness of the situation and screamed that the baby had been stolen.

By that time Mrs. Lindbergh was in the nursery and Col. Lindbergh joined her there. After a hasty search of house and grounds the police were notified and the hunt began.

NURSE CALLED TUESDAY

It has been repeatedly stated that Miss Gow did not leave the Lindbergh house on the day of the kidnaping or during the previous week-end. This was literally true, but it was only learned today that it was misleading. Miss Gow did not leave the Lindbergh home during that period for the very simple reason that she was not there.

The Lindberghs had been accustomed to leave Miss Gow at the Morrow home in Englewood when they made their week-end trips to their estate here, and they followed this custom on this occasion. On Tuesday, however, they decided to remain here instead of returning to Englewood as they had planned, because of the baby's cold.

And so they telephoned to the Morrow home and had Miss Gow come out. She arrived late in the afternoon.

Col. Lindbergh arrived home at 8:30, half an hour after the baby had been put to bed, and he and Mrs. Lindbergh at once had dinner. After dinner they sat in the living room for a little while and then Col. Lindbergh moved to his desk in the room beneath the nursery and Mrs. Lindbergh went upstairs to take a bath before going to bed.

HAD DATE WITH SAILOR

Henry (Red) Johnson, Miss Gow's sailor friend, had a "date" with her for that evening in Englewood, and when he appeared to keep that engagement he learned the nurse had been called to Hopewell. He telephoned her about 9 o'clock to express his regreat that they could not have their evening together.

Johnson, who formerly worked on the Lamont yacht, met Miss Gow at the Morrow summer home in Maine, where she took care of the baby while the parents were flying to the Orient and back. He moved to Englewood later, presumably to be near the girl, with whom his brother has said he was deeply in love.

He had made three visits to the Hopewell estate with Miss Gow or to visit her there. He has been questioned at length concerning the kidnaping case and is at present held in Newark on a warrant charging illegal entry to America.

TELL OF VISITS TO HOME

NEWARK, N. J., March 11.—The News said today that Henry (Red) Johnson was familiar with every room in the Hopewell home of the Lindberghs, that he visited the house in November, when it was under construction, again on New Year's Day and a third time three weeks before the kidnaping.

Each time, the News said, he was accompanied by Betty Gow, and on the visit New Year's Day he was shown through every room in the house by the butler, Ollie Wheatley.

First Bulletin Shows Police Completely Baffled In Hunt for Baby

TRENTON, N. J., March 11—(AP.)—The text of the first bulletin issued from the Lindbergh home under the new procedure adopted by police to supersede the former practice of answering lists of questions, follows.

It was signed by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, who is in general charge of the police search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby and his abductors. The text:

"John Norman Beck, reported to have been a friend of servants, was arrested by Miami police, questioned and claims not to be acquainted with any of household of the Lindbergh family.

"Further claims in Miami since January 24, 1932, being further investigated by the Miami police, and if his story is found to be correct he will be released.

(Editor's note—Department of Justice agents and Miami police this afternoon released the man identifying himself as J. Norman Beck, after he had convinced them he had been in Miami since January 24.)

"The possibility of connecting the ladder with construction work going on at Skillman (village for epileptics) seems to be exhausted. No connection of employes has in any way been established and unless positive information comes in this angle of investigation is exhausted.

FARMS SEARCHED

"Numerous farms on the Pennington and Princeton road and adjacent sections reported as being operated by suspicious persons thoroughly investigated, the premises searched and all occupants of the houses accounted for. Nothing of any kind was found to link them with the crime.

"Careful and thorough checks have been made of more than 100 former employes hired to assist in construction of the Lindbergh residence. Of those checked none can in any way be connected with the kidnaping case. There are still others to be checked who are difficult to find and who have moved or left the vicinity of Hopewell, who will be investigated. None of these removals from this vicinity have been coincident with occurrences in the kidnaping.

"The above are some of the definite results obtained up to this time. Many suggestions and bits of information are submitted both by telephone and mail, and these have been investigated without result. Inquiries in the surrounding territories are continuing in the hope of obtaining information.

FORESTER TO AID

"Col. Leonidas Coyle, of the State Forestry Department, and Chief Warden Stratton, of the Fish and Game Department, have been requested to get reports from all men operating in this area during the last month, of any suspicious circumstances they may have noticed, strangers they may have seen, new residents in the vicinity or anything else that might be of assistance to us in this investigation. Telephone reports state that nothing suspicious has been discovered.

"To correct the impression given us that Dr. E. M. Hudson, of New York, had offered his services in identification of fingerprints, we wish to state that he offered his services in applying his chemical process of developing fingerprints absorbed by material on which they may have been left, but not respondent to the usual powder methods."

Sleuth and Woman Visit Lindy Home

NEW YORK, March 11.—(INS.)—Samuel Krasnow, associated with a detective agency, accompanied by a woman, visited the Lindbergh home at Hopewill, N. J., today.

No official explanation for the visit was made.

HINT LINDY LINK IN 'PERSONALS'

NEW YORK, March 11.—(INS.)—Possibility was seen in an advertisement in the "personal" column of a New York newspaper today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is communicating in this manner with the kidnapers of his baby. It read:

"Money is ready—Jafsie."

This unexplained message followed a previous one in the column printed yesterday. It read:

"Letter received at new address. Will follow your instructions. I also received letter mailed to me March 4, and was ready since then. Please hurry on account of mother. Address me to the address you mention in your letter. Father."

Fail to Link Depew In Lindy Kidnaping

KANSAS CITY, March 11.—(AP.)—Detectives returned empty-handed yesterday from the East where they sought Martin Depew, steam shovel operator, alleged leader of the kidnapers of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, of Kansas City.

They said they also had failed to uncover clues during a visit at Hopewill, N. J., that might link Depew with the kidnaping of the small son of Col. Charles Lindbergh.

KIDNAPERS ASK SAFETY PLEDGE

NEW YORK, Mar. 11.—(AP.)—The Daily News says the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., telephoned the baby's parents yesterday and demanded additional proof of immunity before they would make any attempt to collect ransom for the child's return.

The connection was broken, the paper says, before the group around the telephone in the Lindbergh home could add to assurances. They waited several hours for another call, but none came.

Two physicians from Newark, posing as cranks with a scheme to recover the baby, visited them during the night.

The paper says further that another letter was received yesterday from the kidnapers. It was in the same handwriting as the original ransom note left when the baby was kidnaped and on the same kind of paper as the two received last Sunday. It was believed to have contained demands similar to those made in the interrupted telephone conversation.

BABY NOT ON NORWAY BOAT

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

LONDON, March 11.—(INS.)—The captain of the Norwegian liner Bergensfjord sent the following radio message to International News Service today:

"A thorough search of the Bergensfjord failed to reveal the presence of the Lindbergh baby."

The search was conducted on receipt of a tip from an American customs inspector who reported that a man carrying a curly-headed baby boarded the liner in New York as it sailed for Bergen, Norway, on the day after the kidnaping.

placed "in a position to vindicate them."

HUNT WIDESPREAD

Colonel Schwarzkopf stated an inquiry concerning a chorus girl by the name of Betty Gow who entered the country illegally, served six months, was deported, and returned to the United States in 1929, "would tend to disprov the fact" she is the same perso as the nursemaid.

The police head refused to say whether he had any more knowledge concerning the identity of the kidnapers and the whereabouts of the baby than he had the night of the kidnaping.

An indication police have not narrowed their hunt for the missing child down to any one area came today with announcement of the arrest in Miami, Fla., of John N. Beck, reported to hav been a friend of the Lindbergh servants. He was released later however, after being questione by Department of Justice agent

ALL ANGLES PROBED

At a late night conference, tl following question was put:

"Have the police developed definite theory of any kind to where the baby might held, that is, in the immedia Hopewell area, in the New Yo metropolitan area, or at so point farther away?"

The reply was:

"All three of these are poss bilities and we are investiga ing all angles."

Earlier the hunt for the child had spread to the shores of England. When the Ile de France touched at Plymouth the ship was searched, but only nine children were found aboard, all of whom were quickly identified.

POLICE QUIZ HALTED

Meanwhile, the chief of the state police, directing the search for the baby, charged today tha the press had attempted to "dic tate" to them and was "interfer ing" with police work.

As a result, the police an nounced they would discontin replying to press questionnaires.

Information hereafter will issued in bulletin form tw daily—at 11 a. m. and 10 p. In the event that "anything de inite develops" special bullet will be issued.

The first of these formal bull tins today announced the Flori arrest and touched upon the a tempt to trace the kidnapers' la der to an epileptic farm and oth angles of the hunt. It also ma known that more than 100 m who helped build the Lindber home had been questioned.

ACTION QUESTIONED

Some reporters from New Yo newspapers have felt they we not receiving as accurate or d tailed information as the intern tional interest in the case wa ranted. On the other hand, t police have been fearful that pu licity, unless carefully supervis from official sources, would ha per the forces seeking the retu of the child, now nine days mis ing from his nursery.

Col. Schwarzkopf's action w precipitated by the questionna submitted to the police by so reporters assigned to the sto shortly after midnight today. Se eral of the questions called up the police to explain discrepanci in answers noted in previous que tionnaires. Some of the questio by inference, challenged the pol action in certain phases of th investigation.

One question asked what ste the police took to obtain bloo hounds to follow the trail of th kidnapers. Police previously ha explained that "none was avai able." This morning's questio however, stated that good authori ties had said "10 or more goo bloodhounds could have bee made available at Hopewell withi two hours after the kidnaping w reported."

HOMES NOT SEARCHED

Another question included t statement that reporters h found some homes "within a fai short walking distance of t Lindbergh estate" had not bee visited by police, and inquired wh not. The purpose of the question it was explained, was to determin if "a thorough, humanitarian ef fort has been made to discove whether the baby might have bee abandoned in the vicinity of th Lindbergh home."

One question included amo the 14 which the police declin to answer was:

"Do the state police author ities feel completely satisfie that the baby has not been abandoned in the area of the Lindbergh home and, if so, how do they arrive at that conclusion?"

LONG HUNT FAILS

Discontinuance of the questionnaire leaves the press without any official source of information except the twice-a-day bulletins which Col. Schwarzkopf's statement promised. At the outset Col. Lindbergh announced that all official information concerning the progress of the search would have to come from state police headquarters.

The nine days of investigation have been filled with hundreds of leads that have sent investigators into New England, Pennsylvania and New York. So far as is known, however, the vital fact remains brief:

The baby has not been found.

for 1,240. A dozen might be in Capone's room, but there is only one, a small, pleasant-faced youth, put there to help pass the time with handball cards, etc. Why not a dozen? Because Capone with a dozen to talk to might think of something.

Capone's greeting was:

"How are you? Is there any news?"

He meant news about the Lindbergh baby.

DOESN'T ASK FAVORS

For an hour the talk was of little else except that child and on that subject. What Capone said will be given as nearly as possible in his own words:

"I don't want any favors if I am able to do anything for that baby. IF THEY WILL LET ME OUT OF HERE I WILL GIVE ANY BOND THEY REQUIRE IF THEY ARE INTERESTED IN THE CHILD. I will spend every hour of the night and day with Thomas Callaghan, head of the United States secret service guard. The government knows that it can trust him, I think, and I will send my young brother to stay here in the jail until I come back. You don't suppose anybody would suggest that I would double-cross my own brother and leave him here, if I could get away from Callaghan?"

When Capone mentioned his brother his small gray eyes opened wide. He usually keeps them partly covered by the heavy lids. There was in them a look that completely discouraged any desire to suggest that he might "double-cross his own brother."

EXPLAINS PLAN

"What could I do if I were out? Let them give me a chance to show what I could do. I have a good many angles, and anybody that knows anything would know that he could trust me. There isn't a mob that wouldn't trust me to pay that money, if the relations of the kidnaped child wanted me to pay it, and there isn't anybody that would think I would tell where I got the child, or how I got it, or who had it.

"Can I find it? How do I know?" He pointed to a big pile of letters on his table, all addressed to him, every one opened before he got it.

"They don't do that for everybody, but they do it for me. You can't expect anybody to send a letter to me here. But if I were out, it wouldn't take long for anybody that has information to get at me. I am easy to find and to recognize.

"All that I can promise is that I would do my best. I would put up a money bond as big as I could raise for my return.

"I would put my young brother here in my place to wait here until I come back. I would do my best. I would soon know whether the child is in the possession of any regular mob that I can connect with or in the possession of any individual working his own racket, that would have sense enough to know that he could trust me, and know that it might not be a bad idea to do me a good turn.

WANTS NO REWARD

"I want to repeat, I don't ask any favors, don't want any gratitude or anything else in case I can be of any use. I can imagine how Col. Lindbergh feels."

"It would be hard for anybody, any man that found the man that stole that baby, not to take a crack at him. But I would give my word through my different angles, as I give it now, and nobody would be afraid to trust me. If it turned out that I couldn't be of any use, and of course that is likely enough, then I would come back here, take my brother's place, and let justice go on with her racket."

Capone went into some detail, but not for publication, as to the methods he would adopt to get information of the baby's whereabouts and knowledge of those that are withholding it from its mother.

His power in whatever he undertakes is known to many.

Harry Read, city editor of THE CHICAGO AMERICAN and a real newspaper man, who accompanied the writer to the jail, narrated instances in Capone's career indicating that the wise members of any "mob" would oblige Capone if they could. Might advance, and not ignore any reasonable argument or request that he might advance.

BELIEF IN POWER

As this is written, the Associated Press calls up to say:

"One of our Associated Press men learned that you went to see Capone. Would you mind saying whether you went there as an emissary of the Lindbergh family, or at the request of anybody connected with the family?"

The answer was:

"No. I went there as a newspaper man. I haven't seen Col. Lindbergh or any member of his family since the baby was kidnaped, and haven't been in communication with anybody representing him. The government of the United States seems to think Alphonse Capone a powerful man in certain circles. I share that belief, and thought it desirable to learn what, if anything, Capone could suggest."

It is possible that Alphonse Capone could do that which could not be done by others of whom many with excellent intentions have appeared to run around in circles, not going anywhere in particular.

Whether it would be possible to give Capone a chance to try, putting up a large sum in the way of a bond, putting his brother in his prison cell as a guarantee of his return, and taking a secret service man with him, the government must decide.

It would depend probably on Col. Lindbergh's desire and whether it would be actually in the power of the judge that sent Capone to prison, or of President Hoover himself, to make the experiment possible.

This writer believes that whether he succeeded or failed, Capone would return.

Capone does not make any secret of his business, says he:

"I handle beer, and beer never did anybody any harm. Everybody is a bootlegger nowadays, either selling it or buying it. The man that buys it violates the law as much as the man that sells it and has not as good an excuse."

Capone also feels that the government insisting on sharing the bootlegger's profits in the way of income tax is something of a lawbreaker on its own account.

TELLS OF WORK

Capone is convinced that he is a young man who has worked his way upward against odds and has been harshly treated.

"I cut leather at the Bush Terminal for four years. I worked in bowling alleys. I am only 33 years old, and they tie me up with things that happened 25 years ago, talking about mobs that I never heard of. When I came to Chicago, 11 years ago, I only had $40 in my pocket. I went into a business that was open and didn't do anybody any harm. They talk about the unemployed. I have given work to the unemployed. At least 300 young men, thanks to me, are getting from $150 to $200 a week and are making it in the harmless beer racket, which is better than their jobs before. I have given work that has taken many a man out of the holdup and bank robbery business and others worse.

"Suppose they put me out of business permanently, and all my men lose their jobs. They are making a good living now, they have families and little houses. They couldn't get $30 a week in any legitimate racket now. What do you think they would do? Go on the streets and beg? No."

BITTER OVER LAW

Capone leaves those interested to draw their own conclusion as to what men engaged in the beer racket would do if they suddenly found themselves among the unemployed. He feels that he was "double-crossed" by the law.

Fortunately for those seeking the Lindbergh baby, Capone is of the opinion that:

"That child was not taken by an organized mob. It isn't the work of any organization. There are lots of little fellows working for themselves. They have got no money and are as foolish as any kid.

"To kidnap that child was as foolish as it would have been to try to kidnap President Hoover. With the organization and the various angles with which I am familiar I think I have a chance to get in touch with the kidnapers, whoever they are. I would see that they got their money, if the authorities wanted me to. There isn't a man in America that would not like to return that child to its folks, whatever it cost him."

DESCRIBES INJUSTICE

Capone smiled sorrowfully, a rather pleasant smile, as he described the injustice to which he has been subjected. They won't let him out on bail, although others convicted of income tax cases are set free on bail until the highest court has passed on their appeal. They made him pay expenses of the trial, although they don't do that with others. That cost him $50,000.

The government, he says, wants him to pay $336,000 in income tax. He said:

"I don't know where they get those figures, unless it is out of the moon. How do they know anything about my income since they never proved that I ever received a dollar? They may have been able to prove that I spent some money, but that didn't prove that I have any income. What I have might have been given to me by admiring friends, and the government doesn't tax gifts."

Capone assures you that it was his intention to live up to the agreement that he had, pay what the government wanted.

Capone thinks it strange that the government should share profits in a business that they call criminal. He said:

"It was my intention to serve my two and a half years, without a murmur, and get into some legitimate racket when I got out of jail. But if I wanted to get into a legitimate racket, I suppose they wouldn't let me. When I get through with this I am going into the surety business. In fact, I am in it now."

POSSIBILITIES STUDIED

Some perhaps would say:

"Since you spent an hour with Alphonse Capone, tell us what he looks like."

He is the average height, enormously broad shouldered. His head is of the brachycephalic type, almost round, very wide, from ear to ear. He wore a suit of plain dark blue flannel, with a tan colored shirt, collar attached, no tie. His hands are big and powerful, the muscles in his upper arm bulge through the soft flannel. His feet are small, shoes pointed, and ornamented with many holes pierced in the leather.

His eyebrows, heavy and black, meet below his forehead. The eyes beneath them you would not soon forget. They are small, round, a greenish gray. He does not actually look big and he is not fat. When you ask him how much he weighs he replies:

"Two hundred and forty pounds, two ounces less than a horse."

And he laughs.

LIKE TRAPPED TIGER

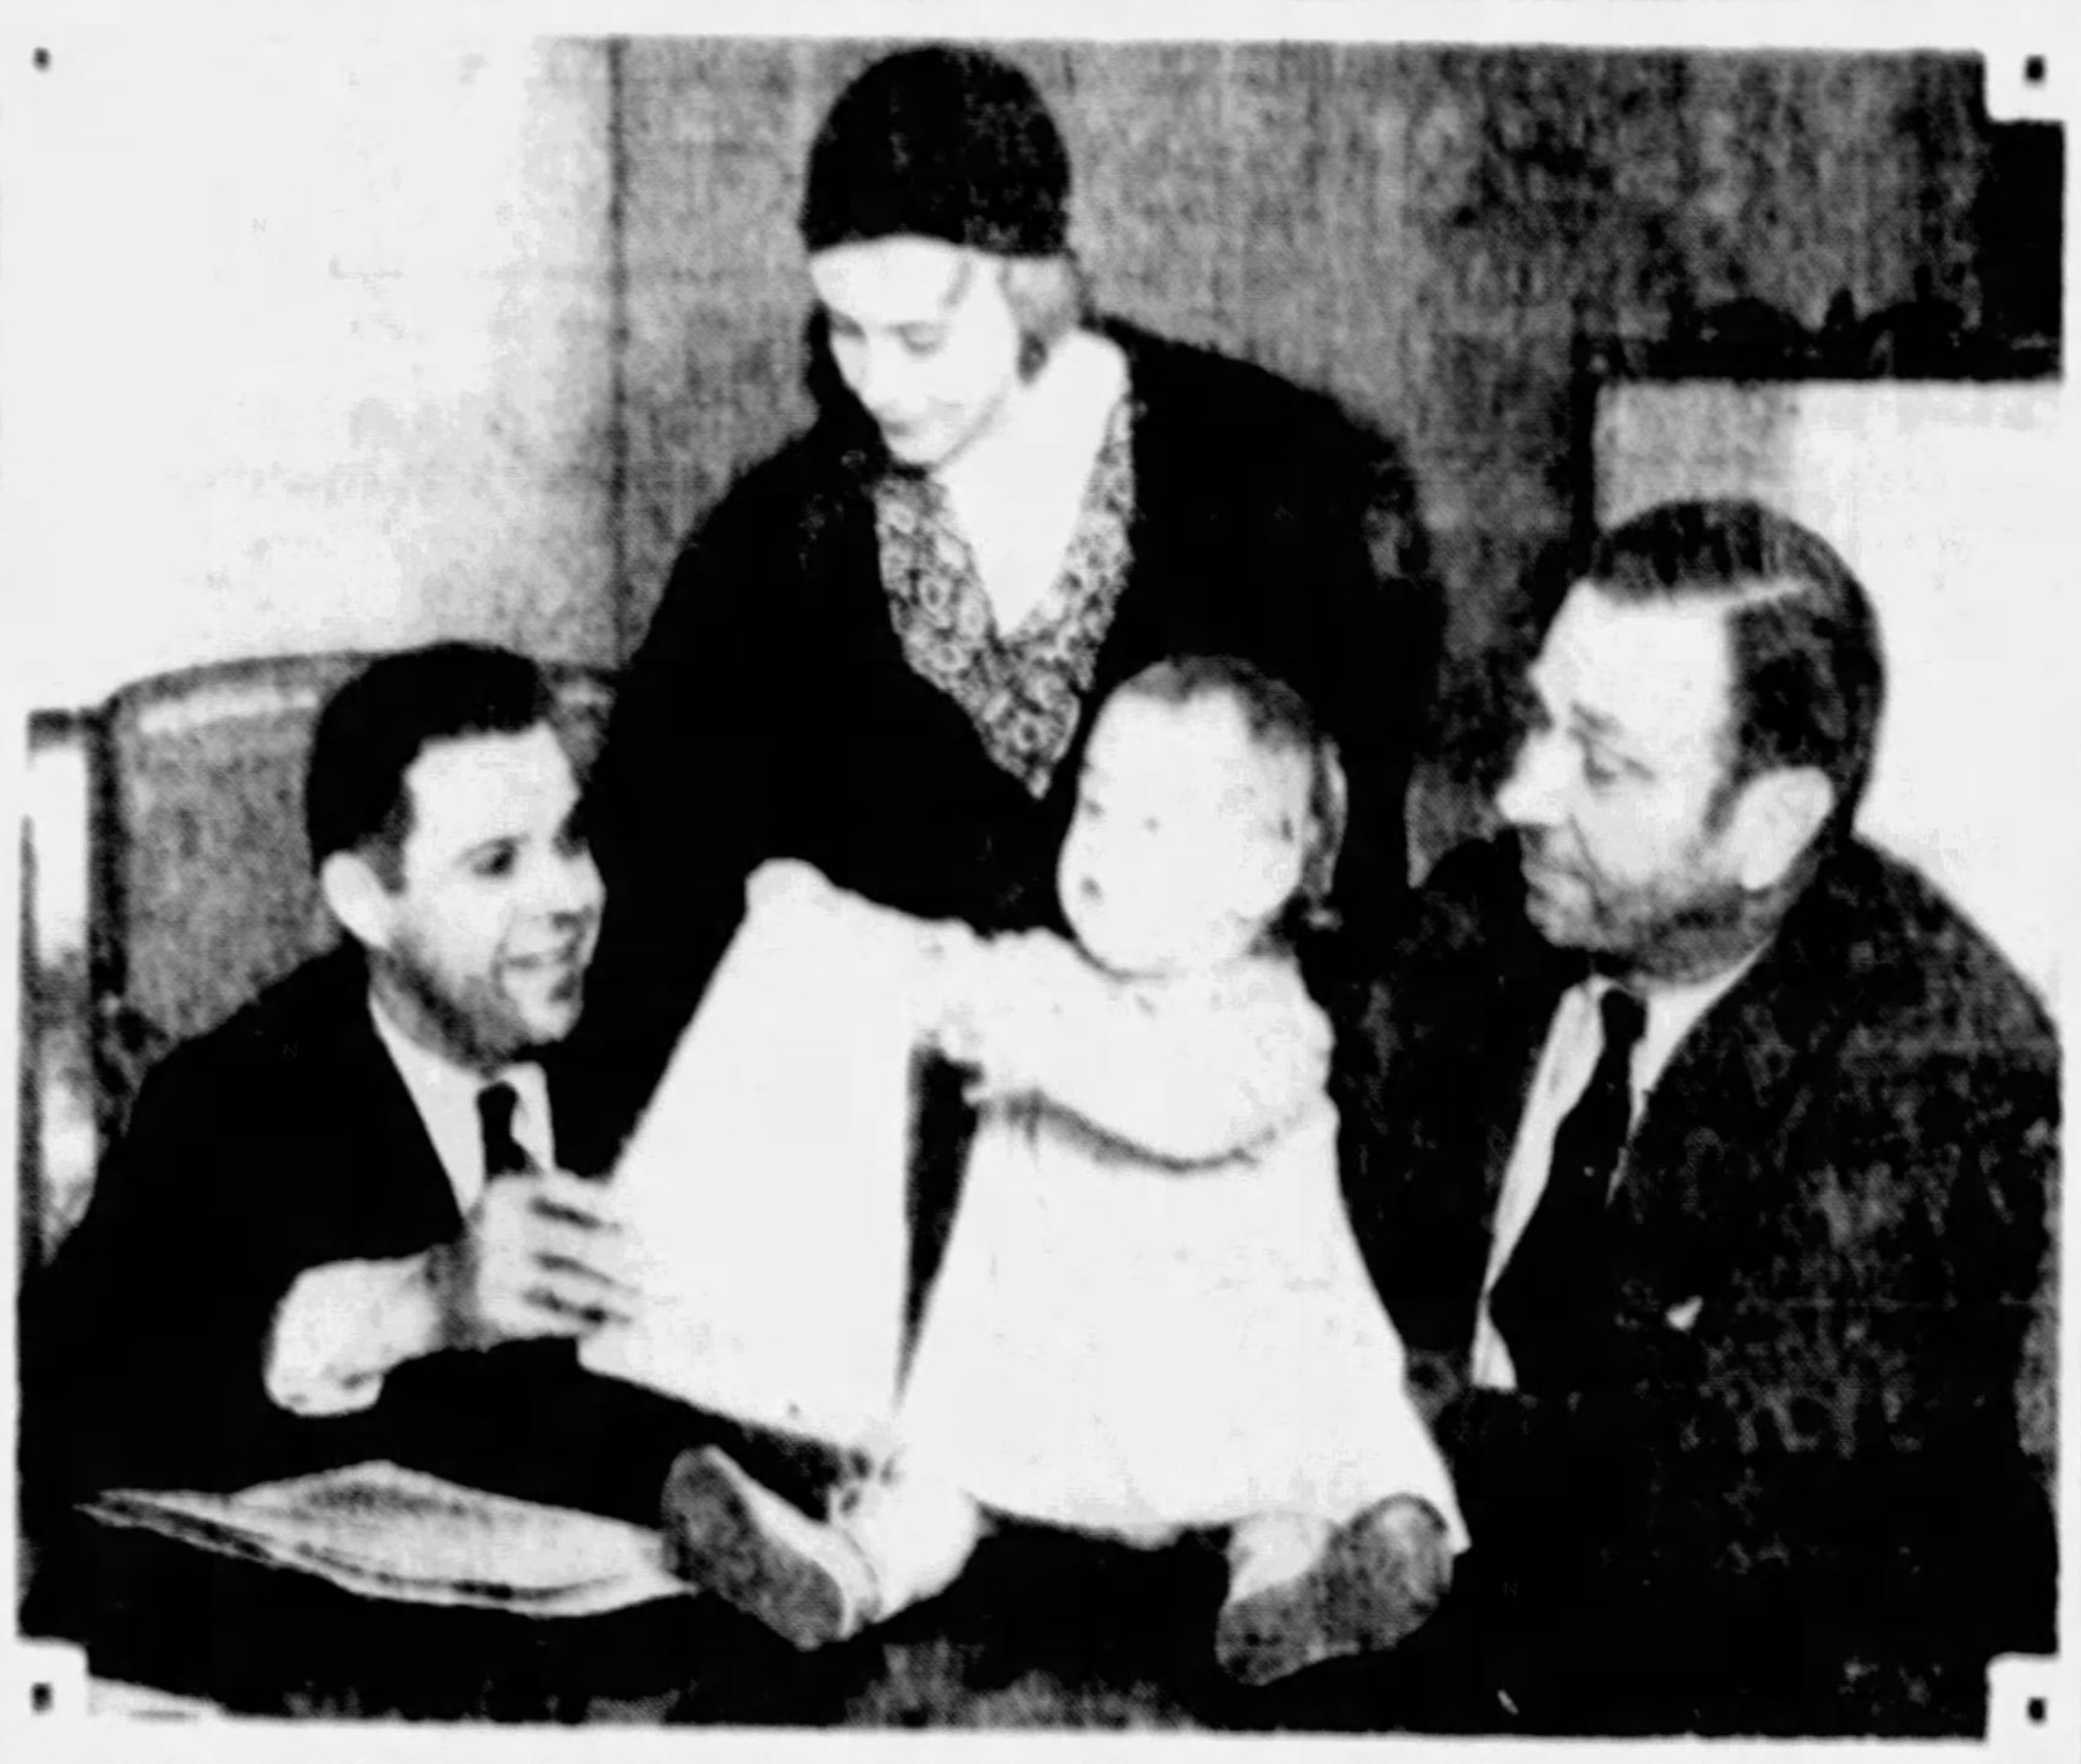
You do not see the real Capone in a prison cell. As well as expect to see a real tiger after it is caught in a trap.

But, caught, Capone keeps his wits about him and is constantly thinking.

Harry Read, who knows him as well as anybody outside his organization, says Capone has a violent temper:

"In a rage, he raves and storms, his eyes blaze. But he never does anything while he is angry. He sits down until he is calm, then he gives his orders."

WALLACE BEERY ADOPTING A CHILD



JUDGE SAMUEL R. BLAKE — MRS. BEERY — CAROL ANN — WALLACE BEERY

RESCUE OF 400 ON FLOES NEAR

HELSINGFOR, Finland, March 11.—(INS.)—Rescue of approximately 400 fishermen stranded on ice floes in the eastern part of the Gulf of Finland, was regarded as virtually certain today as icebreakers continued to take the stranded men aboard and thickness of the ice prevented its drifting far out to sea.

Nearly half of the 700 originally cut off from land in extremely harsh weather had reached safety today. Many others were believed safe on several of a number of islands dotting that part of the gulf.

The only fears expressed here were that some of the fishermen may be harmed from exposure since they went adrift with few provisions and in clothes too light for the severe weather they encountered.

5 Saved From Ship Locked in Lake Ice

SANDUSKY, O., March 11.—(AP.)—Five men were taken off the United States government dredge Taylor, ice-locked on Starve Island reef near Put-in-Bay, by Coast Guardsmen today.

The five men were government engineers from Washington anxious to proceed eastward. The Taylor had been ice-locked since Wednesday night.

Beer, Mash Seized In Duquesne Raid

An alleged wildcat brewery in Duquesne yielded prohibition agents large quantities of beer and mash and other liquors, they reported. Joseph Garello was reported arrested. Small seizures of whisky were reported in four other raids.

Suspect Arrested In Numbers Pool

County detectives today raided an alleged numbers racket headquarters in Collins avenue, and reported seizing numerous books and a blackboard on which winning numbers were posted. The alleged proprietor, Harry Williams, was released in $1,000 bail.

Young Bond Sellers 'Fill in' as Guests

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—The perplexing question of the fourth at bridge is solved. Agencies have been established to contact young bond salesmen and other unattached bachelors to serve as fill-in guests. But those on the call list keep it quiet. They're afraid they'll be called gigolos.

Recovers Needle In Body 66 Years

ADAIR, Ill., March 11.—(AP.)—Sixty-six years ago R. C. Raby, now 79, swallowed a needle. Yesterday he saw the point of it sticking out between his toes so he reached down and pulled it out.

MUSIC — The Blue Bird

Syria Mosque

Yasha Yushny and his renowned "Blue Bird" company entertained a most receptive audience in Syria Mosque last night. It is to the credit of this entrepreneur, who began by telling a grand fib about Pittsburgh's beauty and confessing his error, that he engaged this audience, accustomed to the most serious music, in a little singing on its own, a stunt which created excellent rapport at once and made the show a success from then on.

Mr. Lissfelt

The "Blue Bird" is the cleverest of vaudeville, comparative to the Folies Bergere and London music halls. We must think back to the Chauve Souris as well and here the comparison must be in favor of the Balieff show; there was more originality, settings were handled with greater finesse, and there was never so much sheer noise upon the scene.

Yasha Yushny strikes hard for the grotesque and parodies other players rather than creates. His Bavarian quartet was a good take-off on the peasant dancers and singers one meets in German beer gardens; the hurdy gurdy, for a moment, struck a tender note of pathos and then it disappeared; his double quartet in imitation of the Don Cossacks was true and very funny.

Occasionally in his mass scenes he strikes an idea as he introduces street cries which might develop into some interesting music. But it is all too fleeting in the hurly burly of the action and his point is not made. In the St. Petersburg scene before the statue of Great Catherine there appeared a few snatches of drama and the music was well done.

The Volga Boatmen gave us the best singing of the evening, the only serious musical contribution of the show. And there were some good voices among the men. The gypsy music had abandon if not much fervor. That scene brought the dancer, Ivan Orlik, who stood alone in the entire company and twice gave good account of his abilities.

Of the ensemble pictures the Yugoslavian Washerwomen were stunning with their breathless singing and deft dancing figures; the Bottle Stoppers did a clever turn as they turned from figureheads into live devotees of Malaga and Bordeaux; the Gossips About a Samovar finally proved how we drink tea from our saucers in Russia and save the sugar; and the Market Women did a lively bit of singing in giving us one of Moussorgsky's pictures from an exhibition, originally made as piano solo.

There was much laughter throughout the evening, but Yushny himself provided as much entertainment as his players.

FRED LISSFELT.

Autoist Sentenced For Death of Boy

Howard Miller, 40, of Cecil, today began serving six to 18 months in jail for voluntary manslaughter in connection with the death of William H. Cheeks, 9, of Bridgeville, killed August 29 in Collier Township when struck by Miller's automobile. Miller pleaded guilty. A physician testified Miller was intoxicated when examined shortly after the accident.

AIRPLANE TOUR BRINGS MANY ENTRIES

Pittsburgh Youths Compete For Coveted Detroit Trip; New Questions Offered

Hundreds of Pittsburgh boys are eagerly looking forward to the possibility of winning the free airplane trip to Detroit and return which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is offering for the most nearly correct set of answers in an aviation contest now on.

It isn't too late to enter.

This contest is sponsored by the National Aircraft Show of Detroit and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. The winner will not only get a free trip to Detroit and return by plane, but will be a special guest at the aircraft exposition, will be given a 60-mile sky ride around Detroit and will be shown the interesting places of Detroit in a tour by automobile, including the Ford automobile plant.

TRIP APRIL 2

The aircraft exposition, opening Saturday, April 2, will be of particular interest because the winning boy will have an opportunity of examining the latest types of transport planes and engines, the newest in instruments, radio and other accessories that will be on exhibition at the big show.

The Sun-Telegraph contest includes 24 questions and a 100-word letter telling of the advantages of air mail and air travel. The first 10 questions have been printed, but may be secured by sending a request and 3 cents to the Circulation Department, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

TWO NEW QUESTIONS

Here are today's questions in this contest:

11. Do the air mail lines carry express packages as well as mail and passengers?

12. (A) If you wanted to send a package by air express, how would you go about arranging for it? (B) Would a designated representative of the air lines call for it at your home and deliver it to its destination?

The boy who wins the Detroit airplane trip will follow this schedule:

GOING
Leave Pittsburgh Tuesday, April 5, 11:30 a. m.
Arrive Cleveland Tuesday, April 5, 12:30 p. m.
Century Air Lines—No. 3
Leave Cleveland Tuesday, April 5, 1:20 p. m.
Arrive Detroit Tuesday, April 5, 2:45 p. m.
RETURNING
Century Air Lines—No. 4
Leave Detroit Friday, April 8, 2:30 p. m.
Arrive Cleveland Friday, April 8, 3:35 p. m.
Pennsylvania Air Lines—No. 4
Leave Cleveland Friday, April 8, 4:30 p. m.
Arrive Pittsburgh Friday, April 8, 5:45 p. m.

CHARITIES HERE AIDED BY WILL

Nearly all of the $58,000 estate of Henry Hunneshagen, of Spring Garden avenue, was left to charitable institutions by his will, probated yesterday. A life estate was left to a daughter, Emma C. Hunneshagen, and at her death, Mary Hunneshagen, sister of decedent, is given $5,000, the balance to be shared equally by these institutions: German Protestant Orphan Asylum, German Protestant Home for the Aged, St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, St. Paul's Orphan Asylum and the Passavant Memorial Home for epileptics.

The Highland Presbyterian Church, Perrysville, is left $3,000 by the will of Ada F. Price, of McCandless Township, disposing of an estate valued at $25,000. She left a life interest to an aunt, Elizabeth A. Price, and directed that her stock interest in Price Brothers go to an uncle, George W. Price, the balance to other relatives.

New Church Union Parley Set April 27

Completion of the plan for the merger of the Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian churches will be made at a meeting of the committee on organic unity in Pittsburgh, April 27. Representatives of the two churches closed a three-day session in William Penn Hotel last night, having agreed on major problems of doctrine and government. When fully approved the question will be submitted to the assemblies of the two churches, which meet separately in May.

Ohio Chiropodists Attend Clinic Here

A group of Ohio chiropodists will attend the Western Pennsylvania Chiropody Society's foot clinic in Jenkins Arcade tonight. The clinic is conducted every Tuesday and Friday. Among the Ohio guests will be Dr. Max Harmolin, President of the Ohio College of Chiropody; Dr. Cecil Beach, of Cleveland, and Dr. Harlowe C. Stahl, of Youngstown. After the clinic Dr. Stahl will give an illustrated lecture on the science of bone-muscle manipulations and foot correction.

INCOME TAX RETURNS

Suggestions to Aid in Making Report to the Government for Taxpayers as Well As Non-Taxpayers

Taxes on real estate and personal property paid during the takable year 1931 are deductible. So-called taxes assessed against local benefits such as street paving and drainage, however, are not deductible, since they are considered as an increase to the value of the property assessed. The federal income tax may not be deducted. However, income taxes imposed upon the income of individuals by states may be deducted by an individual on his federal income tax return.

Federal estate taxes are an allowable deduction from the gross income of the estate in computing the net income thereof subject to tax.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Admission taxes are deductible, but the taxpayer must show that account has been kept of the amount paid. Admission taxes apply only to admissions the cost of which is in excess of $3. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them.

License fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinarily deductible. Postage is not a tax, therefore is not deductible. In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

ELECTION FAKE JAILS MAN

Defendants in two election cases pleaded guilty in Criminal Court, before Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Carl Gatto, 515 Greensburg pike, North Versailles Township, was sentenced to serve three to 12 months in jail when he pleaded guilty to voting in the Volpe controlled Fourth District of Wilmerding while a resident of Versailles Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neil, Lincoln Place, were paroled for six months after they explained they had moved from the Thirty-first ward three days before the November election, and returned election day and voted in their old district. Neil is a policeman. Mrs. Neil voted under her maiden name, Marie Williams, she said, as she had registered before her marriage.

LIBRARIES HELP PUPILS WITH ESSAYS

Contestants Study Farewell Address of Washington; April 4 Is Closing Date

Students are swarming the Carnegie libraries of the Pittsburgh district, and libraries of other sections in the tri-state area for a copy of George Washington's Farewell Address, but the libraries are equipped to furnish aid to the seekers, librarians said today.

With almost every possible question on Washington put to them through the years, librarians as a whole can and will furnish considerable help to competitors in the essay contest on the farewell address, being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph.

The contest continues until April 4, and is open to any one under 21 years.

The name, age, address and school affiliation, if any, should be written on an attached piece of paper.

The classification and prizes:

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay, not to exceed 100 words in length, in any class, by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length, by any person between the ages of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal; for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 400 words in length, by any child in the grammar grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5 there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

ARTISTS CLOSE CARNEGIE SHOW

The exhibition of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, which opened February 12, closes today at Carnegie Institute.

Christ Walter, president said:

"The attendance at the exhibition this year will total almost 15,000. The majority of the visitors consider it the best ever presented by the association."

Second Man Freed Of Slaying Charge

William Pittman, Negro, 28, of Mulberry way, is free today following his acquittal in Criminal Court of a charge that he murdered Charles Davis, Negro, 29, of 3036 Mulberry way, during a fight at Penn avenue, near Twenty-ninth street, November 7. William Jackson, Negro, 28, indicted with Pittman, was freed the day before by Visiting Judge Thomas F. Bailey, of Huntingdon County, in a directed verdict of not guilty. It was testified Davis had attacked Pittman with a knife when the latter drew a revolver and fired, and that Jackson had wielded a gas burner on Davis' head during the battle.

VOTES 3 TO 1 AGAINST DRYS

The anti-drys continue to poll more than three to one over the drys with initial returns from 14 more states swelling the total vote to over 2,000,000 in the Literary Digest's nation-wide Prohibition Poll this week, according to figures tabulated in tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

Two million, sixty-three thousand, one hundred and eleven ballots are reported received from 38 states and the District of Columbia, of which 488,335, or 23.66 per cent favor continuance of the Eighteenth Amendment and 1,574,776, or 76.34 per cent, vote for repeal.

The dry vote records a third consecutive gain over the anti-dry vote this week, from 22.61 per cent to 23.66 per cent of the total. In the first returns of this "straw" referendum the drys polled 15.85 per cent.

The fourth report of the 1930 poll asking three questions instead of two, showed a total of 2,000,340 votes, of which 553,337 were for enforcement, 598,252 for modification, and 848,751 for repeal.

Full Day Required To Convict Man Of Hen Theft

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 11.—An entire day of Greene County Criminal Court was required to try a case in which F. E. Santee was convicted of stealing a chicken from Mrs. Violinda Jenkins. Santee has asked for a new trial.

EX-LAWMAKER CANDIDATE

Albert B. Davidson, of Tarentum, former member of the Legislature and member for 13 years of the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs, has announced his platform as candidate for the state House of Representatives from the Thirteenth District. He said:

"I stand for the physical, moral and spiritual welfare of our state; therefore I am not in favor of lowering the standard of our Sabbath day.

"If elected, I will oppose all measures having as their purpose the increasing or laying of new taxes that will place an extra burden on the wage earners."

Albert W. Schott, of Glenshaw, also announced his candidacy for member of the Legislature from the Thirteenth District. He recommended just taxation for the workingman, the right to an honest living coupled with a fair and honest wage, economics in the operation of government and recognition of physical and financial construction.

APPOINTS THREE POLL OFFICERS

H. F. Buchner has been appointed judge of election for Rosslyn Farms by Judge Elder W. Marshall in Quarter Sessions Court. He takes the place made vacant by the death of W. H. Beighel.

Mathilda Steenrod was appointed majority inspector for the Eighth District of the Twelfth Ward, Pittsburgh, in place of J. F. Fitzpatrick, resigned.

Edith Weidel was named minority inspector of the Second District of Springdale in place of Anna Hensel, resigned.

Realignment of the boundary lines of four precincts in McKeesport has been sanctioned on petitions presented by the City Solicitor. Part of the Third District of the Eleventh Ward was joined to the Second District of the Third Ward. Part of the Second District of the Eleventh Ward was joined to the Second District of the Ninth Ward. Part of the Second District of the Third Ward becomes part of the First District of the Seventh Ward and part of the Third District of the Seventh Ward was joined to the Second District of the Third Ward.

Independents Elect 4th Ward Officers

Officers of the Fourth Ward independent political organization were elected and plans for the spring primary were discussed at a meeting last night in Hotel Schenley. It was unanimously agreed to follow the leadership of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern. Officers are: Chairman, James D. White; vice chairman, Anna T. Brennan; secretary, Timothy Fahey, and treasurer, W. J. Moore.

Edgewood Acres Men's Club Formed

The Men's Club, of Edgewood Acres, a new group whose aim is to promote progress in its community, today announced the election of Arthur J. Jackman as president; Dr. Wesley W. Jones, vice president; Edward M. Beck, secretary-treasurer, and H. L. Slemmer, William G. Kerr, P. T. McMahon and A. W. Fisher, directors.

Westinghouse Gets Order From Spain

A $100,000 order for four 132,000-volt transformers and a large amount of switching apparatus for Saltos del Duero, a power company serving Bilbao, Spain, has been received by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. These transformers will be the first of the new surge-proof type recently developed by Westinghouse.

SWEET VOICE ENTRANTS IN SEMI-FINALS

35 Winners in Auditions To Be Heard Saturday; Finals Next Wednesday

Tomorrow afternoon brings together the 35 girls who won in the auditions at the Alvin Theater for what may be termed the "semi-finals" in the WCAE-Sun-Telegraph search for the "girl with the sweetest voice."

They will assemble in the studios of Station WCAE, Gimbel Building, at 4 o'clock for another audition. In this semi-final test five girls are to be selected to appear in the finals in which the judges will end the search for the "sweetest voice" of all the "sweet voices" that have been heard in these auditions.

The five girls in the finals, unlike the girls in the preliminary auditions, will appear on the air in the Sun-Telegraph "Nite Club of the Air" program at 11 o'clock next Wednesday night. Each of these five girls will be given a special piece of copy to read and their friends at home can "listen in." It will be an actual radio audition and will be watched with interest by the hundreds of girls who have taken the test in the preliminary auditions. The 35 girls to appear in tomorrow afternoon's semi-finals are:

Virginia M. Bennett, Arcara, Pa.
Florence R. Bensvanger, 1456 Inverness street, Pittsburgh.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Cut Your Expenses!

The easiest way to cut expenses and save money this winter is to prevent sickness expense. Thousands of women are adopting the health habit of giving a mild laxative to every member of the family once a week. This preventing or checking colds, headaches, dizziness, biliousness, and constipation. NATURE'S REMEDY—NR—being safe, mild and all-vegetable, is ideal for this family use. Try it and save sickness expense. Only 25c.

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Alright.

Nature's Remedy
NR—TABLETS—NR

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

She's all worn out again

Poor girl . . . she has the same old headaches . . . backaches . . . and blues. She ought to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in tablet form.

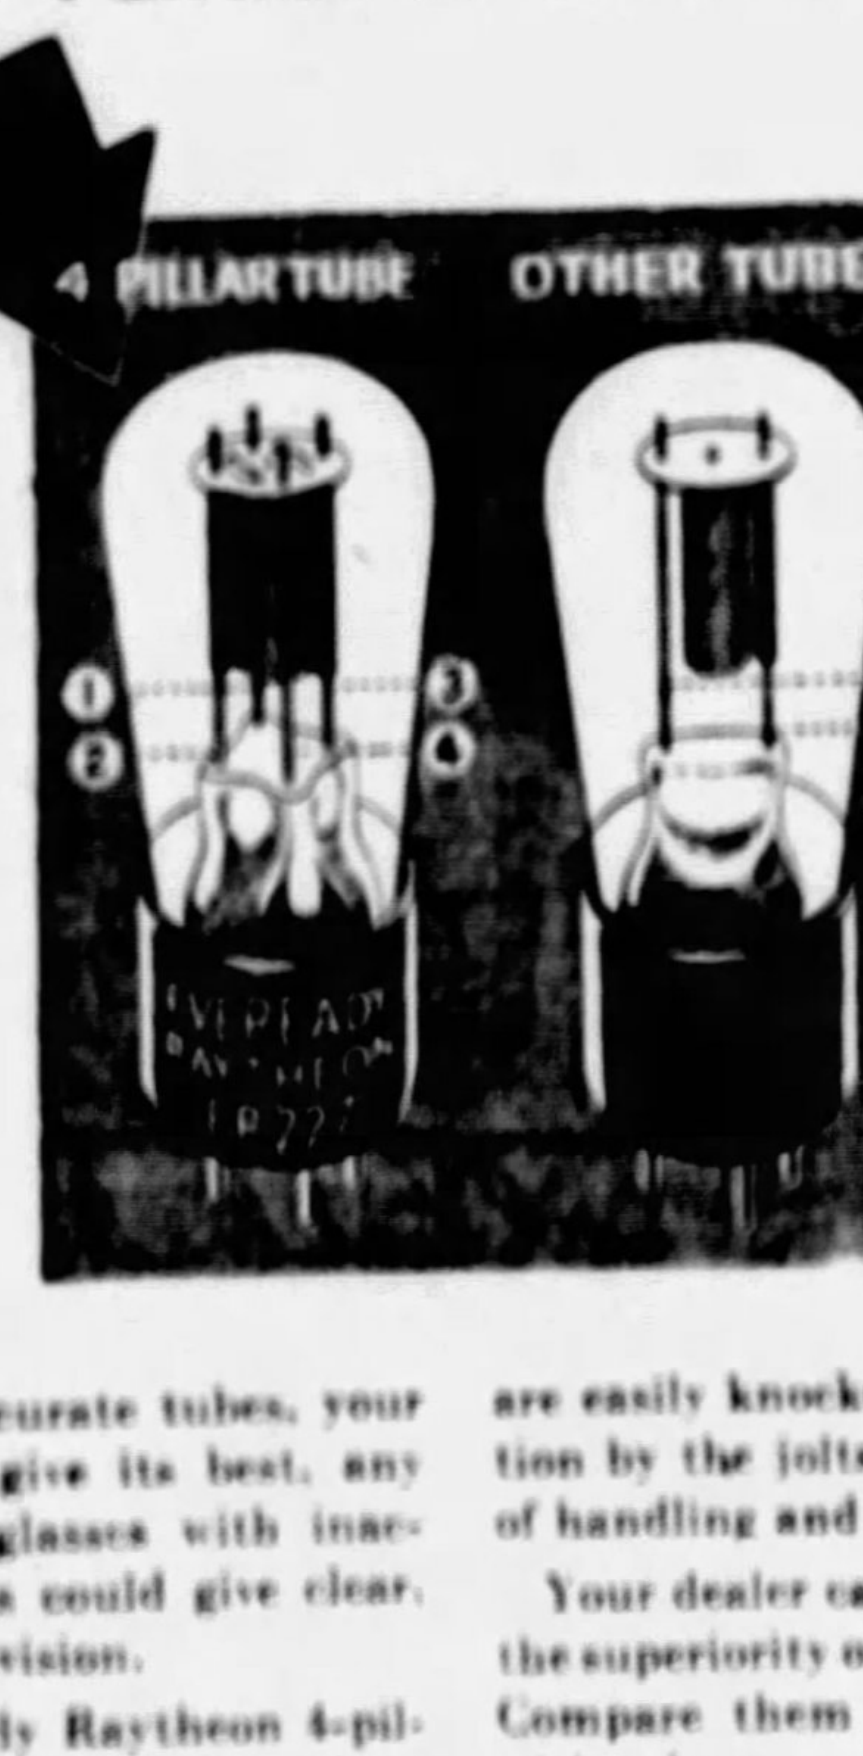
IT'S PERFECTLY SIMPLE...
ACCURATE TUBES
FOR FLAWLESS RECEPTION



WITHOUT accurate tubes, your radio can't give its best, any more than glasses with inaccurate lenses could give clear, undistorted vision.

In Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes, four strong pillars anchor the elements in place. All other tubes use only two supports, and their elements are easily knocked out of position by the jolts and vibration of handling and usage.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is startling. But to realize what an enormous improvement they make, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes . . . then listen!

WARNING! The market is flooded with old-type, slow-heater tubes. Eveready Raytheons are quick-heaters. Modern tubes should heat up in 10 seconds or less.

MUSCULAR—RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Powerful Ointment Heals
OLD SORES
One 35 Cent Box Proves It

Banish it thoroughly and swiftly with famous Peterson's Ointment.

There are such powerfully effective, deep-healing and soothing ingredients in Peterson's that even the first application brings blessed relief—ends soreness, itching, smarting and pain.

Then the unrivaled skin restoratives in Peterson's Ointment start right in to dry up excess discharges and to repair infected cells. Then that old sore disappears for good.

Mr. W. P. Scott, of Monroe, La., was troubled for over a year with a sore on his thigh, but just one box of Peterson's completely healed it after several kinds of treatment had failed. Generous box only 35 cents. All drug stores.

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

THE VOICE of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, America's best-beloved singer, comes to afternoon listeners from KDKA today as a portion of the second act of "Siegfried" is broadcast from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Schumann-Heink

Mme. Schumann-Heink is heard in the role of Erda. Lauritz Melchoir, tenor, has the title role, and Gota Ljungberg, Swedish soprano, sings "Brunnhilde." Also in the cast are Hans Clemens, tenor; Michael Bohnen, bass; Gustav Schutzendorf, baritone; Siegfried Tappolet, bass, and Editha Fleischer, soprano. Artur Bodanzky conducts.

Ruth Etting and the Boswell Sisters are going to help Alex Gray and Nat Shilkret provide the "music that satisfies" in a new spring series of cigaret programs starting next week.

The Boswell Sisters will be heard Monday and Thursday nights; Miss Etting, Wednesday and Saturday nights, and Alex Gray Tuesday and Friday nights. Shilkret's orchestra will support all the artists.

The Boswell Sisters, on WJAS at 7:30 tonight, conclude their current series of sponsored programs.

Program Pointers

EPISODES from the life of John Philip Sousa are portrayed in the "Today and Yesterday" broadcast on WJAS at 8:30.

PAUL WHITEMAN, in Boston continuing his search for promising radio talent, is heard on KDKA at 10 with Mildred Bailey, Jack Fulton, Red McKenzie, the Rhythm Romancers and the King's Jesters.

Ken Murray, stage and screen comedian, and Margaret Schilling, young lyric soprano, are featured in the "Theater of the Air" on WCAE at 10:30.

Leo Reisman celebrates his return from a two-week vacation on WCAE at 9:30. Pilar Arcos, his guest artist, is a singer of Cuban and Spanish melodies.

Two of Pittsburgh's favorite singers, Paul Gannon, tenor, and Virginia Harmon, soprano, are heard with the WCAE Novelty Orchestra at 7:30.

For sport fans, WWSW offers the Tech-Penn State basketball game at 8:15, and the prize fight from the arena at 9:45.

Don Shoup's orchestra broadcasts a new song, "Little Dance Hall Hound," the lyric for which was composed by Nicholas Tarquin, a chef in a Fifth avenue restaurant, on KQV at 9:30.

The smart audience at the Syria Mosque last night at Yushny's Russian revue, "The Blue Bird," caught the spirit of Russian gaiety, and before long snowy-haired dowagers as well as debutantes were singing a Russian song, ending with many da-das—Russian for yes, according to Mr. Yushny.

Frances Heckert was in salamander red chiffon. Virginia Drake wore a striking green velvet gown with a wrap of apricot transparent velvet, collared in sable, and petite Frances Reed wore a green crepe gown having brown velvet for accent and a long mink coat.

* * *

Chooses Black

Georgia Pearson chose a gown of black lace. Mrs. John E. Nelson arrived with her young daughter, Peggy, who wore a spring green wrap over a black velvet gown.

Mrs. E. Paul Tunnell chose black lace, and a blue and green and silver brocade wrap. Others I noted in the brilliant audience were Betty Guiler in cornflower blue crepe and a blue velvet wrap, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson and Neil Stewart Zang.

One of the debs of the season just past, Gretchen Bickford, wore white satin having a scalloped cape with a Nile green wrap, collared in white fox. And she had a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Francis Forsyth wore black chiffon and lace, and Frances Fitzgerald, black lace with a cape of lace; Mrs. George H. Flinn, a black costume; Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, cloth of silver and brown crepe, Mrs. Mortimer Miller, black velvet, and Mrs. Frederic I. Merrick black velvet.

* * *

Velvet Wraps

Others I noted were Florence Carroll in red crepe, and Juliet Hillman in blue crepe. Both had wraps of black velvet. Mrs. George Pearson was in black lace and Sylvia Robertson in black net and lace.

Barbara Ewing was in royal blue lace and had a corsage of orchids. She arrived with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Ewing. Mrs. Francis H. McKnight looked smart in wood-brown crepe and a brief beige lapin jacket.

I also saw Mrs. George Claypool, Mrs. George P. Bassett, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. Dudley Liggett, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. B. R. R. Townsend, Mrs. George S. Baton, Miss Edna Sutton, Mrs. George McKee, Mrs. Edward W. Woods, Mrs. L. B. Cuddy, Mrs. George Macbeth and Mrs. Thomas Hartley.

Resort life at Miami Beach, where a Pittsburgh colony may always be found at this time of year, is becoming gayer and gayer. One of the most colorful affairs was the recent "Night in Havana," held at the Surf Club.

Mrs. Charles Yaegle, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Frederick N. Beegle, of Beaver Falls, were hostesses. Their guests included the William Meyers, Mrs. Harry S. Davison, William Walker, Mrs. Harper Beegle, C. H. Beegle, Fred Bay, Miss Emma Lou Freithoper, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hotchkiss and Dr. Nelson Black.

Mrs. Harry S. Davison and her daughter, Betty, who are the guests of the Charles Yaegles at their Miami Beach place, La Dona Tello, are being much feted.

Baldwin Company's Ex-President Dies

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—(AP.)—William L. Austin, former president and chairman of the board of the Baldwin locomotive works, died last night after a brief illness. He was 80.

When Austin resigned in 1930 as a director in the Baldwin company and the Standard Steel Works, he had been associated with the former concern for 64 years.

'Trip' for Senator Banned by Coolidge

BOSTON, March 11.—(AP.)—William H. Sanger, retiring clerk of the Massachusetts Senate, recalls a ruling by Coolidge when he was Senate President. Asked to intervene when a Senator told another to go to (as Shakespeare used to say), he told the offended one:

ROOT FORMULA DEFEAT SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(INS.)—The League Court fight was thrown into greater confusion today when Senator Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, one of its friends, predicted the Senate would propose American adherence to the tribunal—if at all—upon the same terms which European nations rejected in 1926.

Senator Pittman, long a pro-Court leader, declared the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would write old "Reservation 5" into the resolution of ratification. This reservation, which forbids the court rendering any advisory opinion against the United States, led to rejection of the American terms of adherence by the other signatory powers six years ago.

Pittman announced further that the resolution of ratification would be amended to direct President Hoover to refrain from signing the protocol in behalf of the United States until all other signatory powers have accepted the old Fifth Reservation. Adoption of this additional reservation, which was likewise written into the 1926 terms, will definitely discard the Root formula, upon which President Hoover last year proposed American adherence.

POPE TO TEST NEW RAILROAD

VATICAN CITY, March 11.—(AP.)—The Vatican's new railroad, said to be the smallest line in the world, will be ready in a day or so for its first test.

Pope Pius himself will ride in the first train and thereafter the road will be used to transport building materials for a time. It will not be dedicated, however, for several months.

The Vatican railroad is not only one of the smallest in the world, it also has one of the world's finest trains. It consists of three coaches—one for the throne, another containing a little chapel, and the third a private coach in which the Pontiff may dine and sleep.

No Pope has ridden in a railroad train since 1870.

Grace Entertains Mellon at Aiken

AIKEN, S. C., March 11.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, who resigned recently as Secretary of the Treasury to become ambassador to the Court of St. James, was a guest at a luncheon given by Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and Mrs. Grace at their winter home here.

Mr. Mellon came to Aiken from Augusta, where he is spending several weeks before going to London. With him were S. Parker Gilbert, internationally known financier, of New York, and Mrs. Gilbert.

Simms, Bride Plan New Ranch Home

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 11.—(AP.)—Former Congressman Albert G. Simms and his bride, who until Wednesday was Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former Congresswoman from Illinois, plan to erect a $35,000 home on the Simms ranch northwest of the city.

HOOVER SENDS BRIAND WREATH

PARIS, March 11.—(AP.)—There was a wreath from President Hoover among today's floral offerings which have made a conservatory of the Quai d'Orsay clockroom where Aristide Briand lies in state.

It was tied with the tri-color on which was inscribed in French: "To Monsieuer Briand—The President of the United States."

There were other flowers from United States Ambassador Edge and from statesmen of a dozen other countries. One of the gifts bore the Rumanian colors and a card which read: "To the great champion of peace, from Carol, of Rumania."

Thousands of humble Frenchmen have passed by the bier and today at the noon hour the city's workmen crowded into the room. Many of them bore upon their breasts their wartime decorations.

The national funeral will be held tomorrow.

LADY LEYLAND, AMERICAN, DIES

LONDON, March 11.—(AP.)—Jeannie, Lady Naylor Leyland, who as Jeannie Chamberlain, of Cleveland, O., was a noted American beauty of the 1890's, died here last night.

Since the death of her husband, Sir Herbert Naylor Leyland, 33 years ago, she had lived quietly at Nantclwyd Hall, Denbighshire, but during the previous 10 years she was one of London's best known hostesses and a friend of King Edward VII.

When her two sons, the elder of whom is now a baronet, were at school at Eton, rumors of an attempt to kidnap them resulted in the employment of private detectives for their protection.

4th Man Arrested In Niles Kidnaping

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 11.—(INS.)—Mike Harrison, 39, of Youngstown, today was arrested in connection with the kidnaping of 12-year-old James De Jute, Jr., Niles schoolboy, 10 days ago.

Arrest of Harrison came within a few hours of the third arrest of Tony Larocco, who, it was revealed today, had been secretly indicted as the "brains" of the kidnaping gang. Two other men are held in Warren under indictment in the case.

Speed King Campbell Welcomed in Britain

SOUTHAMPTON, England, March 11.—(AP.)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, who set a new automobile speed record in Florida recently, came back to a civic welcome here.

Speaking of his success, he said:

'Lost' du Pont Yacht Sighted Off Coast

BEAUFORT, S. C., March 11.—(AP.)—A message to the Coast Guard station here from the Cape Lookout lightship today said the Du Pont yacht, Nahama, unreported for several days on a cruise down the Atlantic coast, was sighted late yesterday, 40 miles southeast of the lightship and was in no danger.

After two meetings without an issue of their magazine, "Congeries," members of the Rosslyn Farms Woman's Club welcomed it back yesterday when they met with Mrs. R. M. Helm, Park avenue. In the home and garden section of the magazine, Mrs. W. C. Plummer had a paper on George and Martha Washington, giving intimate sidelights on their life at Mt. Vernon and how they managed their estate. Mrs. W. W. Bell contributed current events for the "Today and Yesterday" section and under fine arts, Mrs. Roy Musselman sketched most interestingly the career of Maude Adams. The literary section brought the concluding installment of Helen Baglin Galleher's serial "The Deserted Clearing," which she prefaced with the complete story for the benefit of those who had not heard it. The "lost and founds" included even a dog. Mrs. E. P. Schempp and Mrs. R. L. Cathcart presided at the charmingly appointed tea table.

$200,000 Cumberland High School Burns

CUMBERLAND, Md., March 11.—The Green Street Junior High School was destroyed by fire early today, causing loss of $200,000. Eleven hundred pupils and 28 teachers had a holiday today as the result. Henry L. McGee, fireman, was overcome by smoke.

Marian Redding, Harrisburg Man Wed

Announcement is made of the marriage at 11 o'clock this morning, in the home of Mrs. Paul Leitch, of Woodwell street, of her sister, Miss Marian Redding, to Emlen C. Heidelbaugh, of Harrisburg. The Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day, of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, was the officiant. Immediately after the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast for 30 guests in Reymers.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Leitch, as matron of honor. The bride wore a gown of powder blue crepe and carried Johanna Hill roses, and Mrs. Leitch appeared in Persian rose crepe and carried Talisman roses. Serving as best man was John McCartney.

Mr. and Mrs. Heidelbaugh sailed for Bermuda. After May 1 they will live in Westover drive, New Cumberland.

Miss Judith Ashinsky To Marry on Sunday

Miss Judith Ashinsky, daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. Aaron M. Ashinsky, of Hobart street, Squirrel Hill, has chosen Sunday as the day for her marriage to Nathan Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rosen. The ceremony will take place in the Beth Hamedrish Hagodol Synagogue, Washington street, at 5 o'clock. Officiating will be Rabbi Ashinsky and his sons-in-law, Rabbi Nachman H. Ebin and Rabbi Irving Miller, of New York.

Mrs. N. H. Ebin, sister of the bride-elect, will be matron of honor, and bridesmaids will include Miss Esther Hadassah Ashinsky, sister of the bride-elect; Miss Ida Rosen, sister of the bridegroom-elect, and Miss Freda Ebin, niece of the bride-elect. Abe Rosen will serve as best man. Dr. Nathan Ashinsky, brother of Miss Ashinsky, and Philip Ash, of Detroit, her cousin, will usher.

The reception will be held at 8:30 o'clock that evening in the Venetian room of Webster Hall, and Monday evening the congregation of Chofetz Chaim will give a reception in their honor.

Woman Betrayed Fascists, Found Slain

HELSINGFORS, March 11.—(INS.)—Mrs. Minna Kraucher was found murdered in her apartment here today, believed a victim of political revenge. Mrs. Kraucher, it was learned, had collected funds for support of the recent Fascist uprising against the Finnish government, and then informed authorities of the names of the donors.

EXTREME MODELS SHOULD BE CHOSEN WITH MUCH CAUTION

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 11.—Sweet simplicity or subtle sophistication, what is your pleasure? For these two extremes are both well represented in the evening frocks seen recently along the Riviera. And it is known to us all that the styles worn at Monte Carlo, Cannes and other delectable resorts are inevitably forerunners of the real spring mode. Both modes are most attractive, when they are worn by the right type. But so often the charming young girl chooses the slinky, sophisticated frock, while the woman who is at least old enough, if not wise enough to know better, selects and wears an adorably girlish frock that is a mass of ruffles. Extreme harness back and ruffles, each has its place, and each its charms.

But to don our evening frocks again. Chiffon is making a strong come-back, both plain and lame weaves being used. Satin is well represented, there being always clients for the satin frock that has a new twist, especially when it is black satin. Ice-blue satin is tremendously popular under Southern moons, too.

* * *

TODAY'S SKETCHES show two very extreme frocks. First is a lovely frock sketched at Cannes, a frock that is a sure forerunner of the coming summer styles. It is a young girl's dancing frock of white and silver lame chiffon with the delicate silver motifs scattered in flower-like patches over the entire frock, rufflings as well. A good feature for dancing is the new skirt length, just clearing the instep. The decolletage is the same front and back, which is in itself a novelty these days of harness backs. The ruffled belt has two knotted ends at the center back.

* * *

THE OTHER FROCK is by the Maison Donguy and is a most sophisticated model done in black satin with a silver sequined harness-bodice. An odd note is had in the glove-sleeves of satin. These flare above the elbow in the manner of deep gauntlets and are edged with sequins.

Mexican Chief Gets Rum Runner Threat

MEXICO CITY, March 11.—(AP.)—Reports reaching here from border points today said Leoncio Toledo, commandant of police in Mexicali, Lower California, received letters from the United States threatening him with death because of his recent activity in attempting to stop airplane smuggling of liquor and drugs from Mexico into the United States.

Explorer Wells Wins Divorce in Mexico

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—Carveth Wells, explorer and author, announced here that a final decree of divorce had been granted him in the state of Morelos, Mexico, on February 17.

Wells married Luard Theodora Stirling, the daughter of James Stirling, of Salmon Arm, British Columbia, in 1910.

Chicago's Builders On Five-Day Week

CHICAGO, March 11.—(INS.)—Approximately 150,000 mechanics and helpers in Chicago's building trades today went to work on a five-day basis at wages reduced 20 per cent from previous levels.

The five-day week in the building trades here marks the first time a large American city has tried this experiment, designed to increase employment.

We Are Now Addressing You Purchasers Who Have 30-Day Accounts or Who Pay Cash for Your Wearing Apparel

6 MONTHS TO PAY

If you were satisfied beyond the shadow of a doubt that you could have nearly 200 days or 6 months to pay your wearing apparel bills instead of only 30 days and could be sure of equal values, without any sacrifice of the courtesy, service or consideration you're accustomed to, would this much more liberal credit accommodation interest you?

We say "without any sacrifice of the courtesy, service or consideration you're accustomed to." We say it because perhaps you know through friends or others who have dealt or are dealing with regular installment houses where quite often very little courtesy or consideration is shown if for any reason whatsoever you become delinquent, or fall behind in your payments. The iron-clad lease which you sign at the average wearing apparel installment house is virtually a judgment note which is more than just a lien on your purchase. It gives the credit manager an excuse for persecuting you until the account is paid up.

A Harris Charge Different!

Let us explain the difference between a Harris 6-Months Charge and the iron-clad regular installment account—also the similarity of the Harris Charge to the OPEN 30-DAY ACCOUNT of the other department stores: You don't sign your independence or your pride away when you Open a Harris Charge. You are not dealt with harshly or arraigned when unforseen circumstances or unemployment make it impossible for you to keep from becoming delinquent. Harris collection methods make friends instead of enemies.

There is no difference between the courtesy, service and consideration you receive on a Harris 6-Months Charge and the decent American treatment you receive on a 30-day Charge at the other department stores, except that you are granted much more time to pay and may have your money refunded if you find you could have bought for less anywhere.

A Harris Refund Dispels All Doubt

The Harris Department Store makes this Refund Offer to satisfy purchasers who may not believe it possible for a house extending such long-time credit to compete in price with the other department stores that are still holding to the 30-day system. The Harris Policy has ceased to be an experiment. We find we can book more accounts with this new policy; and that the larger increase in new accounts, supplemented by the greater vigilance on the part of our buyers in the manufacturing and importing markets, has resulted in a patronage-permanency and patronage-growth that have put this New Harris Policy beyond the experimental stage.

Come! See if you don't think it has! Try 6-months-to-pay instead of 30 days! You'll not be obligated! A visit will be appreciated even if you don't open an account. Why stint yourself paying 30-day accounts when you can budget your wearing-apparel purchases same as you do your radio, electric refrigerator, automobile and other progressive needs which contribute to your social and home life.

BANDITS LOOT N. Y. THEATER

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Three men, two pointing revolvers, last night held up the doorman and manager of the Selwyn Theater in the heart of the mid-town theatrical section, and escaped with about $1,000.

Crowds were hurrying along Forty-second street as one of the men pushed a revolver through the grill of the box office where Jack Wallen, the manager, was computing the day's receipts. Another entered the box office and tied Wallen's hands and feet. The third pinioned the doorman's hands behind his back.

The doorman, Arthur Capriles, was released as soon as the money was scooped up. He ran into the street shouting the alarm as the trio disappeared in the throng of pedestrians.

DUBLIN CHEERS FREED MEN

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 11.—(AP)—Hundreds of Irishmen gathered today at the hotels to cheer for political prisoners released yesterday as one of the first acts of the new De Valera administration.

"Up the rebels!" a cry not heard since 1921, rang through the streets again and platoons of the Irish Republican Army paraded without interference by the police.

For the first time since the enactment of the recent emergency laws the newspaper The Republic appeared in its old form. Frank Ryan, the editor, was one of those released yesterday.

The newly-liberated prisoners who come from the country districts will leave for their homes tomorrow and probably will have a great send-off. On Sunday afternoon some of the men will speak at a demonstration in College Green.

'Dry Up,' Baby Orders Judge; 3 Flee Fine

So large is his vocabulary his father, S. H. Smith, had to declare a verbal "moratorium" to keep from paying for Junior's words at the rate of $1 each.

Judge Harry H. Porter was telling Mr. and Mrs. Smith to "compose" their differences when Junior spoke up. Among other things, he said:

The Judge declared:

"Sir and madam, one more peep out of that lad and I'll fine you each $5."

This figured at $1 a word, so Junior was rushed out of the Judge's range of hearing. Then the Smiths made up.

HUNT BELL GUN WITH MAGNET

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 11.—A 15-inch magnet with a lifting power of three tons, this morning was swishing through the Monongahela River near the Nemacolin ferry, searching for the murder gun in the Constable Jack Donohoe killing.

Former County Detective Tony Bell, who confessed participation in the murder after being acquitted, has accused R. C. Bledsoe, also a former county detective, now under indictment for the murder, of tossing the gun in the river.

Bell, who made his confession in Buffalo, N. Y., where he was arrested on an extortion charge by federal officers, was returned there today for trial.

NEW RAID LINKS M'KEESPORTER

For the second time within three days, Frank Schmidt, 52, alleged proprietor of the Port Vue Hotel, Walnut street, McKeesport, was held for Federal Court today on a charge of sale and possession of liquor.

Prohibition agents testified they had purchased a pint of whisky for 50 cents in a rear room of the hotel yesterday. Schmidt's first tangle with the law occured Wednesday when he was arrested during a prohibition raid. He was arraigned Thursday. Bond in both instances was fixed at $2,000.

Thief Routed, Looting Purse at Bridge Party

AID TO CITY UNDER TALBOT BILL QUESTIONED

POLITICS
Consider Steps for State Relief
By MARK SHIELDS

Preliminary steps toward state relief in the existing economic emergency are being considered by a number of influential Pittsburghers. They are taking the proposition up with business, financial and welfare leaders of Philadelphia and other sections of the state, and will if they proceed to a conclusion, ask politicians of rival factions to meet with them in conference and adopt a program of relief legislation, appropriations and taxation.

Mr. Shields

The adoption of this plan would necessitate a special session of the Legislature, but it is recognized that if complete harmony could be secured on a program such a session could be run through in two weeks, merely the time necessary fo. the mechanical processes of legislation.

Politicians will be sounded out on their attitude toward such a conference. Invited to a conference would be:

Gov. Pinchot, State Chairman Edward Martin, Mayor Kline, Mayor Moore, of Philadelphia; Senator John McClure, of Delaware County; Senator James J. Coyne, James Hazlett, of Philadelphia, political lieutenant of William S. Vare; Senator Samuel Salus, of Philadelphia; Senator Harry Scott, of Centre County; possibly Representative Reed, of Dauphin; Representative Talbot, of Delaware County; County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, of Allegheny County; Speaker C. Jay Goodnough, of Cameron; some political leader from the anthracite region and one from the bituminous section.

The plight of the various communities of the state would be laid before such a conference, though politicians, probably better than any one else, realize conditions. They would be asked to consider the problem as something in which only the state can properly act.

* * *

Suggested Measures May Find Favor

It would be pointed out that the state can diversify taxes, that possibly some suggested revenue measures which were unpopular at the recent special session might find favor now because of the unquestioned expansion of need, and the imperative requirements of relief.

If the Talbot bill is held constitutional probably the Legislature would be asked to invoke its terms for an appropriation far larger than $10,000,000 a sum more nearly adequate to the emergency. There would also be proposals for public works programs.

And joined to the appropriations would be revenue measures. One thought is that first steps might be taken toward a state bond issue, Pennsylvania having a small bonded debt for such a rich commonwealth. The only bonds now outstanding are road bonds, which are being retired through taxes on motorists.

Suggestions would be launched for new forms of taxation, some of which might require constitutional amendments. That would be true if the conference agreed upon a state income tax, which many other states have. The trend, however, is toward taxes which would be emergencies rather than permanent imposts.

But nothing would be done, no move toward the calling of a session would be taken, unless there was complete agreement among the divergent political elements upon a comprehensive program of sufficient scope to cope with the situation. Out of such a conference would emerge something which might be known as a "Pennsylvania plan."

There would not be the pulling and tugging of political advancement such as occurred in the last special session. There would be individual political capital in such an accomplishment for no individual above any other, but all could feel a satisfaction in having co-operatively attempted something for the welfare of their state.

* * *

Interest Stimulated By Bond Discussion

The interest of the Pittsburghers has been stimulated by the discussion of city and county bond issues here, the payment of which would fall on real estate alone. Some of those most responsive to the new plan are numbered among the emergency welfare group which has been promoting the bond issues as an "ace in the hole," a last resort. They also have been against any special session individually called and without preliminary conference in the spirit of helpfulness to the whole state. They realize that Philadelphia and many other communities are facing even worse situations than that which confronts Pittsburgh.

Frank R. Phillips, head of the Emergency Welfare Association, is sounding out business associates here and in the East as to their reactions to the suggested conference.

Senator Coyne, among political leaders, is known to approve such a meeting, and a consequent special session, if a program can be devised. Coyne points out that a session as curtailed as would be possible in an atmosphere of harmony, could be held during the present primary, probably the last week in March and the first in April, without interfering with the campaign of any individual.

But without the preliminary conference, without agreement, any session would see the same bickering, the same stagnation, the same play for political preferment as marked that of last year and would be useless. It would be more difficult for any political leader to play selfish politics in a conference than in a legislative session.

BENEFIT PARTY BURGLAR ROUTED
Food Truck Driver Kidnaped, Beaten, Robbed of $100 By Thugs Hiding in Car

A burglar who interrupted a benefit bridge party in the home of Miss Jean Panich, at 915 North Negley avenue, looting a guest's purse of $1.50 last night, was being sought by police today.

A score of young women were attending the party, given by Miss Panich, for the benefit of the Junior Hadassah, when the robber climbed a rear porch and entered through a second-floor window. He was ransacking purses left in a bedroom when M. Horowitz, who lives with the Panich's, felt a draught and found the window open.

FOUND LOOTING ROOM

Horowitz investigated and found the man selecting a squirrel coat left in the room by a guest. When the burglar observed Horowitz he ran to the window and escaped.

Excitement prevailed when the young women downstairs heard of the burglar's visit. Police were summoned and learned that the cash had been stolen from the purse of Miss Dorothy Shapera, of 610 North St. Clair street.

Two bandits who slugged, kidnaped and robbed Samuel Breen, of 5873 Douglas street, driver for Steinberg's market, at 2136 Murray avenue, after he had delivered an order in Greenfield avenue, were being sought by police today.

DRIVER BEATEN, ROBBED

Secreting themselves in Breen's truck, the pair slugged him with the butts of their revolvers and drove in it to Oakland. During the ride one of the thugs took $100 from Breen's pocket and ordered him out of the truck in Oakland avenue, police said. The pair then sped away in the truck which contained several meat orders.

Two bandits obtained $5 in the holdup last night of the grocery of John Bousky, at 1089 Peebles street. Bousky was alone in the store when the thugs entered.

Poor Improvement Gives 64,468 Meals

A report of activities of the improvement of the Poor, Duquesne way, in February, issued by H. W. Shepard, shows that the organization provided 64,468 meals to destitute men and women, and provided lodging for 23,313 men.

In the family relief department help was provided for 2,578 families. There were 2,598 grocery orders issued, 2,392 quarts of milk distributed, 6,475 bushels of coal, 557 articles of clothing, 607 pairs of shoes, $564.50 paid in rent, 2,367 office visits recorded and 767 visits made to homes.

Bankruptcy Sought By Station Agent

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today by Franklin William Looman, of Beaver street, Sewickley, a railroad station agent. He listed his liabilities at $20,057.45, his assets as $1,725.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.,
March 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

In one of my little poems I said the bankers were the first to go on the "dole," the "wrath of the mighty" ascended on me. Even the Wall Street Journal (Wall street's house organ) editorially said I should confine my jokes to some semblance of truth. Now I want to be fair even with the bankers, for they are pretty touchy now. I have had critics come out and say: "As an actor old Bill is not so hot." Well, I just wanted to come out and call him a liar, but in my heart and conscience I knew he was right. So I know how you "boys" feel. Now if you will take this money and loan it out to a lot of the little fellows that need it, you bankers got a chance to redeem yourselves. But I am not kidding you. People are not "pointing with pride" to your record in this crisis up to now. Will be glad to reprint any alibis.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers

Judge to Sit in Kline Trial Conferring With All the Counsel

COL. E. L. KEARNS   ALEX O'DRAIN   ANDREW T. PARK   ZENO HENNINGER

EDWARD G. COLL   CHARLES B. PRICHARD   JUDGE THOMAS D. FINLETTER   JAMES M. GALBREATH   GEORGE F. P. LANGFITT

The legal conference at Hotel Schenley today as Judge Finletter, Philadelphian appointed to sit at Mayor Kline's trial, conferred with all counsel involved before he proceeded to Butler, scene of the trial. The prosecuting counsel: District Attorney Park and his assistant, Langfitt; the various defense counsel: Attorneys Coll, Prichard and Kearns, of Pittsburgh, and Attorneys Galbreath (the former judge in Butler County) and Henninger, of Butler. Mr. O'Drain is Judge Finletter's secretary, arrived with him this morning. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

DOCTOR HURT IN DOUBLE CRASH

Dr. George S. Rectenwald, of 1212 Wightman street, and his chauffeur, George Lewis, a Negro, of 7518 Tioga street, were injured severely early today when the auto in which they were riding was wrecked in Center avenue.

Police said that the car came down Fullerton street and crashed into the York Stokes Tailor Shop, at Center avenue, wrecking the front of the place, then traveled five blocks up Center avenue, hit an iron pole on the curbing and plunged into the front of the Pearl Beauty Shoppe, at 2033.

Dr. Rectenwald and Lewis were taken to the Passavant Hospital, where, doctors said, their conditions were not serious.

They were arrested on suspicious person charges.

Measles Lead City Quarantine Cases

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 10; measles, 29; whooping cough, 13; chickenpox, 1; mumps, 6, and pneumonia, 10.

TAX NOT PAID, 600 LOSE VOTE

The Registration Commission had today stricken from the voting list the names of 600 persons who had voted on tax receipts issued between November 3, 1929, and April 26, 1930, and who had failed to pay taxes since, according to J. K. Morrow, chairman of the commission.

Morrow said those who had not paid taxes within the two-year period required by law were dropped. The primary election this year is on April 26.

Voters stricken off the lists of the Registration Commission for alleged irregularities in obtaining tax receipts may be enrolled for the spring primary, according to an opinion submitted by County Solicitor J. P. Fife to County Delinquent Tax Collector John Brown, Jr.

Bandits Bind Woman, Rob Gas Station

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 11.—Police today were searching for two robbers who tied Mrs. Mary Wilson, 48, to a chair in her gasoline station near Export and escaped with $12 last night. Mrs. Wilson was found bound by her son at 3 a. m.

Eight in Front; 'V' Represents Rumble Rider
By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Hank Ford launched his new V-8 yesterday.

The 8 means the number of people up in front. And the V is the shape of the poor guy in the rumble seat.

Hank has already sold 20,000,000 cars and is on his second 20,000,000. From there he will gradually work up to the climax.

We might as well give you the rest of the statistics now that we have softened up. Henry employs 70,000 men at his River Rouge plant. His 40,000,000 Fords will generate the power of Niagara Falls multiplied by 200. But nobody ever went under a Ford in a barrel. If you put those 40,000,000 Fords bumper to bumper the traffic situation would be exactly the way it is now.

Allowing for 40,000,000 Ford chauffeurs and five people to a car, that makes the population of the United States exactly 200,000,000 at 16 miles to the gallon.

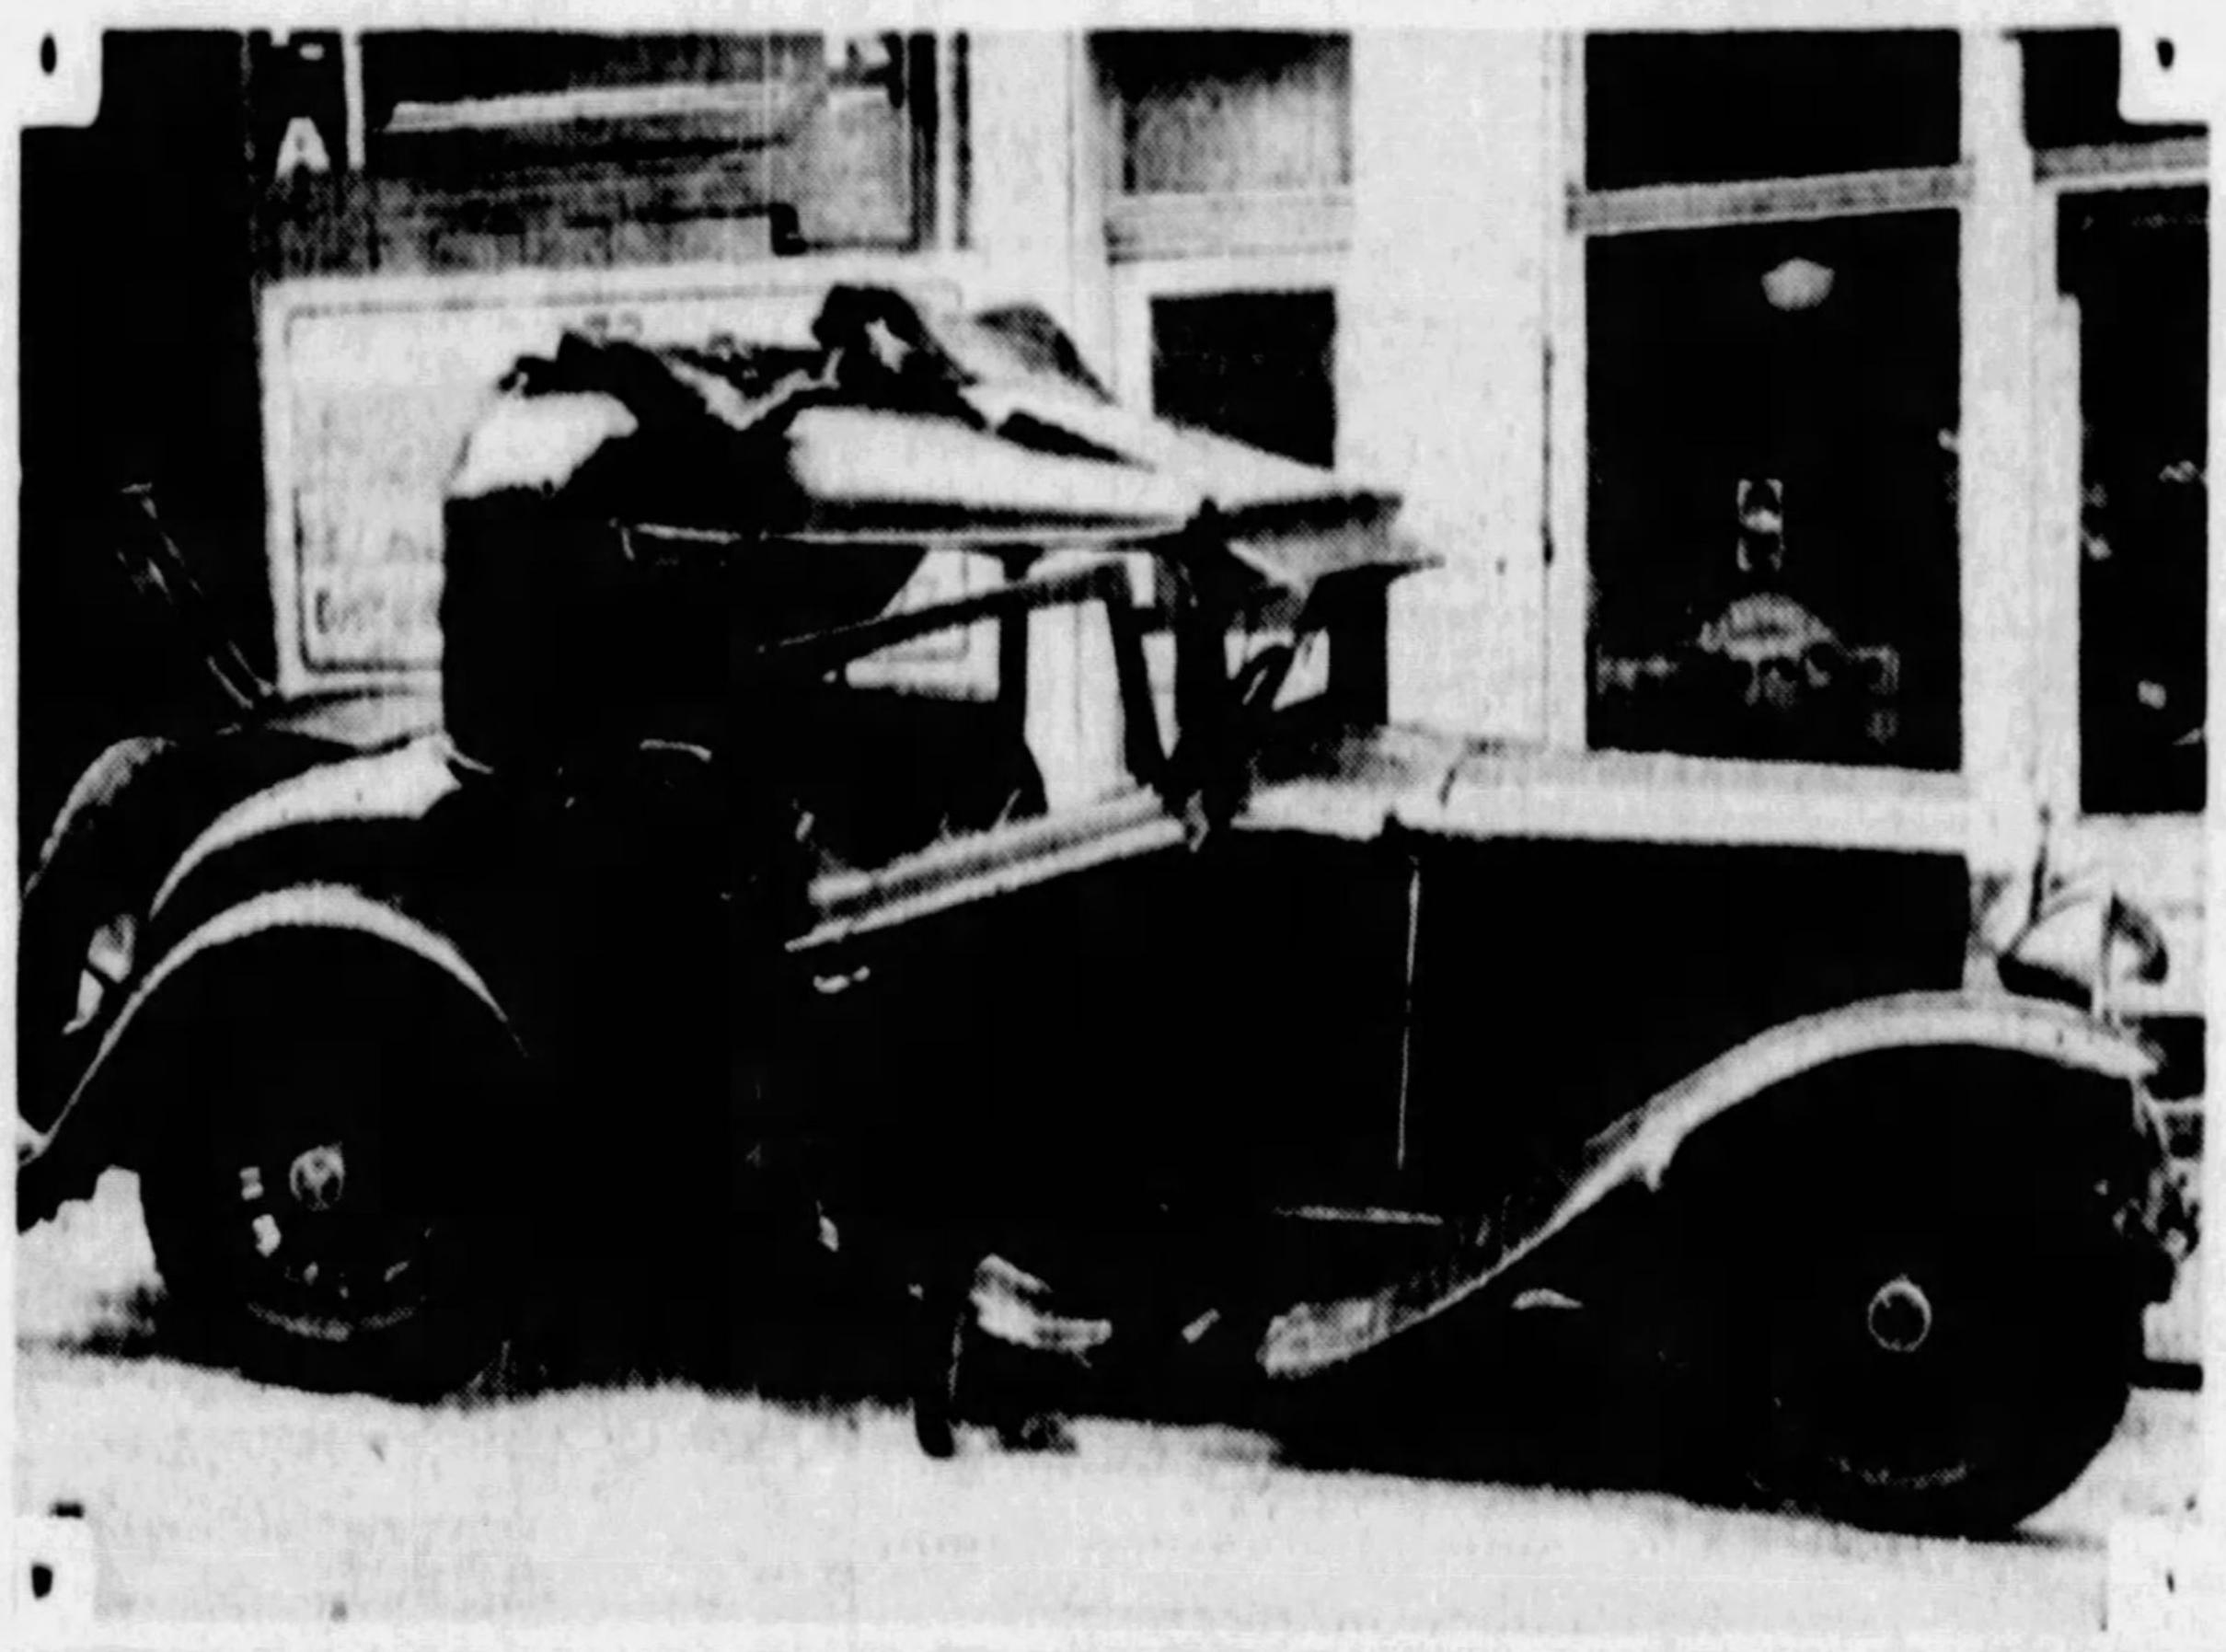
WRECKED AT END OF HILL DASH



DR. GEORGE S. RECTENWALD'S WRECKED AUTOMOBILE TODAY AFTER ITS TWO SMASH-UPS

LOOT CARBARN AT CARRICK

Thirteen fare boxes, containing an unestimated amount of money, were stolen, and a dozen lockers rifled of $400 by thieves who jimmied entrance through a side window into the Carrick carbarns, early today, according to a police report.

The lockers contain the carmen's tokens and change for today's business, according to police. Two windows were forced to complete the robbery, the one an outside window, and the other leading into the locker room. Police were told there was no one in the barns at the time of the robbery.

House Hears Chinese Authority on Silver

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(INS.)—A well-groomed Americanized Chinese merchant, of New York, discussed the silver issue with the House Coinage Committee today.

K. C. Li, Chinese importer and exchange expert and president of the Wah Soong Trading Company, of New York, described silver as a medium of currency in China for more than 5,000 years and declared it should not be dealt with as merely a commodity.

'Bartenders Guide' In Library Scored

CAMDEN, N. J., March 11.—(INS.)—Because it kept on its shelves such bibulous literature as the Bantenders' Guide and directions for ways of making brandies, liquors and other alcoholic beverages, the Camden public library was under attack today by Mrs. A. Haines Lippincott, chairman of the Law Enforcement League of New Jersey.

BANKS GET BIDS FOR BABY BONDS

Prospective purchase of United States "Baby Bonds" increased in Pittsburgh today with the announcement that two large banks have received requests for $33,100 in the bonds, which will be ready for delivery March 15, according to the Western Pennsylvania headquarters of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization directing the sale here.

The organization yesterday mailed letters to 25,000 potential purchasers. The campaign for the bond sale opened Monday.

The letters were signed by Thomas A. Dunn, regional chairman, and Frank C. Harper, chairman for Pittsburgh. They reminded that the baby bonds represented a safe investment, inasmuch as they were bona fide Treasury certificates, purchasable without questioning at banks, and matured in one year with 2 per cent interest.

Talks on the baby bond drive will be given tonight at the Turtle Creek Chamber of Commerce by Joseph T. Miller, secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Water Company.

Egyptian University Guarded in Strike

CAIRO, Egypt, March 11.—(AP.)—A strong force of police is on duty today in the neighborhood of the Egyptian University, where all the students are on strike.

The strike resulted from the sudden transfer of Dr. Taha Hussein, a blind Arabic scholar, from the post of dean of the faculty of letters to a subordinate position in the department of education. He recently objected because honorary degrees were conferred on prominent members of the government.

Counterfeit Bills Gambled In Dice Game Clue to Ring

During a dice game Saturday night in Greensburg some counterfeit $5 Federal Reserve Bank notes were put into the game and now United States Secret Service operatives are interrogating alleged participants of the game in efforts to learn the identity of the passer of the "queer" money. Three of the notes were later put into circulation and recovered by the Federal officers.

Earl Ted Wright, 29, of Greensburg, said to have been among those present at the game, was questioned yesterday by W. A. Landvoight, Secret Service operative in charge of the Pittsburgh district, at the latter's office in the Federal Building. Today Paul Del Vitto, said to be a pool room proprietor in Akron, O., and alleged to have "backed" the dice game, will be interrogated, it was said.

Wright was turned over to the Secret Service men by the Greensburg police and an attorney for Del Vitto was said to have guaranteed the appearance of the latter for investigation. Through the investigation the Secret Service operatives hope to learn the source of supply of the fake notes and possibility of a "ring" preying upon gambling games to circulate the phoney money.

RELIEF ACT'S LEGALITY ARGUED
State Supreme Court Sits Here in Test on Measure Passed to Help Jobless

Attorney General William A. Schnader today questioned whether Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are entitled to aid under the Talbot act appropriating $10,000,000 for unemployment relief in Pennsylvania, in his argument on the constitutionality of the bill before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court opening its spring session here today.

Schnader argued that Pittsburgh and Philadelphia now do not have poor boards and therefore do not come under the provisions of the Talbot act.

Judge John W. Kephart disagreed from his stand and questioned whether or not the old poor boards in these cities, abandoned several years ago, were not merged with the present welfare departments which are carrying out the work of the poor boards.

"Our function here is a broad one, I conceive it to be our duty to uphold the constitutionality of this law unless we are shown unmistakably that it is unconstitutional. We should not consider petty features."

Members of the court and Schnader agreed that the most important part of the argument was to show that the Legislature, which passed the Talbot act during the last special session, confined itself to the subject to the call by the Governor.

SEVEN JUDGES

For the arguments to hear which the spring session of the court was advanced from next Monday to today, the entire seven judges are sitting. It is Justice W. B. Linn's first appearance.

The Dauphin County Court upheld the act and a favorable decision by the Supreme Court early would release state funds for the work.

The bill was passed by the special session of Legislature last December.

Former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper will argue for the constitutionality of the law and former Attorney George E. Alter, of Pittsburgh, will be associated with him.

QUESTIONS INVOLVED

Five questions are involved in the appeal. The Dauphin County judges ruled on the questions as follows:

1—An act is valid although it passed a special session and was not a subject designated by the Governor in his call, which appropriates money without providing revenue or other means for its payment, when the total estimated revenues for the biennium have already been fully appropriated, which appropriates money for state aid to poor districts, which fails to give notice in its title and imposes duties on county officials.

2—The Legislature may ignore constitutional limitations on its power by asserting that it is exercising the police power.

3—Evidence is not admissible to show that the total estimated revenues for a biennium had been fully appropriated prior to the passage of the act and the appropriation would create a state debt.

4—The Secretary of Welfare cannot pay out money after advice of the attorney general that a law is unconstitutional, but his advice is not binding on the State Treasurer.

5—The Dauphin court refused to hand down findings of fact asked by the commonwealth.

Hiker Found Dead, Left Suicide Note

RAIL HEAD SEES ROADS HURT BY HARSH RULE

Over-regulation and Excess Costs Heaped On Carriers, Williamson Asserts Here

Charges that the railroads are over-regulated and that the attitude of government towards business is too paternalistic were made by F. E. Williamson, recently elected president of the New York Central Railroad, in an address before the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh at its annual dinner at the William Penn Hotel last night. The speech was the first public address made by Williamson since he became president of the road.

He pointed to the vast expenditures which the steam lines are required to make for purely nonproductive purposes, such as the elimination of grade crossings. While these improvements are for the public good, he declared, the New York Central's proportion of the expense for proposed grade crossing eliminations in New York State alone would amount to $128,265,000.

He also called attention to tax assessments made on railroads for street and drainage improvements which do not add to railroad revenue, and he further stressed expense levied on railroads to change bridges and relocate tracks to provide for inland waterway improvements. In summarizing the effects of these drains on rail revenue Williamson said:

"What that means is that the railroads in such cases would be compelled to spend vast amounts of money to help somebody take business away from them.

"The railroads are an over-regulated industry. They are compelled to compete with transportation agencies not only not regulated, but subsidized.

"We cannot and do not object to the existence of other transportation agencies, but we can and do object to their fostering and maintaining at the public expense in competition with an industry carried on entirely at private cost."

Commenting on other industries, Williamson said that the government has engaged in the shipping, wheat and cotton businesses without making a profit. He declared that other industries are over-paternalized.

Flames Peril Four At Salem College

SALEM, W. Va., March 11—(AP.)—Four students of Salem College had narrow escapes when the college gymnasium was destroyed by fire early today. Awakened when the burning ceiling of their room fell on their beds, the four, who had been lodging in the gymnasium building, escaped in their night clothing.

BOMB-JARRED MINERS' AUDITORIUM

The partially wrecked concrete block auditorium at Harmarville, bombed apparently in a labor war. Until a year ago it was the district headquarters for the United Mine Workers of America, who have just accepted a $1 wage reduction. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BLAST LINKED TO MINE WAR

County detectives today were to investigate a bomb explosion in the two-story building that was the meeting place of miners on the Freeport road, Harmarville, last night, damaging the building and routing six families. Windows were broken in adjacent dwellings. Both the United Mine Workers and the National Miners' Union had used the hall at various times.

Police were inclined to link the bombing with the scheduled opening of the Harmarville mine of the Consumers Coal Company Monday on an open shop basis.

The blast occurred in the flooring of the second story, a dance hall, and the former meeting place of the miners. The explosion ripped out the flooring, damaged the walls and blew out the windows of the concrete block building. The first floor is a vacant storeroom formerly used to store miners' relief supplies. No fire followed the explosion.

Windows in dwellings on both sides of the building were shattered. In one of these lived the families of Steve Oswald, Joseph Mickovich, Milan Sjver, Mrs. Joseph Marcolini and Mrs. Pauline Lytush. In the other lived Nicholas Tarisi and his family.

House, she leaves two sons and a daughter.

TWO DISTRICTS JOIN IN HIGH RATE FIGHT

Rally in Crafton Heights Scheduled; Consumers to Organize at Kittanning

Two additional districts are to be organized tonight in the state-wide fight on excessive public utility rates by the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association.

Domestic consumers will rally at the Crafton Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, Stratmore and Oakmont streets, at 8 o'clock. The meeting is being arranged by the Twenty-eighth Ward committee of the association's Forty-fifth Senatorial District Committee. Charles Murray will be chairman of the meeting.

Speakers will include O. W. Heselbarth, chairman; Harry Wohlwend and Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, of the senatorial district committee.

Preparations for a township mass-meeting will be planned tonight by the Shaler Township Civic Association at its monthly meeting in the Braum School, Mt. Royal boulevard. Leroy Beet, president, will preside.

Armstrong County consumers will organize at a mass meeting in the Courthouse at Kittanning. Speakers will include the association's president, A. B. Davidson, of Tarentum; and executive committee members, Burgess S. S. Baldridge, Apollo; Mayor Joseph Heineman, Butler, and Burgess J. Steele Butler, Brookville. The meeting is being directed by Dr. C. M. McLaughlin, Burgess of Freeport.

Erie to Renew War For Reduced Rates

ERIE, Pa., March 11.—(AP.)—Erie's 14-year-old fight against the Pennsylvania Gas Company for reduced rates will be resumed Monday before the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg, Edward M. Murphy, City Solicitor, said yesterday. Warren and Corry are aligned with Erie in the fight.

Two Losers Jailed After Holdup Of Card Game

Peeved because he lost about $7 in a poker game, early yesterday, George Weaver, 30, of Russellton, police say, whipped out a gun and held 10 other players at bay, while another loser raked in the stakes, amounting to $1.15. The two were arrested later by state police.

According to Pvts. George Mazza and Louis Bevilacqua, of the Butler barracks, the game was held in the home of Henry Brents, at Russellton. Weaver and Wayne Guesman, 29, of Russellton, had been sitting out of the game after they lost their money.

Fayette City Bridge Permit Is Asked

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP.)—Authority to build an intercounty toll bridge across Monongahela River at Fayette City, Pa., was asked yesterday of Congress. Representative Kendall, of Meyersdale, introduced the bill to permit Fayette and Washington counties either to build the bridge or assign their rights for such construction to others.

DAZED WOMAN IDENTIFIED

A frail little grey-haired woman found wandering this morning in Taylor avenue, North Side, clad only in a bathrobe and bedroom slippers, today was identified as Mrs. Annie Matthews, 76, of 1404 Creighton way, at the Presbyterian Hospital.

Mrs. Matthews was identified by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Matthews, of the same address, who told police the aged woman had disappeared from her home a short time before. The woman had been unable to tell hospital attaches anything about herself. She was in a dazed condition when found and her right hand was swollen, it was said, due evidently to a felon.

Woman Falls Dead While Taking Walk

The Old Story

Paying a woman's penalty—time after time

In the year of 1932 there should be no monthly martyrs to pain. Some women still think they must suffer—they haven't heard of Midol—or can't believe that it has solved their problem.

• • •

Did you know that five to seven minutes after swallowing a tiny tablet you can be yourself—can be comfortable—can go about without feeling a single further twinge of muscular pain?

Your regular periods need not be painful—they are not painful to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make Nature's process a mere incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol, as women who used to have the hardest time have found. It is not a narcotic, does not interfere with the process, but does stop the pain; relieves headaches, too; neuralgia, etc. Every drugstore has Midol.

PAIN STOPS IN 7 to 10 MINUTES

MUSCLETONE DOES IT !

Don't take chances ... you work too hard for your money to throw it away on worthless remedies ... when you buy something to relieve pain caused by rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, or any other muscular pain, be absolutely sure that it will do the work ... that it's safe. Get MUSCLETONE. It is the actual prescription of Dr. Chapin, who specialized in the treatment of muscular pain. He discovered MUSCLETONE. In it, he found a remedy that would actually relieve pain in from 7 to 10 minutes ... it is entirely free from any burning or blistering substances. And, remember this: it satisfies or it doesn't cost a penny ... our money-back guarantee takes care of that.

Get Rid of Stiff Joints, Lame Muscles, Tired Feet

No internal drugs are taken ... you merely rub MUSCLETONE on the place that hurts ... it penetrates way down deep into the muscular tissues ... energizes them ... stimulates blood circulation ... soothes ... heals, and, by inunction, neutralizes the accumulated toxins. For "aching" feet, there's nothing in the world like it, nor is there a more pleasant treatment. Its quick-drying action enables you to put on your shoes and stockings right after you rub it on ... isn't sticky ... never soils or stains.

Pain saps vitality ... you can't work ... can't play ... can't sleep. Relieve the pain ... do it quickly ... instantly. Use MUSCLETONE. Over two million bottles have been used. It must be good ... it is! All good druggists sell, recommend and guarantee it. If yours happens to be out of it, fill in the coupon and mail it today.

Liberal Trial Size 25c; Large Size $1; All Druggists

Mrs. Watkins writes: "Best Remedy We Have Tried"

"My mother has been suffering with rheumatism for a long time, and tried most everything known until she heard of MUSCLETONE and decided to use it. It certainly did wonders for her. It is the best remedy we have tried—I really can't praise it enough."—Mrs. Guy Watkins.

Muscletone Ended Her Worries, writes Antoni Grzoika

"I have been suffering with rheumatism for many years and have tried various remedies, but they never seemed to help me. Your first bottle of MUSCLETONE ended my worries. It is remarkable the wonderful relief your MUSCLETONE has given me, and I will always keep a bottle in my home."—Antoni Grzoika.

COAL MEN MEET HERE; VIEWS ON BILL LOOM

Session at Terminal Offices Private; Davis-Kelly Plan Hearing to Start Monday

Definite action by Pittsburgh coal operators was awaited today as to their attitude on the Davis-Kelly bill for the regulation of the bituminous coal industry, public hearing on which will start in Washington Monday. Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, today said he would attend the hearing. The U. M. W. A. favors the bill, sponsored by Senator James J. Davis and Congressman Clyde Kelly, according to Murray.

Although several Pittsburgh coal operators yesterday said they knew nothing about the hearing and were not prepared to announce their stand on the bill, many coal operators of Western Pennsylvania were understood to have attended a private meeting late yesterday behind closed doors in the office of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company.

MEETING CALLED PRIVATE

What bearing, if any, this meeting would have on the coal situation, could not be ascertained.

A. J. Appel, vice president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, said:

Under the Davis-Kelly bill, a commission would be created, composed of five members appointed by the President, to carry out its provisions.

AS TO MARKET GROUPS

The bill provides that coal firms could enter into marketing associations, with the sanction of the commission, which also would hear complaints on price schedules.

Organized labor is protected under its provisions that:

"Employes of all licensees shall have the right of assemblage for the purpose of peacably discussing and hearing discussed the principles of organized labor and collective bargaining; employes shall be free to purchase their necessities of life where they choose. . . ."

The bill would regulate all shipment of bituminous coal in interstate or foreign commerce.

Strangles Girl Wife In Desertion Fear

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—(AP.)—Vito Spano, 35, a laborer, confessed he strangled his 18-year-old wife, police said, "so nobody else could have her." He was quoted by police:

"She told me she was going to divorce me. She said she was through. She was running around to dances with these young boys with nice clothes. When she told me she was going to leave I went crazy."

BRIDGE SUICIDE LEAP NIPPED

Frank Reed 38, whose alleged attempt to leap into the Allegheny River from the Manchester Bridge last night was frustrated by Patrolman John Reid, was held for arraignment in the North Side Police Court today.

The policeman said he seized Reed as he was climbing over the bridge railing. Reed told police he was out of work and worried over family troubles. He refused to eat a meal purchased for him by Patrolman Harry Hyer. Police charged Reed with vagrancy.

Crafton Man Ends Life With Bullet

John Carnes 61, of 25 Afton avenue, Crafton, ended his life by shooting himself in the chest in the bedroom of his home last night, according to a coroner's report. Carnes was said to have suffered a nervous breakdown.

To say nothing of the pain and discomfort Bayer Aspirin might have spared you! So, carry this protection with you. Get the genuine, with proven directions for colds, headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

BAYER ASPIRIN

POWERS TO DIE FRIDAY NIGHT

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 11.—(AP.)—The hour of doom has been set for Harry F. Powers. The mass slayer of Quiet Dell will plunge to his death at 9 o'clock the night of March 18, next Friday.

Judge John C. Southern, of the Harrison County Criminal Court, specified Powers be hanged "between sunrise and sunset," but the hour was not specified in the commitment papers sent to the warden.

Warden A. C. Scroggins, preparing for the execution, said, however, the usual hour of nine has been decided upon for the hanging. None but necessary witnesses will see the trap spring.

Powers chatted yesterday with W. B. Grimm, Sheriff of Harrison County. Prison officials said they did not know why the official had visited the doomed man.

Powers was convicted for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler-Lemke, of Northboro, Mass. Her body and the bodies of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children were found buried in a ditch at Powers' fantastic garage near Clarksburg last summer.

HOUSE PROBERS APPROVE AKRON

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP.)—The House Naval Committee agreed unanimously today that there now is no "poor workmanship or faulty material" in the airship Akron.

Without objection, it approved a report by a special sub-committee which said:

"The sub-committee finds from the testimony submitted if there was any poor workmanship or faulty material used in the construction of the Akron that the same was corrected before the ship was completed."

The sub-committee emphasized that "no direct testimony was presented by any person who had first-hand information relative to the charges of sabotage, faulty material, poor construction and overweight, other than by representatives of the United States Navy."

TENSION GROWS IN GERMANY

BERLIN, March 11.—(INS.)—With the German presidential elections only two days away, the high pitch of feeling was clearly demonstrated in campaign speeches today.

Baron Manfred von Killinger, a leader of the National Socialist party, in a speech for the Nazi candidate, described war as a "biological necessity," and added:

"Germany lost the World War because the former Kaiser was too pacifistic."

Conservative monarchical forces made a bid for the growing monarchistic sentiment by distributing leaflets calling for votes for President Von Hindenburg, in which he was described merely as "regent for a future monarch."

Posse Gets Fugitive Caught in Snowdrift

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 11.—(AP.)—His car stalled in a snowdrift on the outskirts of the city, Earl Willis, 25, was surrounded by a posse of private detectives and sheriffs' deputies last night and arrested as a fugitive from justice.

Willis is accused of robbing the Citizens Bank of Delavan, Wis., of $6,000 last month and also is said to be wanted in Racine, Wis., on a murder charge.

Voliva, 62, Expects To Reach 100 Mark

ZION, Ill., March 11.—(AP.)—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Zion religious colony, was 62 yesterday and sound as a dollar. He said:

"I had a glass of buttermilk and two Brazil nuts before breakfast. That should help me along. I ought to live to be 100."

'Jimmy the Joker', Of Chicago, Dies, 61

CHICAGO March 11.—(AP.)—James Hennessey, 61-year-old newsboy, known to thousands as "Jimmy the Joker" and who is reputed to have made $100,000 selling newspapers in the Loop, is dead. A skull fracture, suffered when he fell down on the stairs of a barber shop last Saturday, was the cause of death. Jimmy died a comparatively poor man.

Detectives in Line Of Congratulators Nab Singer

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—(AP.)—Two detectives shuffled along at the end of a long line of opera enthusiasts waiting to congratulate Aroldo Lindi, tenor, on his singing of "Canio" in "Pagliacci" at the Academy of Music last night.

Finally they reached the beaming tenor. One detective stuck out his hand. Lindi extended his in greeting—and grasped a fugitive warrant sworn out in Boston charging him with being three months in arrears with alimony payments.

Released later on his own recognizance for a hearing, Lindi explained he had just returned from Italy, where a law forbids exportation of money.

TWO ORDERS IN THE APPOINTMENT OF A JUDGE OF ELECTION

Marshall Changes Selection in 25th; Won't Explain

The unexplained vacation of an appointment of a judge of election for the Sixth District of the Twenty-fifth Ward, a representative of the independent forces of the North Side, and the appointment next day, last Friday, of a representative of the ward faction controlled by State Senator Morris Einstein, was disclosed today by records in Quarter Sessions Court.

C. W. Guckert, 112 Melrose street, printer and property owner, who never was on an election board, was appointed by Judge Elder W. Marshall last Wednesday as Judge of Election to succeed C. A. Boles, resigned. Guckert, an independent, was opposed by Peter M. Smid, 18 Geranium street, clerk, supported by Einstein. The appointment was made after a public hearing on behalf of both candidates.

Thursday Judge Marshall vacated the appointment and Friday he appointed Smid without a further hearing. Attorney Julius J. Strba, representing Guckert, said that when he learned of the change he asked Judge Marshall the reason for the change, without any further hearing, and Judge Marshall replied he had received further information, but declined to explain further or to give Guckert an opportunity to be again heard or reply to the additional information.

Judge Marshall declined to discuss publicly the reasons which prompted him to vacate the appointment of Guckert.

Strba said today the Judge's decision was final and there was no avenue for an appeal from his order.

Mouldy Bill Hoard Bared By Death Of Aged Pauper

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ida Ratz, whose age was reputed to be 100 and whose means of livelihood was selling pencils on the street, was found dead yesterday in her tenement flat in Brooklyn. More than $1,600 was found beside her.

In the same old clothes she had worn for years she was discovered slumped over in a broken chair with the same old pencils she had offered to sell. Tarnished coins and mouldy bills of small denominations were secreted in tin cans, milk bottles, old shoes, a makeshift mattress and the cupboard.

Mrs. Ratz had told her landlady several weeks ago that she could not pay her rent of $8 a month and her tale of poverty was accepted. Neighbors and the police had been supplying her with food and coal.

TROLLEY CRASH KILLS AUTOIST

John J. Nealon, 42, of 356 East Twelfth avenue, Homestead, was killed, two others were injured, and more than a half-dozen passengers were shaken up when an automobile and a Pittsburgh-McKeesport street car crashed in the River road, Munhall, early today.

James Scalbaretti, 19, of 833 South Duquesne avenue, Duquesne, a passenger on the street car, is in Homestead Hospital with a knee injury. Motorman John Hanlon, of 7347 Hermitage street, was cut on the hands by flying glass.

The accident occurred, police said, when Nealon, inbound, swerved his machine into the outbound car tracks.

Two Ohio Bankers Given Prison Terms

TOLEDO, O., March 11.—(AP.)—Two Ohio bankers were sentenced to the federal penitentiary in Atlanta yesterday for embezzlement.

Henry W. Hane, former cashier of the Marion National Bank, was sentenced to serve seven years upon a plea of guilty to embezzling $100,000. Harmon Frank, former teller of the First National Bank of Upper Sandusky, was sentenced three years for embezzling $10,000.

McKeesport Cabby Robbed by 'Fare'

William J. Dittmore, of 404 Twenty-ninth street, McKeesport, driver for the Tube City Taxicab Company, was held up by a "fare" and robbed of a small amount of money and his watch at Oak Hill early today, police reported.

TALKATIVE STAR :-: News and Gossip Of Hollywood :-: AMUSEMENTS :-: What's What in Realm Of Stage and Screen

Ronald Colman Tells About His Globe-Trotting And His Future

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, March 11.

A talkative Ronald Colman, if you can imagine it, has just been telling me about his four-and-a-half months' trip abroad.

Ronnie is newly returned from Shanghai, where he saw the outskirts of the war and, thanks to his uncle, met a lot of important people. Ronnie's uncle, P. C. Colman, is a veteran of 25 years in the Orient and proved to be an admirable guide.

Ronald Colman

"I didn't see any actual fighting," says Ronnie. "We heard a pretty heavy bombardment one night, but for most part the weather was bad and they don't fight much over there in bad weather."

It's too bad to spoil a good story, but Ronnie didn't get arrested for being out after curfew, as was reported in news dispatches. He was safely in his hotel at 10 o'clock.

Though his trip included Italy, Germany, France and Austria, Ronnie found the Orient the most interesting to visit. He met Dick and Jessica Barthelmess in Japan and the three had a few busy days of sight-seeing. During their entire stay, they were constantly escorted by the press. Japan is very movie-conscious, Ronnie reports, and autograph seekers are even more numerous than in Hollywood.

Now he's back, the star is trying to catch up in his correspondence, arrange his income tax report and straighten up various odds and ends of his affairs. He still has to acknowledge Christmas presents.

About his next picture, "The Brothers Karamazov," he has little to say.

"As a matter of fact," he confesses, "I haven't even read the book. I do hope, however, I won't have to do a run of heavy pictures just because 'Arrowsmith' was a success. What I want is variety."

Ronnie's current agreement with Samuel Goldwyn is for two more pictures. If previous announcements are followed through, they will be the Dostoievsky novel and the Broadway play, "Cynara."

SNAPPY DIALOGUE

Preview audiences shout when Jimmy Durante says in "The Wet Parade":

"I'd like to have children if I didn't think there was too much beauty in the world already."

HERE'S GOSSIP

Greta Garbo turns platinum blond in her new picture, "As you Desire me" . . . If Joel McCrea finishes "The Bird of Paradise" in time, he will be Connie Bennett's leading man in her new R. K. O. picture . . . Warner Baxter is mourning the death of his butler who had been with him a number of years. The servant's car was struck by an oil truck and trailer just as he was turning into the Malibu film colony . . . Some San Francisco audience is slated to see the preview of "Grand Hotel" on Saturday night. Studio officials plan a trip North to evade the usual Hollywood preview crowd . . . Jim Tully tells me that Charles Gordon is producing his "Jarnegan" in Paris . . . Donald Ogden Stewart is putting dialogue into that Hollywood satire for M. G. M. . . . Hollywood turned out to Walter Hampden's first night in "Cyrano de Bergerac." In the first row were Harpo Marx and a tall blonde, Ruth and Edgar Selwyn and Evelyn Brent and Harry Edwards.

Warner Baxter

MADGE DENIES IT

Madge Evans denies to me she and Tom Gallery are to be married. She admits she had a diamond ring on her engagement finger the other evening at the theater, but insists she's had it since she was 17. Nevertheless, Hollywood clings to the idea that there is a romance here. Some say the engagement will be announced after Gallery's divorce from Zasu Pitts becomes final.

Lindy's Baby Search in Metro

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Various episodes in the world-wide hunt for the Lindbergh baby and his kidnapers are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, being seen in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. There are extraordinary scenes around the little country store in Hopewell, which has become the headquarters of some 400 newspapermen, cameramen and radio reporters. The unprecedented gathering of police officials from all parts of the country at the State House in Trenton is shown, and Gov. Harry A. Moore is heard in a speech to the officials. There are scenes outside the Courthouse in Hartford, Conn., where crowds gathered to get a glimpse of Henry (Red) Johnson, friend of Betty Gow, who was detained for questioning. There are reproductions of the original announcements bearing the signatures of the Lindberghs in which Spitale and Bitz of the underworld are authorized to deal with the kidnapers. The subject ends with some of the most striking pictures of the baby and a complete description of all the activities by the Globe Trotter.

PIRATES IN TRAINING

The Pittsburgh Pirates start intensive training under the watchful eye of their manager, George Gibson, at Paso Robles, Cal., and the air and sunshine make them as lively as crickets. The pictures show them in real practice on the diamond with all their star players in action.

An unusually thrilling picture comes from Melbourne, Australia, where motor bike demons speed around a dirt track. After a series of skids and spills a rider crashes in front of the camera and a second machine plunges into the wreck. Both men try to flee, but a third speeder bears down upon them and all are piled up in a tangled mass of arms and legs and wrecked motorcycles.

HINDENBERG SPEAKS

President Hindenberg of Germany, aged 84, gives his first motion picture statement to Metrotone. In it he declares he is ready to obey his country's call.

New Films Opening Today

Marion Davies comes to the Penn screen today in her newest starring film, "Polly of the Circus." Clark Gable appears opposite her. Al Wohlman will be seen on the stage in "Make It Snappy." Tomorrow Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, will come to the Penn as an added attraction.

"The Lost Squadron," starring Richard Dix, opens today on the Stanley screen. Dick Powell will present "Ship Ahoy" on the stage.

NEW FARRELL FILM

Today also marks the opening of "Cheaters at Play," co-featuring Thomas Meighan and Charlotte Greenwood, in the Davis. The film will come to the Enright tomorrow.

OTHER BOOKINGS

Cary Grant, of Stage, With Morris

Cary Grant, player from the Broadway stage, will appear with Chester Morris and Carole Lombard in "Sinners in the Sun." He will work under the direction of David Burton, who has replaced William C. de Mills as megaphonist on this production.

Pitt Actors Rehearse

The twenty-fifth annual production of the Pitt Cap and Gown Club, in which the boys skip about in high heels and platinum blonde wigs, went into rehearsal this week, with more than 150 men in the cast and chorus. "The Silver Domino," is the title of the production, to be shown for a week in the Nixon, opening Monday, April 18.

Described as "a musical masquerade," it has to do with a radio singer, an eccentric old man with money to spend, and his beautiful young daughter, all mixed up on a world cruise. The book was written by G. Norman Reis, '16. Lyrics were contributed by Reis and Louis M. Fushan, '23. Gus A. Schnabel, '15 and Dr. Benjamin Levant, '19, supplied the tunes. Additional music was written by John St. Peter, '31. The show is being staged by William Mariatt, who has directed the past two Cap and Gown productions.

Will Rogers Shaves the World

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Will Rogers came to the Fulton screen yesterday in the film, "Business and Pleasure," which may be traced back to Booth Tarkington's story, "The Plutocrat." It is a typical Rogers' comedy.

This time Robers appears as a Mr. Tinker, a razor blade manufacturer, out to corner the world's supply of Damascus steel. Action begins on an ocean liner and ends in the Arabian desert.

The Arabs pounce down on Mr. Tinker and he drolls out: "What's the matter, I'm a sheik in Oklahoma myself!"

He has a close shave on the desert, too, but it isn't with a Tinker blade. However, he outwits the natives and instead of being beheaded, becomes a hero.

On the steamship he's the only person who doesn't get sea-sick. But he has other troubles, for he meets a vamp, and her Pekingese pup follows him to his stateroom, where Mrs. Tinker is very much the wide-awake one.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Some of the ridiculous theories in the Lindbergh baby saga advanced by the alleged minds are most comical, in spite of the tragic tale . . . The front-page fiends will offer any statement to be included in the cast . . . That one, f'rinstance, from Chicago . . . That a notoriously known jailed one plotted it all . . . To arouse sentiment in his favor, thus acquiring his release after he promotes the return of the missing child . . . The New York underworlders pish-tush any statement advanced by reporters that it was done by professional outlaws . . . The "darn thing," they groan, has upset their various routines . . . No beer truck can safely crash the New Jersey passages or any state road now . . . Which is another reason they are happy to aid the law in clearing up matters . . . They are losing a young fortune because of the Man Hunt . . . Mulrooney's theory—which so many of us have set forth in the editorial departments since the second day, is the most interesting . . . That it was an inside job—and that the ladder was put there as a "prop" to serve as a subterfuge . . . How in the world did the guilty one get into the room (where no clues or footmarks were found) and, with one wing free, get down that unusually wide-runged ladder without breaking his neck?

I think the suggestion offered on how to relieve the unemployment situation at once is the best yet . . . Put millions of men to work digging away those hills in front of the poorhouses! . . . I would mix up those girls. It is Marilyn Kingston, not Marion, who is so ill in that Yonkers hosp . . . That girl whose suicide hasn't been recorded yet must have had great courage to do it that way in this weather, at any rate . . . Imagine going to the frozen lake—breaking a hole in it and keeping her head in the freezing aqua until she succumbed! . . . Seneca thought it was grand—that we have more ways out of the world than we have into it . . . The Broadway nightloafers are going a little silly—trying to while away the time after 3 . . . They sit in the taverns for hours, often without making any conversation . . . And destroy the restaurant's toothpicks and matches—breaking them into bits . . . There are no anecdotes to swap, and "anyone can go home, but why?"

With so many sugary notices, it is difficult to understand . . . I mean about that show closing "any day now" . . . No show in a spell received such enthusiastic response . . . And the reports that it was rating a high fee from the movie impresarios is denied vigorously by the west coasters . . . The only reason they produced it was to swindle the movie colony—and now all of them will lose a pretty sum, and I wish I could stifle my tittering . . . Funny about Boston, which formerly had an ordinance forbidding ladies of the chorus to wear tights . . . Now it compels them to wear them! . . . Too bad about all those humor magazines crashing that way . . . Wonder if the numerous columns in the papers contributed? . . . Probably not, for the clever contributors to the columns, once they discovered they were capable, deserted the paragraphers who never pay for material, and forwarded their quips to the magazines at "the usual rates" . . . Which are from 50 cents to $3 . . . There used to be fun getting their names into print . . . Nowadays the lads find more amusement keeping out of debt.

Interesting tale about that lass in Reno . . . Who called on a well-to-do New Yorker who was Reno-Waiting . . . She told him that her Man Had Stranded Her there . . . Would he help her with some coin? . . . The well-to-doer wrote out a check for $100 . . . After he handed it to her, she chirped: "Oh, I forgot. Could you also buy me a new fur coat? I'm freezing in this!" . . . The newly-found "chump" realized it was all a stick-up . . . She had his own check in her purse . . . If he didn't kick in—there was no guessing what she would do to destroy his rep . . . So he bought her a fur coat, at a pretty sum, too . . . Then he dismissed her, gently, of course . . . And proceeded to worry . . . A week later she ankled into his place, again . . . "Good heavens! What now?" he exclaimed . . . "I made up with my darling," she cooed, "here's what I owe you," and she handed him back the coin plus the coat fee . . . It never happens in New York . . . Take those doctors and restauranteurs along the White Wayside . . . Who read about chorus girls and others who are back in the money again, but who make no attempt to pay part of their debts—contracted when they needed assistance the most . . . Someone describes a man whose conscience, instead of being his monitor, becomes his accomplice.

Interesting letter from Reed Smoot of the Senate . . . He says he has been reading my column for a long time and always thought it fairly accurate until I libeled his birth-town, Provo, Utah . . . Well, I'm sorry I offended his birthplace . . . I reported that what I didn't like about Provo, when I sang-and-hoofed there a decade or so ago, was the poor train service, for we arrived there at 4 in the morning and had to take the same rattler the following 4 a. m. to get out of there . . . Meaning that I got little rest, for it was "a jump-breaker"—a one-night stand . . . So naturally I didn't like his Provo . . . Senator Smoot now tells me that he looked up the date (1920) and that I could have found another train, or taken a suburban railroad to Salt Lake City, the next stand . . . Well, it just couldn't have been arranged—for the show ended too late to make that earlier train—and the sitch-ee-ay-shun was the way I explained it . . . But that Provo is one of the beauty towns of the Rocky Mountains I know, and I trust that the Salt Lake Telegram, which prints me in Utah, will so quote me . . . And that the Senator's attention to it is summoned—and that he keeps reading my drivel . . . And I wish he would ask Mr. Hoover: "What's the big idea?"

I'm glad I finally got acquainted with West of Broadway . . . I mean some of the people on the other side of the Hudson . . . When I traveled through the States a decade back, there was little or no time to meet the towners . . . Four out of every five amusement temples kept their undressing rooms in the cellars—and the policy was at least three performances every day, except on Saturdays, when there were four, or on the Sabbath—when you did five! . . . The good old days, my eye! . . . And so you grow to hate the towns that encouraged the strenuous routine—or you thought that the hotels and the beaneries were second rate . . . Because you couldn't afford to dine or dwell at the first-raters . . . But via the postoffice you meet so many people who follow your stuff in the Newspaper Chain . . . And, by golly, they seem human! . . . PRUDENCE PENNY :-: Tells How to Make Latest Delicacies :-: FINE RECIPES

IRISH COCOANUT MURPHYS—One medium-sized potato, 2 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 1 can moist cocoanut, 4 teaspoons vanilla, ½ cup chopped pistachio nuts.

Cook the potato until soft, then press through sieve (there should be ½ cup of mashed potato). Add sugar gradually, stirring well, then vanilla, and 1 can cocoanut. Form into shape of Irish potatoes. Then roll lightly in cocoa, or dip into melted dipping chocolate, set over hot water. Dot with chopped pistachio nuts for eyes.

* * *

GREEN AND GOLD DESSERT—One package lime gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, 1 No. 1 can grapefruit.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Drain juice from can of grapefruit into a measuring cup, add sufficient cold water to fill the cup. Add grapefruit juice to dissolved gelatin; pour into a shallow pan which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill thoroughly; cut into cubes, and pile in stemmed glasses with segments of chilled grapefruit. Six servings. This dessert is very appropriate for St. Patrick's Day.

* * *

MUSHROOM OMELET—Four eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons hot water, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter.

Beat yolks until thick and lemon colored with the salt, pepper and hot water. Beat whites until stiff, cutting and folding them into the first mixture until well blended. Heat omelet pan, butter sides and bottom with the tablespoon butter. Turn in the mixture, spread evenly, place on fire and cook slowly and when well "puffed" and brown underneath, place pan in oven to brown top and finish cooking.

The omelet is cooked when it is firm to the touch. If it clings to the finger like the beaten white of egg, it needs longer cooking. Crease and spread with well cooked mushrooms, fold and turn on hot platter. Serve with white sauce and garnish with whole mushrooms.

* * *

VIENNA SCHNITZEL—Four veal cutlets, ⅓ cup milk, ¼ pound flour, salt and pepper, 2 eggs, ½ pound cracker or bread crumbs, butter and oil or substitute.

Beat eggs and milk together. Dip cutlets in flour, then dip eggs and milk mixture, dip in crumbs and saute slowly in hot butter and oil for 10 minutes. With this serve tomato sauce made as follows: Two cans condensed tomato soup, 1 onion, 1 clove garlic, 1 green pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, bay leaf, 1 stalk celery, 1 carrot, bacon or ham rind, pinch of whole cloves, allspice and black pepper, bacon drippings. Braise onion, celery, garlic, carrot and pepper in bacon dripping with the bacon rind. Add tomato soup, seasonings and water. Cook for 30 minutes or longer. Thicken slightly with a roux made of equal portions butter and flour. Bring to a boil, then strain and season well the mixture.

CHOCOLATE LOAF CAKE—Two cups sugar, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, well beaten; ½ cup cocoa, 1 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon each of cloves and nutmeg, 1 cup each of nut meats and raisins, 1 teaspoon salt.

Partially melt the shortening and cream it with the sugar, spices and salt. Push the creamed sugar on one side of the bowl, break the eggs in the other side and beat them, gradually mixing in the sugar. Mix the cocoa with the boiling water until smooth, then add to mixture. Sift flour and leavenings together and add, alternating with the milk. Flour the raisins and the nuts and stir them in. Add vanilla last. Bake in a deep loaf tin for about 45 minutes, using a moderate heat.

* * *

CORNED BEEF HASH—One and a half pounds corned beef, cooked, 7 large boiled potatoes, onion to flavor, dash of cayenne pepper, salt. Put meat, potatoes and onion through the meat grinder, using the fine knife. Add the cayenne and salt to taste and mix thoroughly. Grease lightly a heavy skillet. Pat in the hash in an even layer and cook over low heat until a golden brown crust is formed. When brown, place a pan or lid over the skillet and turn the hash out so the browned side is on top. Slip the uncooked side in the skillet and allow this side to become golden brown. Turn out on a plate, garnish with parsley, and serve at once.

Hot Breads, Baked Properly, Not Harmful, Doctor Says

If heat is applied as it should be, it makes little difference whether finished product is hot or cold.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator from New York.

To eat hot breads is the impulse and practice of the American people. There is a lurking suspicion in every mind that somehow or other they are "bad" for the system. But since it is human to resist everything but temptation, we eat them just the same.

Now, what are the facts? Is it really unhealthful to eat hot breads?

Of course flour is the main ingredient of all breads. Flour consists largely of starch. Each starch grain is enclosed in an envelope, a covering, a capsule, of firm, resistant material. This protects the starchy contents of the grain or granule and unless it is broken, the starchy substance cannot be reached by the digestive processes.

Raw starch is quite indigestible. It is very likely to cause distress. The reason for this I have already suggested. It is because the digestive juices cannot break through the dense, tough envelope of raw starch, to perform their essential function.

The cereal foods are the most important of all the things we eat. They are the chief articles in the dietary of every nation. They supply the bulk of what the world eats.

The cereals were of little importance until the discovery of fire. When man had intense heat at his command, he speedily utilized it, making available the valuable starch of the cereals and other articles of the vegetable world.

Heat is essential merely to the bursting of the starch grains. If it is applied as it should be, it makes little difference whether the finished product is eaten hot or cold. This is true of all cereal products, including the various breads. Really, there is no foundation for the popular suspicion that hot breads are harmful. Provided the baked product is submitted to such heat as will reach the interior of the doughy mass and is applied long enough to burst the starch grains, all is well.

You are familiar with the "popping" of corn and will recall that it takes a little while for the kernels to burst. The baking of bread and similar products is not unlike this. It is important to apply the heat long enough to insure the popping of the starch grains.

If eaten slowly, thoroughly chewed to make certain that the saliva is intimately mixed with the food substances, and not hastily bolted, the hot breads are wholesome and digestible. Even well-mixed and well-baked pie crust is readily digested.

Red Flannels and Bed Warmers have gone . . .

Why not the old-fashioned idea about Hot, Heavy Foods?

TIME WAS when the winter season brought out the old red flannels, the bed warmers — and a switch from fresh, crisp foods to hot, heavy dishes.

We've said good-bye to flannels and warming pans — thanks to our modern steam-heated homes, warm offices and well-heated schools. However, a lot of folks still think that cold weather makes it necessary to spend hours over a hot stove, cooking heavy foods. That's why winter menus are usually more trouble and more monotonous.

But a change is taking place here too. More people every day are eating crisp, ready-to-serve cereals like Kellogg's Corn Flakes. And what a delightful difference it makes! No work (unless you heat the milk for the children). Meals as crisp as summer itself! Delicious and healthful.

Try Kellogg's tomorrow for breakfast. Enjoy them with either cold cream or hot milk. Splendid for the children's evening meal. These crunchy flakes, thoroughly steam-cooked by Kellogg in Battle Creek, are so easy to digest they encourage restful sleep. Rich in energy, full of appetite appeal — dietitians advise them.

Why not order a red-and-green package of Kellogg's from your grocer?

Heat the milk in a double boiler with the onion, add the flour and fat, which have been well blended, then the turnip, and salt. Cook until the turnip is tender, or for about 10 minutes, and remove the onion. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the soup just before serving.

* * *

APPLE FRITTERS—Three medium sized tart apples, 1 cup sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup milk, 1 egg, well beaten, fat for frying.

Pare, core and cut the apples in crosswise slices about ¼ inch thick. Sift the dry ingredients. Add the milk to the well beaten egg, then pour slowly into the dry mixture, and stir until smooth. Heat fat of good flavor until a cube of bread will brown in 1 minute. Dip the apple rings into the batter, drain, and put slowly into the hot fat without spattering. Cook from 3 to 5 minutes, or until the apples are tender and the fritter a golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper, and serve with syrup.

* * *

HOT MAYONNAISE — Two tablespoons butter, 2½ tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup thin cream, 1 egg, slightly beaten, ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon vinegar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, dash of paprika, 6 drops tobasco, ⅛ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter in double boiler, add flour and salt and mix until smooth. Add cream gradually, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Continue cooking 5 minutes longer. Add egg, remove from fire immediately, and stir over hot water until thickened. Add mayonnaise, then lemon juice and vinegar, a few drops at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Add butter, 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing well after each addition. Add remaining ingredients. Makes 1½ cups hot mayonnaise. Sauce for fish, asparagus, antichokes, cauliflower, etc.

* * *

ORANGE NUT BREAD—Two cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup sugar, ⅓ cup shortening, ½ cup finely chopped nuts, 1 egg, orange juice, 1 tablespoon orange marmalade.

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening. Add nuts. Beat egg; pour in measuring cup; add enough orange juice to make 2-3 cup. Combine with dry ingredients and add marmalade. Knead a few seconds on slightly floured board. Let stand in refrigerator or cool place ½ hour. Bake in loaf pan in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) till done—about 45 minutes. Makes one medium loaf.

Note—A little more orange juice will be needed with some flours to make the dough soft.

* * *

BOLIVIA POTATO SALAD—2 cups cold boiled potatoes cut in ½-inch cubes; 2 pimentos, chopped; ½ tablespoon onion or chives, finely chopped; 3 hard-boiled eggs, chopped; 5 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of white pepper.

Rub bowl in which salad is to be mixed with cut side of clove of garlic, if desired. Add potatoes, pimentos, onion and eggs. Combine 1 tablespoon mayonnaise with vinegar, salt and pepper, and add to potato mixture. Toss lightly together and chill 1 hour or longer. Add remaining mayonnaise and blend. Arrange in glass bowl and sprinkle with chopped chives. Garnish with additional hard-cooked egg sections. Serves six.

* * *

BAKED ORANGE MARIE — 8 oranges, 3 dates, stoned and chopped; 1 tablespoon cocoanut, 1 tablespoon raisins, 1 tablespoon chopped walnut meats.

Cut off tops of oranges. With a sharp paring knife hollow out a small portion of each orange near the top. Then work the knife around to lift out pieces of the remaining pulp, until orange shell is clean. Mix orange pulp with dates, cocoanut, raisins and nut meats. Return to orange

Budget Suggestions Sought By Prospective Bride

Know anything about budgets? If you do, here's your chance to tell the world about them; for Janice wants to know how much of a nest egg she and Bob must have before they team up and go to housekeeping—

And how to lay it out for groceries and other things, so the old savings account will grow.

Can you tell her? If you can, come on. There will be a lot of other folks listening, too.

"Dear Sally Martin—

"Will you please help me? I am to be married in a few weeks, and I want to plan some sort of budget for our expenses, so we can keep our finances straight, and save something for a rainy day.

"I will give you as many details as I can now. We will live in an apartment where I am living now, which costs $27.50 per month. There will be two yearly insurance policies, for $38.99 and $15; art school tuition at $15 a month, and I have figured gymnasium dues and other incidentals at $10 a month, for a year. Then there will be gas, lights, laundry, clothes, and so forth.

"For the present we will do no entertaining to speak of, because we both work, and will study mosts of the time after working hours. Our combined salaries are about $75 a week.

WANTS TO SAVE

"What I want is to know about the proper amounts to spend for food and so forth, so we'll be able to save. We want to have a decent bank account in time, so we'll have something to fall back on in case of sickness or unemployment.

"I am afraid that we have both been rather careless about our finances in the past. We had no one to look out for but ourselves, and we did spend a good deal.

"But now when we are starting out together, we want to make a real effort to do things as they should be done, so that the future will be taken care of, and so we will get ahead. We want, both of us, to do the best we can, so we'd like a plan to go by, and we thought you could help us.

SEEKS SUGGESTIONS

"We have nothing to buy in the way of linens, dishes or bedding, as I already have plenty of those things, and we won't buy any new furniture for at least a year.

"Don't you think we should be able to make ends more than meet on $300 a month? It seems to me that we should, but "d like to know how to do it best. So I am appealing to you, or any of the gang who may have had experience making budgets.

"JANICE."

How would you budget $300 a month—$200—$100?

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Swinging the head in a circle will discourage a roll of fat on the back of the neck, suggest that it make away with itself. A forward and backward movement is also effective.

A simple astringent can be made by boiling together one cup of water and one teaspoonful of powdered boric acid. Let cool, pour into a bottle and apply once a day with absorbent cotton. Good to correct oily skins.

Age hasn't as much to do with the coming of wrinkles as the quality of mind. Discontent stamps lines on the face. Cheerfulness holds up the muscles, keeps the sag out of them, acts as a bolstering influence on fibers and blood streams. Emotional control, robust health and mental hygiene are the enemies of facial tucks and creases. They keep them at arm's length and the countenance retains the firmness and contour of youth.

Impatience Is the Fault of All Restless, Eager Youths, Declares Fay King

SHE BEGAN WISHING WONDERFUL THINGS FOR YOU THEN!
OH GEE! THERE ARE SO MANY THINGS I WANT THAT I'LL NEVER GET!
IF HER WISHES COULD COME TRUE YOU'D HAVE EVERYTHING!

By FAY KING

The torrent of discontent which at times suddenly overwhelms the ambitious youth of little means, is understandable.

There is so much to want these days. Luxuries that were undreamed of when parents were children are considered hardly more than necessities now.

Beauty parlors, radios, automobiles, airplanes, travel, movies and ever-changing styles become the desire of alert young people.

That if prayers and hoping could provide as readily as money can no child would be without the best of everything!

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Changes His Arrogant Attitude

I was breathless—inside—as I finished my defiance of Philip Veritzen, following his implied ultimatum that I must either obey him in the matter of going away with Dicky or must lose his sponsorship of my play. But I flatter myself that for once I was able to preserve a "poker face" and that my own counter ultimatum of taking my play to some other producer had been presented without any apparent agitation.

"You evidently have misunderstood my meaning," he said with magnificent disregard of the truth. "I asked you if you knew what this refusal would mean and you evidently interpreted my words as meaning that I would no longer consider your play. You ought to know that such an interpretation is absurd. I meant only that we would be unable to work together harmoniously if your ideas of discipline clashed so strongly with mine.

"You have shocked and grieved me very deeply, have made it well-nigh impossible for me to take the keen delight in producing your play which I had expected would be my portion when I once set to work upon it. But as for rejecting it—my dear Mrs. Graham—I am a man of my word. I have said I would put your play into production almost immediately, if the fourth act suits me. That word is still in effect.

"I shall not see you again until the 10 days which you have mentioned are up. Then I shall come back expecting to see the completed fourth act. May I take this manuscript with me? I already have the other two acts, you know."

"Of coures, my pulses were pounding with the strain of the repression I was putting on myself. There was something so infinitely patronizing, so almost insulting, in his announcement that he would stick to his word and produce my play, regardless of his displeasure with me, that I had all I could do to keep from flinging his offer back at him and telling him that he could not have my play under any conditions. Only the surmise that he was as anxious to keep my play as I was to sell it to him, and that he would not permit it to go to a rival producer if he could help it, enabled me to keep a tight rein upon my temper.

"I had this manuscript typed for you," I said, with the same frigidity in my voice which I had heard in his. "I expected, of course, that you would take it away with you, and 10 days from now at 11 o'clock in the morning, I shall have the fourth act completed, ready for your inspection."

He bowed from the waist—he had been standing since he had first used the word "forbid" to me. Then, crossing to me, he lifted my hand to his lips and kissed it as punctiliously as if there was not in his heart a bitter, baffled anger.

With equal formal courtesy, I went with him to the door. I waited only until he was safely down the steps before dashing back into the library to find Lillian solemnly executing the steps of a little dance.

"Oh, la! la!" she said, as I came in, "this is of such a drollness."

She spread her hands in a little Gallic gesture and then, dropping the pose, rushed across to me and thumped me upon the back enthusiastically.

"Oh, boy!" she exclaimed. "How the mighty have fallen. I've got to slip it to you, old dear, you've done something to him no one has succeeded in doing for years. You certainly dusted him off the plate that time. You sure have him by the short hair. He doesn't want that play to get away from him, the wily old fox, and you can judge how badly he wants it by the slice of humble pie he is willing to eat. You could not ask for a more satisfying tribute to your play. But take off the laurel wreath and put it in camphor for a few days. Luncheon is almost ready and the family is all lined up for a farewell."

I went with her to the dining room and was greeted with a cyclone as Roderick and Junior flung themselves upon me. Hank and Bill were just behind them, and a little farther back, Dicky's mother, my father, Harry, Dicky and Katherine were standing with faces filled with expectant interest. They were all anxiously awaiting the news of Philip Veritzen's reaction to my third act and I had the sensation of being wrapped in something warm and fleecy as I sensed their affectionate anxiety.

"What's the verdict, Lady Fair?" Harry Underwood's big voice boomed, voicing the question that all of them were looking for, and as he had spoken for them so his wife replied for me.

"Three hundred and fifty per cent plus," she crowed. "Madge certainly is sitting pretty, on top of the world as far as that play is concerned."

"He liked it then?" Dicky asked.

"Why so ladylike?" Lillian mocked. "'Liked' is a 'feeble word.' He simply ate it up. The revision suited him and he didn't have a word of criticism anywhere, and, oh boy! wasn't I proud of our Madge when she stood up to the old boy and told him he could take his beautiful personality-plus out and chuck it into the lake for all she cared while she took her chances on selling her play to another producer."

"What's that?" Dicky said. "Say that again, please."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Cross Eyes' Corrected by Glasses

There is a turning of one of the eyes from its normal direction.

This condition is often found in very young children. If neglected, the child grows up with the unpleasant appearance that goes with cross eyes, and as a result of misplacement of the eye there may be loss of useful vision.

Usually, if early attention is given to the trouble, the condition can be corrected. In a great number of young children the squint disappears if spectacles are worn.

It is necessary to determine first what is the state of the vision. If a considerable degree of eye strain is found it should be corrected. This is accomplished by the wearing of proper glasses, or by the use of certain exercises to strengthen the weak muscles.

The mother need not worry too much over the glasses. It is probable their use is not permanent since defects of early childhood are usually outgrown. If the eyes are kept straight by the use of spectacles, there is always the hope that the glasses may be discarded before the "beau period."

Sometimes it is necessary to operate on such children. This is done only after the case has been thoroughly studied and it has been found impossible to overcome by non-surgical measures. The operation is a simple one and need not be dreaded.

Many anxious parents have asked me if there were not danger that the eye would "run out" or be blinded. There is no such danger. In the operation the eyeball is not opened. The surgery relates only to the muscular covering. The seeing part of the eye is not involved at all.

I beg of you not to let a little child grow up with crooked eyes. Attend to the matter early and have that worry behind you. The most human experience in the world is to put off things. "Tomorrow" or "next week"—any time but now! In some matters that makes little difference, but this is not the case with cross-eye in a young child.

Both eyes take part in seeing things. Each eye "fixes" or looks at the object under observation. At the back pole of the eye is the area of the retina, or seeing part of the eye, where vision is most distinct. That is developed by use and made gradually more useful from the time of birth.

If one eye turns out or in, that part of the retina is not used; consequently, it does not develop. For this reason the crossed eye should be returned to its normal position. The slight operation necessary should be made early, so that the seeing power will develop normally.

Household Hints

To get the dressing and newness out of cotton materials, put a handful of Epsom salts into water and soak the articles.

Laddering on a silk or lisle thread stocking can be arrested by rubbing a piece of soap at top and bottom of the affected part.

It is a mistake to open the door of an oven more often than is absolutely necessary, for when the door is opened cold air rushes in, lowering the temperature. The door should not be opened wider than is necessary.

WRITE 100 WORDS
... WIN $100

$400 in Cash Prizes—Costs Nothing to Try

Here's a chance to make $100 for just one minute's time. No puzzles to solve. Nothing to buy or sell. All you do is write a letter of 100 words or less, telling why you like TAG soap. That's all. If you've ever used TAG soap, it should be easy to write the $100 prize winning letter. If you've never tried TAG, buy a bar or two at your grocer's, and see how it excels. Tag is all pure soap. No filler. No naphtha to chap hands or leave a soapy smell. No harmful ingredients to fade or damage fabrics. It goes twice as far—thus costs less to use. It's easy to write a letter about soap as good as this. And the best letter wins $100 in cash. 87 other prizes—all worth winning. Contest closes March 25. So don't wait. Get entry blank from your grocer or write your letter on plain paper and send it in today. The M. Werk Soap Co., 1531 Grant Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. "Quality Soap Since 1832."

The Bouillon Cup

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the proper way to use bouillon cups? Is it permissible to lift them by the handle or handles, and sip the soup?—E. G. G.

The correct way is to take the first few sips of the bouillon spoon, to test the heat of the liquid, and then, if you wish, to drink the rest of the soup as you would drink tea. Use only one handle as you lift the cup. Never use both handles . . . the second handle was put there to distinguish the bouillon cup from the tea cup. Of course, if you wish you can eat all of the soup with the bouillon spoon, or, as I say, you may drink the last part of it, after the first few sips.

Sorority Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is necessary that the girls wear hats to a sorority dinner to be given at 7 o'clock? We do not make a practice of dressing formally. E. K.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Ability to Trump Sometimes Adds to Declarer's Values

Holding three or more trumps, Dummy may always count in his values his ability to ruff side suits. As a rule it is an overvaluation to count anything for the declarer's ability to trump. If he counts full value for his trumps as trick winners, he cannot also count for a second time the ruffing values of the same cards. When the assisting hand's response shows unusual trump length, the declarer sometimes may add the ruffing values of his trumps. The following hand illustrates such a case:

Y: ♠ 7 6 4 ♥ K 10 7 4 ♣ 10 8 7 3 ♦ 8 3
A: ♠ K Q J 5 3 ♥ J 9 8 6 2 ♣ J ♦ K 4
B: ♠ A 10 9 2 ♥ 3 ♣ 6 5 ♦ A J 10 9 6 5
Z: ♠ 8 ♥ A Q 5 ♣ A K Q 9 4 2 ♦ Q 7 2

Z made a semi-demand opening bid of 2-Clubs. A overcalled with 2-Spades. Y would not have assisted an opening bid of only one, but he felt able to raise his partner's semi-demand bid to 3-Clubs. When considering a bid in excess of four, it is well to heed losing tricks held, as well as probable winners. It seemed to B that he had one losing card in hearts, as well as two club losers; on that account it appeared sounder for him to strongly support his partner's spades, rather than attempt to win one added trick at a minor suit make; so B jumped the bid to 4-Spades. Z ventured going 5-Clubs, which probably would be a cheap method of saving game. The only way A could find of counting enough tricks to risk 5-Spades was to count his ability to ruff clubs as one trick, in addition to his original trump valuation of 3½ probable tricks. Only the apparent length of trumps held by his partner warranted A's bid of 5-Spades, which held the contract.

The opening lead was the 3 of clubs. Z's Q won the trick. Before forcing A to trump a second club lead, Z laid down his Ace of hearts, fearing that the declarer might establish dummy's long diamond suit, to discard thereon all his hearts.

To win all the remaining tricks, A took three rounds of spades. Next he led out his K and Ace of diamonds, without trying to trap the Q. As both opponents followed with low cards he knew that the next lead would cause the missing Q to appear. The declarer used his last trump to win the trick. Then dummy had to use its last spade to trump a return lead of hearts. All B's diamonds were good, and the declarer claimed his five odd.

The following hand was played at diamonds. The opening lead was the J of clubs. How many tricks can be won against any possible subsequent defense? The answer will appear tomorrow.

Y: ♠ 10 6 5 ♥ A K ♣ 8 6 2 ♦ A K 7 5 4
A: ♠ 3 ♥ Q J 10 7 6 2 ♣ K 7 5 3 ♦ J 8
B: ♠ Q 9 8 7 4 ♥ 9 8 3 ♣ J 10 9 ♦ 3 2
Z: ♠ A K J 2 ♥ 5 4 ♣ A Q 4 ♦ Q 10 9 6

LIVER WITH BROWN GRAVY —Remove the skin and veins from 1 pound of liver. Place in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, add 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 medium sized onion, quartered, a small piece of bay leaf, 1 clove and 1 tablespoon minced parsley. Cook until liver is tender. Remove from saucepan, being careful to keep in one piece. Place in casserole or baking dish, cover with a rich brown gravy made by reducing the broth to one cup. Brown 1 tablespoon flour in 2 tablespoons butter, add a few gratings of nutmeg, a dash of paprika and the strained broth; boil for one minute, then add the juice of 1 lemon and more salt if necessary. Pour over the liver in the casserole and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serves four.

Women said:

YOU CAN'T KEEP SUDS LIKE THAT

BUT that was before they used the New Oxydol

● Maybe you've had this experience; most women have. You stir up suds in dishpan or laundry tub, only to see them ball up or fade away when you put in greasy dishes or dirty clothes.

But that doesn't happen with the New Oxydol. Sprinkle this soap in and see the amazing result. Rich—fluffy—permanent suds. Suds that soak the dirt out and keep it out—suds that don't collapse, letting the dirt fall back on the clothes. Suds that soak clothes gleaming white—that make dishes sparkling clean—that leave no scum.

Oxydol makes 50% more suds—that's why this safe, clean-smelling soap can do so much, even in the hardest water—and all water hardens when you put in dirty clothes or greasy dishes.

Try the New Oxydol. See what gorgeous suds it makes—how much time it saves in all household cleaning—and how kind it is to hands and dainty things.

TAPOFF BOYS SHINE IN FLOOR SERIES

WHILE THE CALIBER of some of the sectional high school champions competing in the current W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series in the Pitt Stadium pavilion is admitted to be somewhat lower than that of the contestants of previous years, Julius Levin reports one outstanding feature in the local classic. Practically every quintet in the series has presented for the edification of the fans a brilliant center. Even among the losing teams several had men at the tapoff posts who compared favorably with the best ever to compete in the eliminations.

Walter Miller

Good forwards and guards stood out in past series, but judging from the showing of the centers in the contests decided to date, the boys who start operations from the center of the court may monopolize the limelight this year. The fact that centers have played the starring roles in virtually all contests of the first and second rounds strengthens the possibility of such a development. From game to game so far the tapoff lads have stolen the show.

WALTER MILLER, of Homestead High, favorite to win the title, is admitted to be one of the best centers in the league. Swissvale, eliminated by Charleroi in the second round, had two capable performers in Nickel and Casillo. Harry Reasons, Burgettstown flash, is another who made an impression in the second round. Aliquippa presented a real star in Frank Milanovich, captain of the team.

Nason is a tower of strength to Mt. Lebanon. Zeimensky has been one of the shining lights for Ford City. Babe Dayoub is the sparkplug of the New Kensington attack. Joe Zenker, of the eliminated Sewickley Township quintet, so far ranks with the best to appear in the series. Tommy Hale paved the way for Braddock's victory over Uniontown.

JOE KOSTOLANSKY, picked as all-W. P. I. A. L. end in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football selections last fall, gave the fans attending the Charleroi-Swissvale duel a real treat by his brilliant all-around play. Local enthusiasts will see another great center when Lasky appears here with New Castle.

And speaking of good scholastic centers, City League followers are firm in the contention that Arthur Hyatt, Schenley ace and leading scorer of both sections of the loop, is as good as, if not better than, the best in the W. P. I. A. L. The brother of the great chipper Cholly, of Pitt fame, has played an important part in all the successes attained by the Bellefielders.

THE OPINION OF most baseball fans that the switching around of the Athletics' infielders was not intended as a permanent arrangement, and meant only that Connie Mack wanted to see what his new players could do, is confirmed by Mack himself. In the end he will present the same infield that played in the last world series. "My playing of Roettger at first and Foxx at third means nothing at all except that I'm anxious to see all I can of Roettger during the exhibition games. I know what Dykes can do, and I know what Foxx can do. But the only way I can find out about Roettger is to keep playing him. I like Roettger, and he looks like quite a ball player, but I still feel the same way about the infield as I have felt all along. We'll start the season with Foxx, Bishop, Williams and Dykes."

Lloyd Waner

WHEN THE CHIEFS of the Giants and Tigers got together on the coast the other day the talk drifted to outfielders, with the result that Bucky Harris and Jewel Ens asked to be put on record as voting for Lloyd Waner as the greatest in present-day baseball.

Coming from Ens, it was natural. Coming from Harris, always an American Leaguer, it clearly was not based on league sentiment. Asked about Simmons, Harris agreed that Al is a corking hitter, but he believes the star of the A's cannot cover ground nor judge fly balls with the Pirate center fielder.

JOHN M'GRAW disagreed with Harris and Ens. He named Kiki Cuyler as his choice, with offense as well as defense reckoned, saying that Ki covers a lot of ground, is always thinking, gets the ball away fast, and also has a heap of power and plenty of speed on the bases.

As for the younger Waner, McGraw admitted that he is the star center fielder of the majors and very fast. "But he beats out one-third of his hits," the Giant leader added in explaining why he gave the palm to the more robust Cuyler.

WHILE ON THE subject of outfielders, McGraw took occasion to deny a statement credited to Max Carey that Babe Herman had been offered to the Giants in a trade for Mel Ott. No such proposition ever was put up to him, directly or indirectly, the New York manager said, and anyhow he was not interested and would not consider swapping Ott for Herman. Babe, by the way, says he received a telegram from Carey warning him that he would be fined $100 for each day he absented himself from the Brooklyn camp after March 10. His reply was that he would not sign for the $15,000 offered and would pay no attention to any threats.

TAKING THE PLACE of Billy Petrolle against Battling Battalino in New York tonight, with the distance cut from 12 rounds to 10, Eddie Ran, of course, does not promise anything like the fireworks that might have been expected of the Fargo Express, had the latter not been forced to seek a postponement until March 23 on account of an injury to his neck.

Ran, whose proper name is Edouard Fitzmajster, has shown a lot of rare fighting qualities, including a real punch, since he came to this country from Poland in 1930, but he has not fought nearly as many good men as Battalino, and this difference in experience, for one thing, is likely to count against him tonight, just as it did when Petrolle stopped him recently. He may give Battalino a good fight in the early rounds, but it will be surprising if he escapes defeat in the end. Incidentally, it was Battalino himself who suggested Ran as a substitute for Petrolle.

MIKE GIBBONS, former ring star, tried to keep his son, Jack, at Detroit University, out of the boxing game. He tried hard to make the youngster give up his Queensberry ambitions.

Frank Moran

But the son finally won the argument and gained his sire's permission to compete among the amateurs. Mike insists that that is to be the limit. He isn't a father of the type to see his son as a coming wonder. He admits the boy boxes well, but says he'll never be a world beater.

FRANK MORAN, former Pittsburgh heavyweight fighter, and until the reorganization of the California commission a year ago chief boxing inspector of the Los Angeles district, is filling a new role. He is athletic director for the Big Six Company at Boulder City, and puts on fights, baseball games and other sports for the 3,300 men employed there. At present Moran is trying to book an exhibition baseball game with the New York Giants. He wants John McGraw to take his club to the big dam, and promises that the Giants will draw as much money there as in many towns in which they are booked to play, estimating the gate at $5,000. The McGrawites, incidentally, in their two-a-day training show at Wrigley Field in Los Angeles, have been pulling like a circus, drawing as many persons as attend Coast League games on week days.

The basketball championship of the City League will be up for settlement this afternoon when Schenley High, champion of Section I, meets Allegheny High, champion of Section II, in the third and final battle of their post-season series in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Schenley, defeated in the opening game of the series, 22-20, is a heavy favorite to retain the title it won last season as a result of the convincing manner in which it evened the count by taking the second contest. Allegheny was unable to check the Bellefielders' drive in the second contest last Tuesday, dropping a 31-9 verdict, and unless the Springer charges have improved considerably, they are likely to suffer another setback this afternoon.

ATTACK CHECKED

Allegheny, aside from scoring 14 points in the opening period of the first period, has found its attack well bottled by Schenley. In the last seven periods of the two games, the North Siders have been held to a total of 17 points, while Schenley has counted exactly 50.

Schenley will be striving for its fifth City League championship in today's battle. The Bellefielders won the crown in 1917, 1926, 1927 and 1931.

While the basketball players are tangling for the title in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, the swimming championships of the junior and senior high schools get under way in the Connelley Trade School pool. The semi-finals will be staged this afternoon and the finals in the same pool next Tuesday.

SERIES RESUMED

Tonight in the Pitt Stadium pavilion the quarter finals of the W. P. I. A. L. elimination will be resumed with New Kensington, champion of Section I, clashing with East Pike Run, champion of Section XVI. The winner earns the right to engage the Homestead-Charleroi victor in the semi-finals on March 17.

New Kensington qualified for the quarter finals by defeating Sewickley Township in a hard-fought second round engagement, 32-29, while East Pike Run advanced at the expense of Canonsburg, 28-16.

Carl Glock is coach of the New Kensington floor machine, while Joe Guerra, former Grove City flash, is mentor at East Pike Run.

Monessen, 1931 champion of Westmoreland County, begins the defense of its title tonight in Greensburg when the eighth annual tournament gets under way.

CROWD TO MOTOR HERE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 11.—The New Castle Motor Club and a committee of citizens are co-operating to organize an immense motorcade to carry several thousand enthusiastic supporters of the New Castle High School basketball team to Pittsburgh next Tuesday when New Castle meets Braddock in the quarter finals of the W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination series.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TWO NEIGHBORS NEVER MET IN 118 YEARS—Thomas Kemp and Benjamin Hodge are each 118 years old, and, although they have lived most of their lives within five miles of each other in Poplar Bluff, Mo., they never met until a short time ago. After 118 years, the ice finally was broken by Kemp addressing a "Glad to meet you" to his ancient neighbor. Kemp is a small man and an invalid, as a result of an accident 95 years ago, and Hodge is a large six-footer. The two men sat chatting for two hours in the shade of a tree, still discussing the wisdom of electing Jackson 100 years ago.

STATE MEETS PANTHER FIVE TOMORROW

Probable Lineup

Carnegie Tech.		Penn State.
Smith	F	Davis
Silverman	F	McFarlane
Stentz	C	(C) Brand
Fergus	G	McMinn
Leonard (C)	G	Conn

Referee—Yans Wallace. Umpire—Dan Brickley.

By JESS CARVER

They are ready to jerk down the curtain on the basketball scene at Carnegie Tech and will do so tonight, assisted by Penn State's Nittany Lions, who are in town for the week end. After helping with the closing ceremonies at Tech tonight, the Lions will move over to the Pitt Stadium tomorrow and co-star with Pitt's Panthers in the finale.

Ed McMinn

For many y'ars Deutschland Uber Alles Hermann, Penn State's graying basketball coach, has been bringing teams to Pittsburgh. He has met with varying success, but always has been, and always will be, welcome. Of late years Dutch's teams have been kicked around consistently, especially by Pitt, but the Old History Professor ever has retained his calm and collected demeanor, kept his hair parted in the middle and promised to do better in the future.

State started off in championship stride this season and, for a time, it looked like Dutch's team was going places. Then the boys came upon lean days, and have taken seven consecutive wallops on the button, including one by Pitt.

BRAND AT CENTER

Fred Brand, of Sewickley, a star in the collegiate and amateur golf firmament, is captain and center of this year's State team. His supporting cast, stronger than usual, is of real potential worth. At one of the guards, State sports a high scoring performer in Ed McMinn. Norris McFarlane, of McKeesport, and Lewellyn Davis are the forwards and Don Conn pairs off with McMinn at the other guard job.

Carnegie will go to bat without Lou Jagnow again, and Red (Silvertip) Silverman will be in at forward in his stead. Bob Smith, of course, is a fixture at the other forward, with Fergus and Capt. Jimmy Leonard at the guards and Eddie Stentz at center. Stentz and Leonard wind up their varsity careers with tonight's contest.

LEONARD SCRAPPER

Leonard, who was adjudged too small for high school competition, stuck in there fightin' and brings a commendable career to a close tonight. Jim, nicknamed "Brute" by Der Maxie Hannum, who isn't so tough himself, has made a fine leader, a clever player and all-round fine guy.

The freshman teams meet in a preliminary.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Charley Baxter vs. Benny McArthur, 10 rounds; Davy Grove vs. Paul Oper, 8 rounds, and Eddie Shenn vs. Max Elling and Johnny Hazel vs. Johnny Montebano, 6 rounds each, Kapphan Arena.

Finals of Golden Gloves amateur tournament, [illegible], Beaver Falls, Pa.

Battling Battalino vs. Eddie Ran, 10 rounds; [illegible], Madison Square Garden, New York.

Pittsburgh fans get a crack at real popular-priced boxing tonight when, for the first time in many years, 50 cents will be charged for general admission to a professional show. Eddie Kapphan, the city's newest promoter, has hit upon this plan to spur interest in the shows in his arena, in Addison street, off Center avenue.

Kapphan has set aside 1,200 seats to go at movie prices, with the others at $1. Hitherto his prices have been $1 and $2.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight with a punch, who is challenging the Gizzys and all of the others in his class, meets Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, in the 10-round main bout. Benny is a good boxer and may foil Baxter and halt his rush forward.

Davy Grove, of the North Side, and Paul Oper, of Wheeling, welters, are in the eight-round semi-final; Eddie Shenn, of Turtle Creek, and Max Elling, of the Hill, in the second bout, and Johnny Hazel, of the Hill, and Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, in the opener, set for 8:30 o'clock. Hazel will be turning professional in this battle, with Cuddy DeMarco, former local ring ace, as his manager.

Bill Dummer, matchmaker of the Arena, announced today that he has resigned from the position, effective after tonight's show. It is likely Apples Meyers will hook up with Kapphan as the latter's matchmaker.

PIN TOURNEY LEADS CHANGE

W. Secrist, who took the singles lead on the first day, was the only top-notcher to hold his place in the Tri-State tenpin bowling tourney, being staged at the Iroquois Alleys, yesterday. Fort Pitt Brewing advanced to first place in the five-men team event, with 2,806 pins, and L. Muck and P. Bartmen, of Braddock, gained the top in the doubles, with 1,138. Secrist's 618 was very safe, Bill Ortlieb, of the North Side, going into second place yesterday with 606.

R. Barney and G. Ritchey, who took the initial doubles lead, now are runners-up, while Keystone A. C., which led the teams, is tied for third with Iroquois, at 2,737. The Braddock Muck Brothers are in second place, having bowled 2,757. Rolling was to continue today.

Three-game total pins recorded yesterday follow:

SALE OF REDS IN PROSPECT

TAMPA, Fla., March 11.—(AP.)—Dickerings with the Brooklyn Dodgers involving holdouts Stripp and Cuccinello, of the Cincinnati Reds, moved on today while reports buzzed about camp that Norman Perry, owner of the Indianapolis club of the American Association, again is seeking to buy the Reds.

Stripp and Cuccinello were the best hitters for the Reds last year. But, wearied with bickerings with them, the Reds' management is talking over a swap for Third Baseman Wally Gilbert and Outfielder John Frederick, of the Dodgers.

The sale report was that the Central Trust Company, of Cincinnati, a major stockholder in the club, had sent a representative to interview Perry, who has bid twice before, but been refused.

GOOSE GOSLIN SIGNS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—(AP.)—Goose Goslin, star fielder and slugger, was in the St. Louis Browns' fold today, leaving only four holdouts listed on the club roster. Goslin signed his contract yesterday after lengthy conferences with Owner Phil Ball over salary figures. Neither of them made known the terms of the contract.

VANGS OPPOSE CAVALRY TRIO

The Vangs and the 308th Cavalry teams will fight it out for second place in the Pittsburgh Polo League standing tomorrow night when they meet in a six-chukker match in Hunt Armory. The Vangs originally were scheduled to meet the Akron team, of the Inter-City League, but bad weather prevented them from shipping the ponies to Pittsburgh from Akron by truck.

Perritt, Young and Linton will ride for the Cavalry, and Vang, Adams and Babcock, who furnished many thrills last week in the game against the 107th Field Artillery, will oppose them. Col. George Cherrington will call the game at 8:30 o'clock.

CITY, GREATER PITTSBURGH LEAGUES SET

SANDLOTTERS POST FORFEITS AT CONFABS

By TOM BIRKS

Organization plans for two of Pittsburgh's leading sandlot baseball leagues practically were completed last night at special meetings. The City League met at Books, with five teams enrolled, while the Greater Pittsburgh circuit convened at Edgewood, and six teams put up the necessary forfeits for the season ahead.

President Harry Yerx presided at the City League session and five clubs, Dormont, Homewood, Books, J. L. Thomas, and the North Side Civics were on hand. Jimmy Rooney represented the Civics in the absence of brother Art, but the North Side legislator stated that Art would be back in town today from his honeymoon in Florida and California. Hank Daly, Bill Fuchs, Belsterling, Ed Buch, Everett Sweeney, Johnny Dunsky, Pip Contestible, Ray Kennedy and Rooney attended.

NORTH SIDE NINE OUT

It was definitely settled that the North Side Buicks were to be dropped but Dunsky is dickering in other quarters. Prexy Yerx feels that eight clubs will make up the circuit. He appointed committees to confer with managers who have outfits suitable to compete in City League class. Stowe, Bellevue and Wilkinsburg are being considered. The loop will hold its final meeting next Thursday night, when the managers expect to close matters.

In the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, Edgewood, Braddock Klabans, Verona, Wilkinsburg Murs, Immaculate Heart and Iroquois posted forfeits and the sponsors are dickering with four other teams for the remaining two berths.

TEAMS LINE UP

Whittaker is said to have passed on, according to well-posted sportsmen. The Homestead Aces have been approached, but the Aces probably will continue in the West Penn organization.

The West Penn finds Homestead Aces, North Versailles, Turtle Creek, Westinghouse Alumni, Swissvale and the Griffins ready to operate, with Soho Board of Trade again reported in the field.

It is the intention of the Greater Pittsburgh League also to offer the Wilkinsburg Millikens a berth, but the Hunter street aggregation is reported to be leaning to the West Penn circuit.

LONDON, March 11.—(AP.)—The Queens Park Rangers yesterday defeated Gillingham, 7 to 0, in an English Soccer League match of the Southern Section, Third Division.

Donnelli is Signed At Ellwood City High

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., March 11.—Aldo (Buff) Donnelli, freshman coach at Duquesne University, has been named as head coach of Ellwood City High School to succeed Bob Ingle, physical director. Application for the position was made by C. O. Benson, of Thiel College. Donnelli will assume his duties next fall.

HANDBALL PLAY SEMI-FINALS TODAY

The national junior handball championship semi-finals matches are slated for Keystone Athletic Club courts this afternoon with three locals and one out-of-towner matching skill. Theos Manos, city champion, plays his clubmate, Frank Smith, while M. A. Bates, of Dallas Y. M. C. A., opposes R. Preininger, of Downtown Y. M. C. A., Pittsburgh. The doubles event also gets under way this afternoon.

Manos is the top favorite to win the title. In yesterday's two rounds, he eliminated E. C. Eckhardt, P. A. A., and Joe O'Malley, Detroit. Smith beat B. B. Coullahan, Langley Field, Va., and Steve Myers, Downtown Y.; Bates bumped J. P. Smith, East Liberty Y., and A. A. Bialas, P. A. A., and Preininger topped Harry Krailing, Jr., P. A. A., and John Endzwick, of Cleveland.

McCook Reed, Pittsburgh G. C., opposes Dave Gilmore, Allegheny Country Club, for the Class A city squash racquets championship at the K. A. C. tomorrow as a result of their victories in semi-finals. Reed eliminated the Class B champion, G. C. Kennedy, K. A. C., 15-5, 15-13, 15-10, while Gilmore disposed of Bill Bickel, K. A. C. king, 15-6, 15-12, 15-13.

Yesterday's handball results and today's pairings follow:

RESULTS

First round—M. A. Bates, Dallas Y. M. C. A., defeated J. Parker Smith, East Liberty Y. M. C. A., 21-10, 21-8; A. A. Bialas, P. A. A., defeated M. E. Fierst, Y. M. H. A., 21-6, 21-7; John Endzwick, Cleveland Y. M. C. A., defeated W. H. Donian, K. A. C., 21-10, 21-7; R. Preininger, Downtown Y. M. C. A., defeated Harry Krailing, Jr., P. A. A., 18-21, 21-18, 21-12; Steve Meyers, Downtown Y. M. C. A., won by default from Dave Olsom, Y. M. H. A.; Frank Smith, K. A. C., defeated B. B. Coullahan, Langley Field, Va., 21-5, 21-10; Joe O'Malley, St. Vincent, Detroit, defeated H. S. Foley, Downtown Y. M. C. A., 21-12, 21-12; Theos Manos, K. A. C., defeated E. C. Eckhardt, P. A. A., 21-10, 21-4.

Second round—Bates defeated Bialas, 21-11, 21-6; Preininger defeated Endzwick, 21-5, 21-4; Smith defeated Meyers, 21-6, 21-8; Manos defeated O'Malley, 21-15, 21-5.

PAIRINGS

Doubles—Manos and Smith, K. A. C., vs. Lanzilli and Thorton, P. A. A., 12:15; Preininger and Foley, Y. M. C. A., vs. Deakin and Carroll, Cleveland, 12:15; Bialas and Krailing, Jr., P. A. A., vs. Fierst and Lapidus, Y. M. H. A., 1:15; Carl and partner, K. A. C., vs. Goudreau and Brown, Cleveland, 1:15.

Nick Altrock Says:

BILOXI, Miss., March 11.—I said to Griff today, "What are the chances for a raise this season?"

Griff said, "The chances are 50-50. I'll keep both fifties and you can have the hyphen in the middle."

Nick Altrock

I said, "I thought you might boost me $1,000."

Griff said, "With things the way they are, I could sign up Will Rogers at that price."

I said, "Okay, Griff. Then I am thinking of holding out."

Griff said, "Well, don't do any thinking on the club's time. That would be a new wrinkle for you."

Dempsey Scores One K. O. in Akron

The former heavyweight champion was jarred by a hard punch on the jaw, but fought back to knock out Hank Hankison, Akron unknown, in the second round.

Tiny Powell, Akron, made an easy target for Dempsey's punches, but managed to last the route.

MRS. M'KECHNIE DEPARTS

Mrs. William B. McKechnie, of Wilkinsburg, entrained for the South yesterday to join Skipper Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves. Mrs. McKechnie will meet Bill at Jacksonville, Fla., and they will continue to St. Petersburg, the Braves training camp.

FAIRMONT WEST HIGH WINS

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 11.—(AP.)—Montgomery and Fairmont West High schools remained in the running for the state scholastic basketball title today by winning their first round games in the annual tournament at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Montgomery walloped Kingwood, 27-14, and Fairmont West took Charleston's measure, 33-21.

The first game of the morning ended with Montgomery an easy winner. The quintet from the banks of the Kanawha led, 9 to 3, in the end of the first quarter and 16 to 7 at the half. Kingwood could not score in the third period, and Montgomery led then, 23 to 7. Allen and Margolis led the victors' attack.

Fairmont West was slow in starting, but came up strong to defeat the boys from the capital. Charleston led at the end of the first quarter, 8-7, but the score was 11-all at the half. Fairmont was ahead, 21-15, at the three-quarter pole and coasted away fast in the final frame.

Washington-Irving defeated Logan, 32-27, in the third game, while Huntingdon was forced to play an extra three-minute period to vanquish Hundred, 22-21, in the last game of the morning round.

Sport Tales

Cup Jenkins' basketball team, of Homestead, is going to the Rockview Penitentiary to play the prison team Saturday night of next week, and a host of followers of the team will accompany it for the trip.

Last fall, Jenkins took a football team to Rockview and handed the prison eleven its first setback in five years.

Cup denies an attempt will be made to line up an all-Homestead district team in the penitentiary to meet his five.

Indoor baseball played with the aid of darts is the daily recreation of the employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the Master Mechanics' office in Pitcairn, the Storehouse and Master Mechanics' offices have been meeting each other for the past three weeks, with the Storehouse boys leading, 16 to 12, with one tie game.

Crawfords Leave For Training Camp

In charge of Manager Oscar Charleston, a good-sized squad of players of the Crawford baseball club, local Negro team, departed this afternoon for Hot Springs, Ark., where the Crawfords will partake of spring training. The trip to the Arkansas resort is being made by autobus. Booking Agent Billy Nixon stated that plans for the opening game and for the season's schedule were progressing satisfactorily.

RANGERS BUY VOSS

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers have announced the purchase of Carl Voss, of the Buffalo Bisons, leading scorer of the International Hockey League.

WESTINGHOUSE BOWS

Fifth Avenue High defeated Westinghouse, 15-10, 9-15, 15-11, at volley ball yesterday.

One more compromise

To forestall any possible criticism we hasten to state that this couple is married—and what's more, happily married. The photograph, we feel, interprets rather beautifully a thought we have wanted to express for some time. Has it ever occurred to you that a successful marriage requires one compromise after another? From the altar on through life, when you consider it, real happiness demands a generous spirit of give and take between husband and wife. Each must overlook the other's faults with loving patience.

It so happens that the young woman shown above freely forgives a persistent neglect. Her husband is not particular about shaving. How can his caresses be thoroughly welcome when his face is rough with bristles! Yet her patient attitude betrays not a hint of criticism. She is tolerant and gracious, as ever.

• • •

Most men, you will agree, are fairly regular in their shaving habits. But we all know that a man can shave without being clean shaven. And surely no man can look his best with even a faint trace of stubble. It is our firm belief that today's Gillette blades are positively unequalled for shaving tender faces smoothly. These phenomenal blades get all the stubble and give you a degree of comfort quite impossible to describe.

We urge you to let today's Gillette prove its worth. Buy a package and try a blade or two on our guarantee. Every shave must be cleaner and finer than any you have ever experienced before—or return the package to your dealer and get your money back.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY
BOSTON, MASS.

THE GILLETTE BLUE SUPER-BLADE

The $2 Kroman DeLuxe blade has been withdrawn from production and replaced with the sensational Blue Super-Blade—far superior to the Kroman. You pay only a few cents more for the Blue Blade than for the regular blade and get unmatched shaving comfort. The Blue Blade is of extraordinary quality—without reservation the finest blade ever produced. Colored blue for easy identification—it is contained in a blue package, cellophane wrapped, and is made by a distinctly different process. Distribution is not yet complete—so if your dealer hasn't the Blue Blade, ask him to get it for you, which he can, quickly.

6 CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD

Extra VALUES

GUM-DIPPED CORDS
The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

Two Extra Cord Plies Under the Tread
This is a patented construction and the two extra cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

Quiet, Safe, Long-Wearing Non-Skid Tread

BEN GINSBERG HIT OF MAT PROGRAM

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

We want Ginsberg. Not Cantor, but Ginsberg.

After last night's wrestling show at Motor Square Garden, we want more of Benny Ginsberg, Jewish grappler from Chicago, who gave the fair-sized crowd a laugh a second throughout 10 minutes 5 seconds of comedy wrestling against the serious and able Hans Kampfer, of Germany, before he was pinned with a leg hold.

Ginsberg is an actor from the top of his head to the tips of his toes. He started off punching and sparring and protesting when his opponent retaliated. When the crowd roared he shook his fist at it and waved his defiance. In between he fought with the referee and at the finish he refused to shake hands with his foe in a great show of histrionic temperament.

GAME TAKES HOLD

If we may take our wrestling lightly, the Ginsbergs of the mat will do much to put the sport across here. They are much better to gaze upon that the punching, slapping behemoths whom we are asked to take seriously. Anyway, the crowd enjoyed the Ginsberg show and ranted and raved at the other bouts, and no one was hurt, and they didn't have to take anyone to a hospital at the finish; and the stage thus is set for another bill two weeks hence.

Sooner or later we shall have Jim Londos, the great big champion, with us, and then we'll see the dream of every wrestling promoter—a sellout. Alas that Pittsburgh should come to this: but it has, and there doesn't seem to be anything that can be done about it. The rasslers have landed on their feet.

SPEERS, MAXOS WIN

Frank Speers, erstwhile Georgia Tech football luminary, who won a decision over Ray Steele in the first show, two weeks ago, last night tossed Floyd Marshall, of Chicago, in 24 minutes in the main bout. A body hold, following a series of flying tackles, turned the trick after a lot of agony on both sides.

John Maxos, New York Greek, who was sent to a hospital by Strangler Lewis in the windup of the opening show, threw Charles Fox, Cleveland policeman, with a prolonged headlock, followed by a lot of slamming around and a half-nelson and crotch hold in 14 minutes 40 seconds of the scheduled 45-minute limit semi-final.

GARIBALDI TOSSES VASSELL

Gino Garibaldi, of Italy, tossed George Vassell, California Greek veteran, in 22 minutes with a half-nelson and body hold. This was the best bout on the card and produced more real wrestling than all of the others combined.

Jack Zarnos, announced as a former Kiski School athlete, won the referee's decision over Charles Blackstock, of Chicago, in a rough opener, the only bout to go the limit. The judges, Dr. A. R. Cratty and Jack Sill, disagreed. Charles Dickerhoff refereed all of the bouts.

None of the contestants scaled less than 200 pounds and the aggregate tonnage of the 10 principals was 2,116 pounds on the hoof. A lot of beef—if you want something to beef about.

Bobcats Set Down Mountaineers, 26-22

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 11.—Reserve material, one of the most important factors on every baseball team, will be strong in the makeup of the Pirates in the coming season.

Gibson, looking to the far-distant future, has prepared his ground work well, and has lined up a suitable substitute for every position on the Pirate club, with the possible exception of one.

The Regular-Yanigan games played thus far have brought out the fact that the Buccos will not want for capable subs. The Yans, while losing four games out of five to the Regs, are by no means a greatly inferior team.

RECRUITS SHINE

Clever pitching by several recruit hurlers on more than one occasion brought the veteran aggregation through with a triumph. The Yans, while pounding the offerings of the hurlers to all corners of the lot in the inter-club game, could not bunch their hits to any great extent and lost many opportunities.

Yesterday the Yans displayed their real power behind the clever hurling of Bill Harris and Larry French, winning, 4 to 2. They came through in fine style both a. the bat and in the field.

The Hooligan outfield, with Dugas, Barbee and Rice, need not take a back seat among outfields of the National League at the present time. All three are powerful hitters and speed merchants.

MUCH EXPECTED OF SUHR

Gibby has been playing his Yanigans with a sort of borrowed infield. He has two catchers in the inner garden, Simas at third and McEwan at first. His keystone sack combination of Groskloss and Vaughn leaves little to be desired in a fielding way, and both Howdy and Floyd have been coming through with some great stick work lately.

Suhr is the only player on the club who does not have a suitable substitute, and this in itself expresses the confidence that Gibson has in his chances of being one of the National League stars this year.

Charley Wood and Ray Kremer, the two ailing members on the Pirate squad, both worked out with the squad yesterday. Kremer left for his home in Oakland after lunch and will remain there until the Pirates arrive Sunday. Wood worked out in the afternoon and announced he suffered no ill effects after the session.

RAN IS FAVORED

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—It is seldom a substitute enters the ring a favorite, but Eddie Ran probably will enjoy that distinction against Battling Battalino, former featherweight king, in tonight's 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

CHAMP IN TOURNEY

BEN POPE MYRON A. BATES

Bates, National Y. M. C. A. handball champion, hailing from Dallas, Tex., is the favorite to win the National junior A. A. U. tournament in progress at the Keystone A. C. Pope, Keystone Club pro, was the runner-up in the National professional squash tournament last year. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

PITT MERMEN SEEK LAURELS

Pat Corr's Pitt swimmers, champions of the Eastern Collegiate Swimming Association since their 39-20 victory over Carnegie Tech Wednesday afternoon, left this morning for Lancaster, Pa., where they will take part in the individual championships of the association.

Three of the Panthers are rated better than ordinary chances of winning titles tomorrow. They are Jack Hanna in the 440-yard free style, John Carik in the fancy diving, and Herman Adlersberg, in the 100-yard free style. Hanna, probably the greatest of the three, will be up against the great Walter Spence, of Rutgers.

W. Va. to Protest Boxing Selections

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 11.—(AP.)—H. A. Stansbury, athletic director at West Virginia University, will protest the selections made from among the West Virginia boxers for the first eastern intercollegiate boxing conference tournament at Pittsburgh. He objected to the committee's selection of Douglas Vorhees, Mountaineer substitute in the 155-pound class. The committee apparently passed up Robert Latham, regular 155-pounder, and Fred Fisher, 125 pounds, both rated higher than Vorhees.

ALLDERDICE VICTOR

GUNDELFINGER IN SEMI-FINAL

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 11.—W. T. Gundelfinger, of Pittsburgh, is playing his semi-final round match for the Volusia golf championship over the Ormond Beach Golf Club course today. He is opposing Fielding V. Jackson, of Point Judith, R. I., former Yale pitcher, in the title division.

In the other contest, Henry Haynes, of Lake Placid, N. Y., winner of the qualifying medal, is meeting Fred Merkle, former New York Giants baseball star.

Haynes defeated W. N. Newlin, of Daytona Beach, by 2 and 1. Merkle won from H. Courtney, of Stamford, N. Y., by a similar score.

TECH YEARLINGS WIN

SALTSBURG, Pa., March 11.—With Rigg, Carlson and Ewalt leading the attack, the Carnegie Plebes defeated Kiski Prep in basketball here yesterday afternoon by a 40-21 margin. The lineup:

SEXTON SETS RECORD

MT. LEBANON BEATEN BY FORD CITY

An inspired Ford City High School basketball team, playing without the services of its best bet, Joe Vent, who was forced to remain at home because of an attack of influenza, last night earned the right to meet the winner of the Braddock-New Castle battle in the semi-finals of the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations by vanquishing Mt. Lebanon in a quarter-final engagement, 40-17.

Thus did Neenie Campbell's Section VI champions serve notice on Bill Campbell's Homestead passers, champions of Section VII and favorites to win the title, that Armstrong County is in the fight to the finish.

VICTOR IMPRESSIVE

Having tasted victory for the first time in W. P. I. A. L. play against North Union, champion of Section XIII, Ford City came to town for a feast last night. Their appetitites sharpened after seven long years of disappointment, the Armstrong Countians could not be stopped, and they swept to victory in a convincing manner.

Mt. Lebanon was a beaten quintet from the outset. Ford City piled up a 12-4 lead in the first period, led 24-10 at the half, raised the advantage to 31-11 at the end of the third quarter and finished the contest by scoring nine points to its opponents' six in the final period.

CULLEN REAL STAR

Mt. Lebanon, accompanied by the largest crowd that has turned out for a tournament contest this year, never stopped fighting despite the fact that it was trailing from the start. Its supporters likewise never lost their enthusiasm and were still cheering for their favorites at the finish.

Chester Cullen, a substitute injected into the game to fill the shoes of the ailing Vent, proved himself one of the outstanding stars of the contest. Cullen bagged four field goals and three fouls for 11 points, just one behind Willits, the leading scorer of the game, who bagged four field goals and four foul goals. Davidson led the losers in scoring with six points, representing two field goals and two fouls. The lineup:

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Denied the taste of pennant pie through seven long years, John McGraw again hungers for a slice of the highly-flavored food. The seven lean years in the life of the Little Napoleon represent the longest stretch he has been off the top since he took charge of the Giants almost 30 years ago.

The producer of the old-time Broadway successes thinks he has an excellent chance to break the spell this year, despite the class of the world champion Cardinals, who are favorites to repeat in the senior loop. John J., his colorful team in training at Los Angeles, is optimistic; in fact he has told New York fans to be ready for big things.

The absence of one or two righthanders of the caliber of Heinie Meine or Pat Malone may stand between McGraw and his dream. The New York chieftain is at the head of a great club, but his sharpshooting division is a bit lopsided; he has plenty of strength in the southpaw section, but his righthanders are not so hot.

Reports from Los Angeles are to the effect that Bill Walker and Carl Hubbell, clever lefthanders who finished one-two in effectiveness in the league last year, are almost in top shape already. Then there is Jim Mooney, another portsider who may be a regular this year.

McGraw has reason to be worried about his righthanders, for aside from Fred Fitzsimmons there is none to look upon as a consistent winner. True, he has several impressive recruits, but these are still recruits.

In Hogan, O'Farrell and Healey the Giants have a great receiving set. Hogan is the ace of this Lithuanian trio, but young Healey has received some heavy press notices from New York writers. O'Farrell would look sweet on any catching staff in the league, especially the Pirates', yet Bob may find it hard to get anything like regular action in New York.

The Giants sport one of the best infields in baseball; if Hughey Critz is able to go to his post, the Polo Grounders may surpass the Redbirds in this department of play. Terry, Jackson and Vergez are topliners, with Lindstrom available if necessary. Fred also is a star pivot man of the outfield. The pasture galaxy includes such luminaries as Ott, Leach, Allen and Koenecke.

U. S. OFFICIALS SCORED FOR STOCK TIPS

Senators Discuss Damage With Financial Writer Urging Prosperity Loan

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Economic instability in the United States, from which the country is now suffering, has been heightened by government by means of the stock ticker.

Solons at the capital and executive officers in the post-war prosperity unwittingly and doubtless from the best of motives became too much influenced in their thinking by the course of fluctuations of stock prices. Ralph Robey, the economist, went further and charged certain administration officials with needlessly influencing the course of price movements by gratuitously offering the public advice on speculative questions, such as whether brokers' loans were too high in 1928.

Mr. Rukeyser.

This larger issue of the hypnotic effect of the stock market on the thinking of public officials was brought to my attention yesterday by Senator Royal Copeland, of New York, when I appeared as an invited witness before the Senate sub-committee of the Committee on Education and Labor, which is conducting hearings on the merits of the LaFollette bill to accelerate public works through a prosperity loan.

I cited the official approval given to this type of mechanism for economic stability in 1923 by a committee appointed by the President's conference on unemployment. That committee laid out the blue prints for preventive medicine in finance, which, if followed, would have obviated numerous costly mistakes. Senator Copeland, a member of the sub-committee, declared that in response to the expert recommendations in 1923 he introduced a bill to carry into effect such sound recommendations, but was laughed down in Congress on the ground that business was then already improving.

If it is news when a man bites a dog, perhaps it is news when distinguished senators interrogate a humble newspaperman. I was subjected to that unique experience yesterday.

And hereafter when my good friends in Wall street and out speak about the wicked Senators, I shall want to cite the extreme courtesy, thoughtfulness and kindness shown to me. Irrespective of the viewpoint of the inquiring Senator on the public works controversy, there was friendliness and kindness shown toward the voluntary witnesses.

My appearance before the Senate sub-committee enabled me to put into the record an outsider's appreciation of the intelligent work which Senator Robert F. LaFollette, Jr., is performing.

Oil Industry Seeking State Regulation of Volume of Production

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

LEADERS IN THE oil trade have undergone a marked change of viewpoint. A few years ago the mere thought of government regulation would have driven them into a panic. Today they are practically begging for government interference in their business.

Amos L. Beaty, president of the American Petroleum Institute, offered state regulation of production as the only logical solution of the current troubles of the industry in an address last night before the California Oil and Gas Association at Los Angeles, Cal.

In the palmy days of the oil industry, not so long ago, it was not unusual to hear the presidents of outstanding companies, when discussing some phase of their activities at national meetings or conventions, declare:

"We must put a stop to that. If we go too far government regulation will be forced on us. We all want to avoid anything like that."

But now the oil industry is on its knees, asking for much the same thing it feared in the past. The oil industry does not want complete government regulation. But it does want some form of control of production. It wants all producers to be forced to keep output within the limits of demand. The industry feels that, if this is done, it can go about the business of refining and marketing without many of the troubles that harass it at present.

Control of Resources Is Important Factor

REGULATION OF THE oil industry does not fall under the same conditions as are found in the railroad and public utility fields. There is no element of a publicly granted monopoly or franchise in oil. It is in much the same situation as any other industry except for one factor. Its raw material is a natural resource. It is needed for the public defense. It is important for future generations that the supply be maintained. The present method of exploiting oil fields is wasteful and does not produce the maximum possible yield of products. In view of these conditions, government intervention in the oil business may be justified without breaking the bonds of precedent where private affairs are concerned.

Mr. Beaty, in his address, declared that federal supervision offers difficulties. The powers of the national government are limited to interstate commerce and a large share of the activities of the oil industry would not come under its control. State regulation, in his opinion, offers the only solution. He admitted this type of control was subject to objections. From time to time individual states would allot excessive quotas to their particular fields, but he predicted that in the long run, this type of control would solve the problem.

Steps Taken by States So Far Are Inadequate

WHILE SOME STATES have taken steps to control oil production, the efforts of most have not gone far enough, in Mr. Beaty's opinion. It is not sufficient to enforce control of production which will check physical waste. Economic waste through the effect of excessive production on market prices and through the loss in value from storing in tanks for long periods must also be considered.

Oklahoma, he declared, is the only state which has taken up the problem from this standpoint. Others have approached this logical solution but have not gone the whole way. Further legislation is necessary in most states in order to bring about full control of natural resources and the prevention of economic as well as physical waste, Mr. Beaty thinks.

GRAIN TRADING NARROW

CHICAGO, March 11.—Influenced by big shipments of wheat from the Southern Hemisphere, grain prices averaged lower early today. Moderating temperatures in domestic winter wheat territory were also a bearish factor. Opening unchanged to ⅜c down, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn also started unchanged to ⅜c off, and subsequently kept steady.

A steadying influence was a trade report that 8,000,000 acres in Kansas had deficient subsoil moisture, and showed a growth condition of only 62 per cent.

Big Loss Reported By Amn. Locomotive

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—Reflecting the almost complete stagnation of the railroad equipment business during 1931, the American Locomotive Company reported today a net loss after depreciation of $3,929,384, which contrasts with a net profit of $3,778,558 the year before.

Because of its strong cash position, the company's directors paid the regular preferred dividends throughout the period, but scaled the common rate from 50 cents in the first quarter to 25 cents in the second and third quarters, and then finally omitted it entirely. After deducting for dividends, the company had a loss for the year of $7,316,670. The company's profit and loss surplus as of December 31 stood at $20,661,196.

Lehigh Valley Asks Approval on Issue

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(INS.)—In order to finance the purchase of 20 locomotives, the Lehigh Valley Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $2,078,0000 of 5 per cent equipment trust certificates.

Chrysler Notes Gain in Business

English Bank Rate Cut May Check Gold Flow Into London

Having disappointed the financial world a week ago by maintaining its discount rate at 5 per cent, the Bank of England yesterday obliged by lowering its charge to 4 per cent, this making the second reduction within a fortnight. The cut can reasonably be ascribed as measuring an adjustment of the official rate to the extreme ease in the London open market, but it might perhaps hold a little more significance, possibly being meant to serve as a check in the flow of funds into London from other parts of the world, and intended to stop the headlong advance witnessed in sterling the past week.

A let-up in deflation of credit in small cities and country districts is being indicated by the stability for the past four weeks of reserve deposits of country member banks of the Reserve System. This is the first evidence so far available that government and private efforts to end the drastic reduction in credit which started last July is proving effective. Stability of reserve deposits during the past four weeks is equivalent to an increase since the usual seasonal trend at this time of year is downward.

The New York financial community did not seek to hide its disappointment with the tonnage report of the Steel Corporation. Most observers were quite taken back by the further reduction of 102,521 tons reported in the backlog on the books at the close of February. Considering the low rate of steel production during the month this showing could only have been interpreted as indicating that new business dipped almost to the vanishing point last month, reflecting the dearth of demand from principal consumers such as the railroads and the motor companies. The current total of unfilled orders, 2,525,629 tons, stands as the smallest reported by the corporation since it began to issue the monthly figures back in 1910.

Expenditures of National Steel Corporation for maintenance during 1931, which were charged against earnings, were almost equal to the profits of $4,443,323, or $2.06 a capital share, previously reported by the company for the same period, it was revealed in the annual report mailed today. Maintenance expenditures during 1931 aggregated $4,224,696. Other features of the annual report were a reduction of approximately $600,000 in inventory from the previous year and a ratio of quick assets to quick liabilities of 4.7 to 1 at the end of 1931. Balance sheet of December 31 last showed cash of $2,755,774 and no bank loans. Inventories were $22,864,137 and total current assets were $35,344,875, which, after deduction of $5,325,573 current liabilities, left net current assets of $30,019,302. Although the new Great Lakes plant at Detroit was not entirely completed until late in the year and operations in all departments were on a small scale, proper depreciation charges were started on July 1 and continued from that date, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board, stated in his letter to stockholders.

The demand for American stocks from abroad has been increasing during the past few days, according to houses which do a good share of the foreign business. Considerable buying is reported to have come from London and other important cities in England. This demand has been making itself felt when the market has been slightly reactionary. Scale buying has been in progress from foreign interests. So far as can be learned few of the orders have come from speculative interests. The investors who have been taking American stocks are credited with having been encouraged toward this action as a result of the recent advance in the pound sterling.

Baltimore and Ohio directors are slated to meet around the middle of next week to consider action on the quarterly payment due on its $4 non-cumulative preferred stock. That issue has been inclined to sag under the weight of sporadic selling during the last several days and the weakness has led some in the financial community to expect omission of the payment. After touching a high of 41½ earlier in the year, Baltimore and Ohio preferred has reacted until it is now selling within striking distance of the bear market low of 25 touched last December, and at levels returning an indicated yield of nearly 15 per cent. The $4 dividend has been paid regularly since 1900.

Outstanding Credit Above Year Ago

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended March 9 was $1,728,000,000, or the same as in the week preceding, but $764,000,000 above the like week in 1931.

MARKET PACE QUICKENS ON DECLINE

Shares Off 2 to 3 Points Include Telephone, Steel, Eastman, Tobacco, Can

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—The stock market threatened to break out of its narrow trading range on the downside today.

The futile fluctuations over a range of a couple of points during the past 10 days seemed to be wearing on traders' nerves, and Wall street at the moment appeared to be more influenced by the low state of corporate earnings rather than the improvement in banking and credit as indicated by the weekly Federal Reserve statements.

The market was extremely sluggish during most of the morning, but selling quickened appreciably around midday. Shares selling off 2 to 3 points included United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, American Water Works, American Tobacco B, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Eastman, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western. Losses of a point were numerous. Auburn was pushed up 5 points in the early dealings, largely at the expense of shorts, but later relapsed. International Telephone sagged but slightly, in response to its dividend omission, which had been expected.

Large transactions in some of the oil shares attracted considerable attention. There were a few 5,000-share transfers of Prairie Oil and one 22,000 share transfer of Socony-Vacuum. These transfers occurred at barely changed prices.

The weekly mercantile reviews again failed to provide any conclusive signs of a turn in general business activity. While the cold snap over much of the country has helped clearance sales of winter merchandise, it has not been welcomed by merchants who are preparing for the Easter trade.

Inability of speculators for the rise to move the rails up to confirm the recent gains in utilities and industrials appears to have damaged the bull cause, for the moment at least. Strength of the more speculative railroad bonds has lent some encouragement, but they ran into considerable profit-taking and selling today. Nevertheless, Wall Street remained confident that the Reconstruction Corporation would prevent any railroad defaults during the coming months.

Foreign Copper Price Shows Drop

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—Copper in the export market today dropped ¼ cent a pound nearer to its recent low level. Metal was offered at 6 cents a pound on "special offering" of a limited tonnage through Copper Exporters, Inc.

New Bond Offerings Total $11,232,000

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP.)—New bond offerings in this district in the last week totaled $11,232,000 compared with $40,506,000 in the preceding week, and $262,873,000 in the corresponding week last year.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE DATA

In connection with its plan for obtaining aid for exporters from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the American Manufacturers' Export Association is requesting members to supply information on the extent to which foreign exchange conditions are handicapping sales and collections in leading foreign markets. Listing the principal countries where exchange difficulties prevail, the association asks its members to estimate the length of time required to convert local foreign currency into dollar exchange in each of the markets.

Germany to Cut Tariff on Wheat

BERLIN, March 11.—(AP.)—A reduction of Germany's high tariff on wheat and an increase in the percentage of foreign wheat which may go into German-made flour will be put into effect on or about April 1, according to reliable information received today.

The proposed action here is one phase of a similar move, although not so extensive, planned in France and Italy.

Estimates February Cotton Use Higher

NEW YORK, March 11.—The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates the amount of cotton consumed by domestic mills in February at 447,000 bales, comparing with the census figures of 435,000 bales consumed in January, and 433,000 in February, 1931.

LOCAL MARKET SHOWS MORE ACTIVITY

Slightly Broader Trading Noted Here With Prices Declining Fractionally

A slightly broader market was experienced on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today when more stocks appeared in the list than had been noted on any opening since the first of the current month.

Prices showed only minor changes from the levels prevailing on the previous close, however, such stocks as Lone Star Gas and Western Public Service selling within the smallest fractional range of the figures recorded on the close last night.

Westinghouse Air Brake sagged off, bringing the quotation into line with the New York market. There were no sales in Air Brake on the local board. Columbia Gas showed a moderate decline early, as did Mesta Machine. Hachmeister-Lind was unchanged.

LESS MONEY IN CIRCULATION

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(INS.)—Progress was indicated by today's figures of the Federal Reserve Board showing a reduction of $87,000,000 in money circulation since February 10.

The drop in circulation shows an even greater decrease in hoarding, in the view of experts, since over this period the seasonal tendency of money outside of the Federal Reserve banks and Treasury is upward.

Money circulation the week ending March 9 amounted to $5,544,000,000, a decline of $39,000,000 for the week, the largest weekly drop reported for many months. Circulation is now $990,000,000 greater than last year. The volume of Federal Reserve notes in circulation also showed a substantial decline.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Raw sugar was quiet early today, but the undertone was a little steadier. Buyers were willing to pay 2.75 for spots, which price was established late last night with sales of 21,000 bags of Philippines for late March arrival. No sales were reported thus far today, but [illegible] offerings at the 2.75 [illegible]

Refined sugar was quiet again and unchanged at 4.15 for fine granulated.

RATES CUT ON BANKER BILLS

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Further evidence of the cheapening of credit appeared today in a reduction in rates on bankers acceptances.

Dealers reduced the yield rates ⅛ of 1 per cent for acceptances of 30 to 90-day maturities, making the new rates 2⅝ per cent bid, 2½ asked. Reductions in these rates are equivalent to increases in prices.

Rates on bankers' acceptances, a form of commercial credit widely used in international trade, have frequently foreshadowed changes in the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate.

Coming on the heels of the weekly Federal Reserve statement showing further evidences of efforts to expand credit, the cheapening of the acceptances rates was regarded in some quarters as possibly foreshadowing a further reduction in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate.

Forbes

Labor Bears Main Burden Of 'Economics'

By B. C. FORBES

AFTER ALL, who really bears the brunt when corporations and others cut and slash, effect "economies," cut down overhead, "increase efficiency," etc.?

Is it not, nine times in ten, the wage earner or other employe?

President Hoover recently vehemently urged drastic "economies" by the federal government, including the abolition of overlapping departments, elimination of commissions and bureaus that had ceased to discharge useful functions, etc. The Democratic leaders announced that they would proceed in their own way to bring about substantial savings.

Mr. Forbes

Granted that taxpayers need relief, granted that there has grown up with the rapidity of weeds a multiplicity of more or less useless tax-eaters at Washington, yet what is the net of the proclaimed objective?

If carried into effect, the net will be the swelling of the country's already unconscionably large army of unemployed.

Which is exactly the net of the comprehensive "economies" which have been and are being instituted by industrial corporations, railroads, mining companies, mercantile establishments, etc., etc.

Now that the machinery has been provided for the release of a rational amount of credit, now that the need for hoarding by banks has been removed, it is to be hoped very earnestly that business and commerce and industry will revive sufficiently to remove the necessity for further contraction, for further reduction in employes.

Putting an increased volume of credit into active use would also tend to arrest the lopping off of dividends which has gone so far as to deprive many widows, children and others of their purchasing power.

Deflation has been carried to such painful extremes that "reflation" is very much in order.

HERE IS one industrial president who has the faith and the courage and the horse-sense to act rationally, to act contrary to the majority of business heads. E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, makes this invigorating statement in his annual report:

"Cash could be materially increased at any time we wished by reducing inventories without affecting the efficiency of operations. But, as we have ample cash, this would only result in larger bank balances, and it is the opinion of your management that more profit can be made from inventory."

Among other things, National Steel has gone ahead digging ore in Wisconsin and Minnesota this winter, not because it immediately needed the ore, but because it desired to keep men busy. Doubtless Mr. Weir and his associates also feel that such operations can be conducted more economically now than when the demand for labor, the cost of living and prices of raw materials rise. Incidentally, National Steel managed to make a profit last year.

HOW SOON will our heads of vast enterprises put into practice an equally helpful, long range policy? Few believe that the general price level is likely to sink lower than it has already sunk. The majority view is that an upward turn must inevitably come before very long.

Why then add to unemployment, business stagnation, national depression by persisting in following a short-sighted policy?

CALVIN COOLIDGE and everybody else exhorts us to invest generously in life insurance. And this advice has been followed to a creditable extent.

Yet our Washington tax-leviers propose to double the tax on life insurance companies. One insurance president observed to me yesterday:

P. R. R. SEEKING BIG LOAN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend it $50,000,000 over a three-year period.

The company said it needs the money to complete electrification of its line between New York and Washington.

The corporation was told if the loan is not forthcoming or promised within a short time, the electrification project would have to be abandoned indefinitely.

In request for the loan, the road's budget from March to December, 1932, inclusive, carries the sum of $6,585,000 for dividends at the present rate of 4 per cent per annum. In May, August and November of this year, the estimate also includes an item of $2,200,000 for dividends accrued for December, 1932.

Rediscount Lowered By Japanese Bank

TOKIO, March 11.—The bank rate has been reduced by 0.73 per cent to 5.84 per cent from 6.57 per cent, effective Saturday.

LONE STAR GAS EARNINGS UP

L. B. Denning, president of Lone Star Gas Corporation, estimates Lone Star's earnings for February, after depreciation and all reserves, were $840,000 as compared to $792,615 in February, 1931. Mr. Denning points out that taxes were $33,000 higher in the 1932 month and that the weather last month was unusually warm.

These earnings do not include any return from Northern Natural Gas, in which Lone Star has a 30 per cent interest. Gross sales of Northern Natural in February were $353,000, which is $107,000 above budget estimate made in November, last.

Mr. Denning says two of the largest industrial customers on the Lone Star system who have been shut down, or using oil, have returned to gas, using approximately 10,000,000 feet per day.

Cities Service Co. Paying Off Notes

NEW YORK, March 11.—On March 14, or two weeks in advance of the maturity date, Cities Service Company will pay $3,125,000 notes due March 28. These are the last notes of a series totaling $16,000,000, issued in part payment for certain properties acquired from Indian Territory Illuminating Oil Company during 1930.

Texas Oil Producers Enjoined by Court

HOUSTON, March 11.—East Texas oil producers have been enjoined from violation of the Texas Railroad Commission's order by Federal Judge Bryant at Beaumont. Injunctions were granted the members of the railroad commission whose proration orders permit a flow of 75 barrels per well in the East Texas field.

YOU'LL be as surprised as "Red" Geary by the attack on him in a small Yucatan town in which he had just arrived. There seemed to be no reason for the assault.

But "Red" didn't know of the man posing as "'Red' Geary" who sought buried treasure in a manner that the real "Red" would never follow. And he soon heard of the buried fortune the impostor sought—a fortune in gold, hidden, centuries before, by the Mayas. He also learned that the ancient Mayas had not intended to have their gold buried forever. They merely hid it so well, when attacked by the Spaniards, that now—after four-hundred years—the fabulous treasure's hiding place was still a secret.

The real "Red," of course, helps solve the puzzle and clear his name. How he does it, as told in "The Golden Snail," by Herbert Jensen, is a series of thrills from start to finish. See next Sunday's American Weekly for opening chapters of this tale of tropical adventure.

NO. 62.

AN ORDINANCE—Re-fixing the width and position of the westerly sidewalk and the roadway and re-establishing the grade of Second avenue, from a point 19.56 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street produced to Longworth street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the width and position of the westerly sidewalk and the roadway and the grade of the westerly curb line of Second avenue, from a point 19.56 feet south of the southerly line of Tullymet street produced to Longworth street be and the same are hereby re-fixed and re-established as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING on the westerly 12 foot line of Second avenue at a point distant south 21 degrees 48 minutes 20 seconds east 19.56 feet along the westerly 12 foot line of Second avenue from the intersection of the southerly line of Tullymet street produced, said point of beginning to be known as station 0 + 00.0 and said point of beginning being at the northerly terminus of the portion of Second avenue as widened by Ordinance No. 533, approved November 7, 1931; thence extending south 21 degrees 48 minutes 20 seconds east and coinciding with the present westerly curb line of Second avenue to a point at station 2 + 29.97; thence [illegible] to a point at station 3 + [illegible]; thence southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of [illegible] feet and a central angle of [illegible] and a chord bearing south [illegible] to a point of compound curve at station 5 + 47.61; thence southwardly and westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 41.67 feet and a central angle of [illegible] to a point on the northerly line of Longworth street at station 6 + 12.18; [illegible] to the said point of tangent being parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 7.04 feet west of the radial line to the point of tangent on the northerly line of Longworth street at the southerly terminus of that portion of Second avenue as widened by the above mentioned ordinance.

THE WESTERLY sidewalk shall have a variable width and occupy that portion of the street lying between the above described westerly curb line and the westerly street line as widened by the above mentioned ordinance.

THE ROADWAY from station 0 + 00.0 on the above described survey line to station 0 + 81.92 thereon shall have a uniform width of 26 feet; thence to station 2 + 29.97, a variable width ranging from 26 feet at the former to 30 feet to the latter mentioned station; thence to Longworth street a uniform width of 30 feet. The roadway shall lie along the easterly side of and contiguous to the above described westerly curb line throughout.

SECTION 2. The grade of the westerly curb line shall begin at station 0 + 00.0 on the above described survey line at an elevation of [illegible] feet (curb as set); thence shall fall at the rate of 1 per cent for a distance of [illegible] feet to the point of curve to an elevation of [illegible] feet; thence by a concave parabolic curve for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of [illegible] feet; thence shall rise at the rate of 1 per cent for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point of curve to an elevation of [illegible] feet; thence by a convex parabolic curve for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of [illegible] feet; thence shall fall at the rate of 1 per cent for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point on curve to an elevation of [illegible] feet; thence by a convex parabolic curve for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point of tangent at the northerly curb line of Longworth street at the point of horizontal tangent thereon at station 6 + 12.18 to an elevation of [illegible] feet (curb as set).

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NO. 63.

AN ORDINANCE—Vacating a portion of Greenfield avenue in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Second avenue to Irvine street.

WHEREAS—The City of Pittsburgh has adopted a plan known as "The City of Pittsburgh Plan for the widening and opening of Irvine street, from Greenfield avenue to Minden street and the widening of Second avenue, from Minden street to a point 170.21 feet north of Hazelwood avenue," and has entered into a contract [illegible] Ordinance No. 129 approved July [illegible], with The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in Pennsylvania, its subsidiaries, successors, assigns and affiliated companies, wherein it is provided that Greenfield avenue from Second avenue to Irvine street be relocated, by which relocation a certain portion of the said street may be vacated, except for the right to maintain a [illegible] water line on the line thereof, and

WHEREAS—The said Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has dedicated to the City of Pittsburgh the property for the said relocation of Greenfield avenue, which dedication was accepted by the City of Pittsburgh by ordinance No. [illegible], approved June 4, 1931. Now, Therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Greenfield avenue in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Second avenue to Irvine street be and the same is hereby vacated, the same being more particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING at a point on the southeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue as now located and Second avenue, [illegible] feet wide, thence along the easterly line of Second avenue on a course north 29 degrees [illegible] minutes west for a distance of [illegible] feet to the northeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue and Second avenue; thence along the northerly line of Greenfield avenue, 50 feet wide, on a course north 56 degrees 50 minutes east for a distance of [illegible] feet to a point on the proposed southerly line of Greenfield avenue as relocated on "The City of Pittsburgh Plan for the Widening and Opening of Irvine street, from Greenfield avenue to Minden street and the Widening of Second avenue, from Minden street to a point 170.21 feet north of Hazelwood avenue"; thence along the said proposed line of Greenfield avenue on a course south [illegible] degrees [illegible] minutes east for a distance of 75.65 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the said proposed line of Greenfield avenue by an arc of a circle curving to the right with a radius of 41 feet for a distance of 23.64 feet to the southerly line of Greenfield avenue as now located; thence along the southerly line of Greenfield avenue as now located on a course south 56 degrees 50 minutes west for a distance of [illegible] feet to the southeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue as now located and Second avenue, at the place of beginning. Containing within said described boundaries 7,628 square feet of land be the same more or less.

SECTION 2. This vacation is made subject to the reservation by the City of Pittsburgh of the right to the city water line and tunnel protecting and surrounding the same now constructed in, under and across the portion of the said vacated street and the City of Pittsburgh reserves the right and privilege to maintain, repair, construct or reconstruct the water line and tunnel or other water line and tunnel in, under and across the said portion of the vacated street.

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council March 7, 1932.
Approved March 10, 1932.
CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.

Ambition Returns and Lily Lou Tries to Forget Her Troubles

CHAPTER XXXII.

Dwight Gwin. His name on the brass plaque on his door was the first thing that Lily Lou's eyes rested on when she came to work in the mornings. It was in her mind when she awoke, as she so often did, at night.

Gwin was a miracle worker. No wonder that he could pick and choose his pupils. He slaved, he inspired, he roared, he reduced his students to tears, to profanity, to the depths of despair.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing, youngest of a large family, all of whom have sacrificed to give her singing lessons, comes to live in Oakland. She boards with her married sister, May, and her husband, Raymond, and works in an office in San Francisco. She meets Kentfield Sargent, third son of the Sargent whose name stands for steamships on the Pacific coast. Lily Lou becomes interested in young Sargent. Her sister, May, is furious. But in the meanwhile Lily Lou has realized that Ken is interested in someone else—Peggy Sage—a girl from his own circle. Health broken by study and work, Lily Lou goes home to rest. There Ken admits his love for Lily Lou. She returns to her work in San Francisco fearful that her love affair will peril her career. Ken and Lily Lou are married. Ken's mother tells Lily Lou Ken is not of age and threatens to have the marriage annulled. Anxious days follow. Lily Lou is told by Ken's father that marriage has been annulled. He gives her $500 and ticket to New York. Lily Lou arrives in New York. One job follows another until finally she gets a position playing for a dancing teacher. Then an opportunity comes for her to move into a new and better home. Letters and clippings from home inform her of Ken's engagement to her old rival, Peggy Sage. Lily Lou discovers she is going to become a mother. She loses her position playing for a dancing class and gets a much better one with a noted voice teacher.

Now Go On

He walked the floor. He wrung his hands. Tears of rage, of delight, of disappointment, glistened in his small, dark eyes. His hawk nose twitched with distaste when some one flatted. His wiry, graying hair would writhe under his anguished fingers.

Unless he wasn't interested. In that case he would walk the floor, examining bits of bric-a-brac, small objects of art on his chests and tables, with the air of an amateur discovering them for the first time. His pupil could sing anything, any way he wished. Unless it was someone in whom he had hope of real achievement he hardly listened at all.

But if he was interested, nothing was too much trouble. He'd take a line, a phrase, a trill over and over.

"Again, please—once again!"

AMBITION RETURNS

Lily Lou could never decide which was the most tiring, trying to accompany someone who couldn't stay on key and whom Gwin wouldn't trouble to correct, or playing one phrase over and over and over until her fingers ached.

But she loved it. She slaved. She learned. She took to heart everything he said. Every song she accompanied she sang in her mind. She learned not only her own songs, but all she played. Her mind was clear again. It was receptive. She was athirst, after her long absence from study. She felt that nothing could stop her. Her fierce ambition had come back. Gwin had imbued her with some of his own boundless vitality and assurance.

Her old dreams of success were with her again. When she heard Faust at the Metropolitan, she was Marguerite. From her place in the balcony she silently sang every note.

She began to criticize... "That gesture was wooden... I wouldn't do it that way... I don't like Jeritza's costumes ...oh, dear, will I ever be able to get that stirring high C of Musio's...Oh, to sing Manon with Gili..."

Gwin gave her sheaves of tickets. Plays. Operas. Concerts. "They're given to me. You may as well use them," he said.

SCOLDED BY TEACHER

Sometimes she worried about that. Gwin gave her too much. She was getting too indebted to him. He might expect...

But just about the time she'd begin to fear that Maxine's sly innuendoes were right, and Gwin was sentimentally interested in her, he would fly into a rage over her poor German or Italian, and for a while she would be convinced that he almost hated her.

He swore. He called her a fool. Her teacher the seventh daughter of a fool. What were they thinking of, to let her go so far without languages. Singing opera roles, and not able to say "Hello! Goodbye! How are you? Go to the devil!"

"Study!" he bellowed. "Study! Are you another of those poll-parrot singers with no intelligence, no soul?"

He thrust books into her hands, talked to her in French, Italian, German. Made her answer in halting, broken words, beamed when she was right, snarled when she was wrong.

She made friends. Miss Carlton, the pianist across the hall. Tony Schiarilli, the violinist. A group of students. She even went to the village with a young composer, and drank sour red wine that she didn't like.

Three commercial artists had a studio in the rear, upstairs. They served tea in the afternoons. She went sometimes, feeling Bohemian and wicked, having tea with these three, with Mignon Hassler, who used to pose in the nude for artists, and was now dancing in a night club, and Frances Bradford, who did advertising, and slipped in sometimes for a sketch.

Gwin frowned upon it. "You have no time for such trash," he told her severely.

TRIES TO FORGET

Lily Lou shrugged. She did not know how to answer Gwin. Sometimes she thought she no longer knew right from wrong. What was there to do? What should she do? What did it matter what happened to her now? She was just pretending she was going to have a career. She was really going to have a baby instead, and people would point their fingers at her, and say "That's Lily Lou Lansing, who thought she was so wonderful—look at her now!"

There was no one to talk to, no one to care. Sometimes, in the midst of the laughter and chatter of one of the studio teas, with Mignon Hassler, shouting above the radio and everyone talking at once, she would wonder what they would say, if they knew.

But don't think about that... Don't cross your bridges until you come to them. Forget about the baby. Don't let yourself think of it. Sing! Laugh! Make it come true, all that Gwin promised...career...success...

It was easy sometimes. Easy to think that the past was all a dream, and that she had never had any life but that of Gwin's studio, her singing, the gossip of Maxine and Wanda Pillsbury, the ease and luxury of Mrs. Manchester's flat.

"A bright girl can get anything she wants in this town. Look at me," Maxine said, stretching comfortable arms in the quilted crepe bathrobe she had wheedled away from Mrs. Manchester.

"I hitch-hiked all the way from Los Angeles. I started with $10 and arrived in New York City with two thin dimes and no job. And now, here I am! Swell clothes, swell address, swell friends, swell job—all because of my swell personality and winning ways.

THINKS OF HOME

"I haven't pinched a milk bottle in eight months...I used to pinch milk bottles when I first came to town. Did I ever tell you, Lansing? When I lived at Mrs. Grampas'—before I began to get on. It's quite easy, only you must get up early, or stay out late. Bread is easy to pinch, too. I used to carry a paper bag in my purse. You should never try to pinch bread without a paper bag handy!"

Lily Lou laughed, too. It sounded very gay and innocent. But she knew that it was stealing . . . What would the folks think, back in Woodlake?

For a moment Woodlake would seem real again. She'd see it as it was on the day she was married. An old, shabby little town with one main street and a spattering of houses. A few two-story white painted ones with big shade trees, and weedy lawns, more nondescript frame cottages, a few new stucco bungalows with tiled roofs, and over it all the bright blue sky, with the roads dusty and still in the hot sun, a few thirsty poppies still blooming in the gutters, and on the east the lake, sky blue, reflecting the willows .

Then that too would pass. The whole panorama of what had been her life would fade, and she'd only know that she was alone. Frighteningly, sickeningly alone, with no one to turn to, and a babe that she was afraid to think of, coming nearer every day.

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"IN A RESTAURANT in which I frequently eat," writes Mrs. Moore McCarver, "there is a Greek bus boy to whom I always enjoy talking. Even if the food in this restaurant is occasionally disappointing and the waiters have a habit of dropping ice or soup on your nicest dress, I go back again and again in order to get into a conversation with this man. I suppose you've had a similar experience yourself.

"It's this bus boy's sincerity that makes him so definitely amusing. He very seldom smiles, and he goes around as though he were carrying the weight of the world upon his shoulders. Whenever I arrive, he always has some new problem to unfold to me and he never fails to tell me that he cannot go on. But, somehow or other, he always does,

"The other night, for example, he had a new lament. I'm not going to attempt to imitate his dialect, and I defy anyone to do it on paper. So I'll just write it straight—and if you want to fix it up, you can.

"'I don't know what it is, this sinus trouble,' he asserted, 'but whatever it is, my wife thinks she's got it. For years she's been trying to find a cure. And she's got me absolutely broke trying to keep up with her. It's terrible.'

"I asked him why he didn't take her to some very good doctor, and have it cured once and for all.

"'I've done that,' he told me. 'I have a customer at this table who's a great specialist on that stuff. I had her to see him, and he treated her. But she was not satisfied. The next week she went some place else. I don't know what to do about it.'

"I shook my head."

"'You mean to say,' I murmured, 'that she's the kind of woman who's always trying something new?'

"'That's it,' he shot back, 'that's it exactly. She's never satisfied, no matter what you do. Why, do you know what she did last? Well, it will certainly surprise you.

"'She says her sinus trouble is getting worse and she digs up some kind of a Hindu who claims he can cure her with a magic wire. It ain't nothing but a regular piece of wire bent around a little—but she don't know that. She falls for it hot and heavy.

"'So around to the house he comes, every day for six days. He tells her to lean back and he puts that magic wire in her nose. He says a couple of phony words, and then he takes the wire out. He tells her she'll feel better soon, collects 5 bucks and leaves. And she's dope enough to think he's doing her some good.

"'I try to tell her she's crazy, and she gives me such an argument like you never heard. Tells me she's in terrible pain and that I have no sympathy for her. Tells me I'm selfish and that I don't love her. Tells me all kinds of things. It's terrible, I tell you. It's terrible.'

"I sighed.

"'If you don't mind my saying so, Nick,' I told him, 'I think you've made a mistake. You should never have married in the first place. Why did you do it?'

"He looked at me with big eyes.

"'Lady,' he muttered, 'sometimes you talk just as much nonsense as my wife. I married that woman 14 years ago. Did I know she was gonna have sinus trouble?'" . . .

"HERE'S ONE for the book, Mary," writes C. L. Terry, of Chicago. "A competitor of mine in the carpet business stopped in a State street department store on the way to his office. He intended to bring the buyer with him to look over his line.

"The buyer agreed to accompany him and they both walked to my competitor's showroom. Arriving there, he brought forward a chair for the buyer.

"'Have a seat for a minute, Mr. Jordan,' he asserted smilingly, 'while I glance through my mail. If I'm fired, I'll have someone else show you the line. Ha, ha, ha. One never knows these days.'

"He turned away and opened the first letter. The smile faded from his face. He cleared his throat.

"'Hey, Tony,' he cried, 'show Mr. Jordan the line, will you?'"

"A FRIEND of mine," writes Bill Vought, "is a motorcycle cop. Because of the story, I can't give you his name. But it wasn't more than two weeks ago that he nailed a private car for going 45 miles an hour along Park avenue.

"The usual conversation followed. The driver tried to tell my friend whom he knew, and offered any number of reasons why he shouldn't be given a ticket. The cop paid no attention, and the driver finally changed his tune.

"'Officer,' he said, 'I'm a manufacturer of footwear and I have a very large business. If you forget about the ticket, I'll not only fix you up, but I'll take care of your wife as well. Will you do that for me, officer? Please?'

"My friend isn't in the habit of going in for that sort of thing, but you know how conditions are these days. Feeling that a couple of pairs of imported shoes would help him no little, he accepted the speeder's card and closed his book with a snap.

"'Okay, buddy,' he said. 'I'll be in to see you tomorrow.'

"Imagine that cop's feelings when he strolled into the speeder's place of business the following day. The footwear the man made consisted of carpet slippers that sold for 29 cents."

"AS LONG as you're going in for back-country gags," writes J. Francis Haney, of North Vernon, Ind., "try this one on your typewriter.

"Down in Southern Kentucky the husband of the family rides a mule to market every week-end. Sam Jones always did this very thing. He would put his sack of corn on his mule and ride to town while his wife walked behind. Arriving there, they would do their shopping. Sam would get his corn ground, place it on his mule, hop on himself and ride home. His wife would again trail behind, carrying all the extra bundles and packages.

"'Listen, Sam,' asked a friend one day, 'how it is that you always ride the mule while your wife walks? What's the idea?'

"'What's the idea?' growled Sam. 'Well, that's a fine question. What did you expect her to do? She ain't got no mule.'"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS Junior Komic Club

The number of members that attended the Junior Komic Club meeting at the Manor Chapter last Saturday almost reached a new record. Manager Blowitz is becoming a great favorite with the youngsters who live in the Squirrel Hill section. More and more children attend these meetings every Saturday. At the last meeting he called for volunteers from the audience to come up to the stage and perform for the little folks. Charles Bender responded and played the harmonica. Gloria Cooper gave an acrobatic dance and Ruth Kwall sang a song. Then all the members were entertained by Little Bear and Big Eagle, two Indian chiefs, who are proving great favorites with the youngsters. Little Bear sang a couple of Indian songs and Big Eagle told the youngsters all about the way the Indians used to live, then both of them did a war dance. After which the birthday cakes were distributed to the members whose birthdays occurred during the past week.

If you are not a member of the Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, together with the name of your mother and father, your age and the school you attend, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph.

England, too, has her crime problem. An item in a London paper says—

For giving another man the "raspberry," as a police constable explained it, a Whitstable youth named Sidney Hogbin was fined 10s. for disorderly conduct at Canterbury.

Supt. Goldsmith stated that he had received numerous complaints about these "raspberries," and he had brought the case to try to stop the practice.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT

"Adopt a Family"

Pittsburgh's Relief Workers May Find Valuable Suggestions in What Other Cities Are Doing

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the Allegheny County Emergency Association; Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor for the Harris Plan, and other leaders in Pittsburgh's activities for the relief of the unemployed, may find useful suggestions in what is being done in other cities.

For example, New York City is in the midst of an "Adopt a Family" campaign, which in its essentials is precisely the same sort of movement that Senator Harris is directing. Senator Harris calls upon the well-to-do people of Allegheny County to take care of 24,000 needy families by donating $100 per family, which he estimates will tide them over until June. It is his idea, and also that of the sponsors of the New York campaign, that people will contribute more readily if the personal element is introduced and they can know exactly to whom their money is going.

To facilitate this acquaintance the histories and background of families for whom aid is sought are disclosed to those who may be willing to help. Here is an illustration: The New York committee told yesterday of a college graduate with a wife and 16-year-old son who two years ago lost his job as chemist for a fruit extract company. With his savings he bought a small store, but lost money and was forced to sell it. All the money that he got from the sale has been spent. He has borrowed money from his wife's relatives, who are in need themselves and must be repaid. Now he is completely at the end of his resources, he is heavily in debt, and his credit is exhausted.

Pittsburgh has thousands of parallel cases. If their stories are sympathetically told, hearts will be touched and aid given.

The New York committee is asking the charitable to "adopt" needy families for just a few days, if they cannot afford the expense for a longer period, and is supplementing its appeals for funds with "bundle days" and benefit entertainments.

Unfit to Serve

There Is a Warning for Police Court Magistrates in the Case of a Chalfant Justice of the Peace

Joseph Buttyan, of Chalfant Borough, was ordered by Judge Elder W. Marshall, in Criminal Court yesterday, to resign his commission as Justice of the Peace because, without even going through the formality of a hearing, he fined a man $75 for having liquor in his possession. The man was charged with conducting a disorderly house.

Judge Marshall remarked that Buttyan had no right to impose a fine without a hearing and should have known that all violators of the liquor laws must be held for the grand jury. The court said:

"Your ignorance of the law is so great that you are unfit to serve as Justice of the Peace."

There is a warning in this case not only for other Justices of the Peace but also for the Police Court Magistrates of Pittsburgh, some of whom habitually usurp authority and discharge or let off with fines not only bootleggers but also operators of lotteries and slot machines, keepers of gambling houses and immoral resorts.

Where there is prima facie evidence of violation of the laws applying to commercial vice, the magistrates are required to hold the defendants for the grand jury. But it is a common practice for them to make the charge "conducting a disorderly house," "disorderly conduct," or "suspicious person," and to assume jurisdiction themselves.

There is reason to suspect that in the case of the city magistrates, not ignorance of the law, but indifference to it, is to blame.

A Favor to Taxpayers

County Treasurer Cain Introduces an Innovation Which Will Be Appreciated.

Robert S. Cain, County Treasurer, announces an innovation which will be appreciated by the taxpayers.

If the taxpayers will register their names, addresses and the location of their property, he promises to send them their tax statements, without any further action on their part, 60 days before the expiration of the discount period.

Heretofore it has been necessary to call at the Courthouse or write for the tax statement, otherwise one did not receive it. Since many taxpayers put off calling for the statement until the last moment, they had to stand in line and await their turn, which sometimes was long in coming. Cain makes it possible to avoid the nuisance. It is a small favor, but a real one.

Moving Day

March and April Are Not the Most Satisfactory Months For the Termination of Leases.

A study of telephone transfers made by William Bradford, division manager of the Bell Telephone Company, indicates that 48 per cent of the changes of residence or office in Pittsburgh are made in March and April.

The report calls to mind the campaign conducted by the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph a quarter of a century ago to have "Moving Day" in Pittsburgh changed from April 1 to May 1. The campaign was in large part successful, and many leases now expire on May 1.

With paved streets and motor vans there are no longer many cases of trucks loaded with furniture getting stuck in the mud. Nevertheless, March and April still remain objectionable months for moving, and it is disappointing to learn that so many families flit during this inclement season.

SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law"
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district
5—Town Hall seating at least 15,000
6—Voting machines to insure honest elections
7—Development of river transportation
8—Development of air transportation
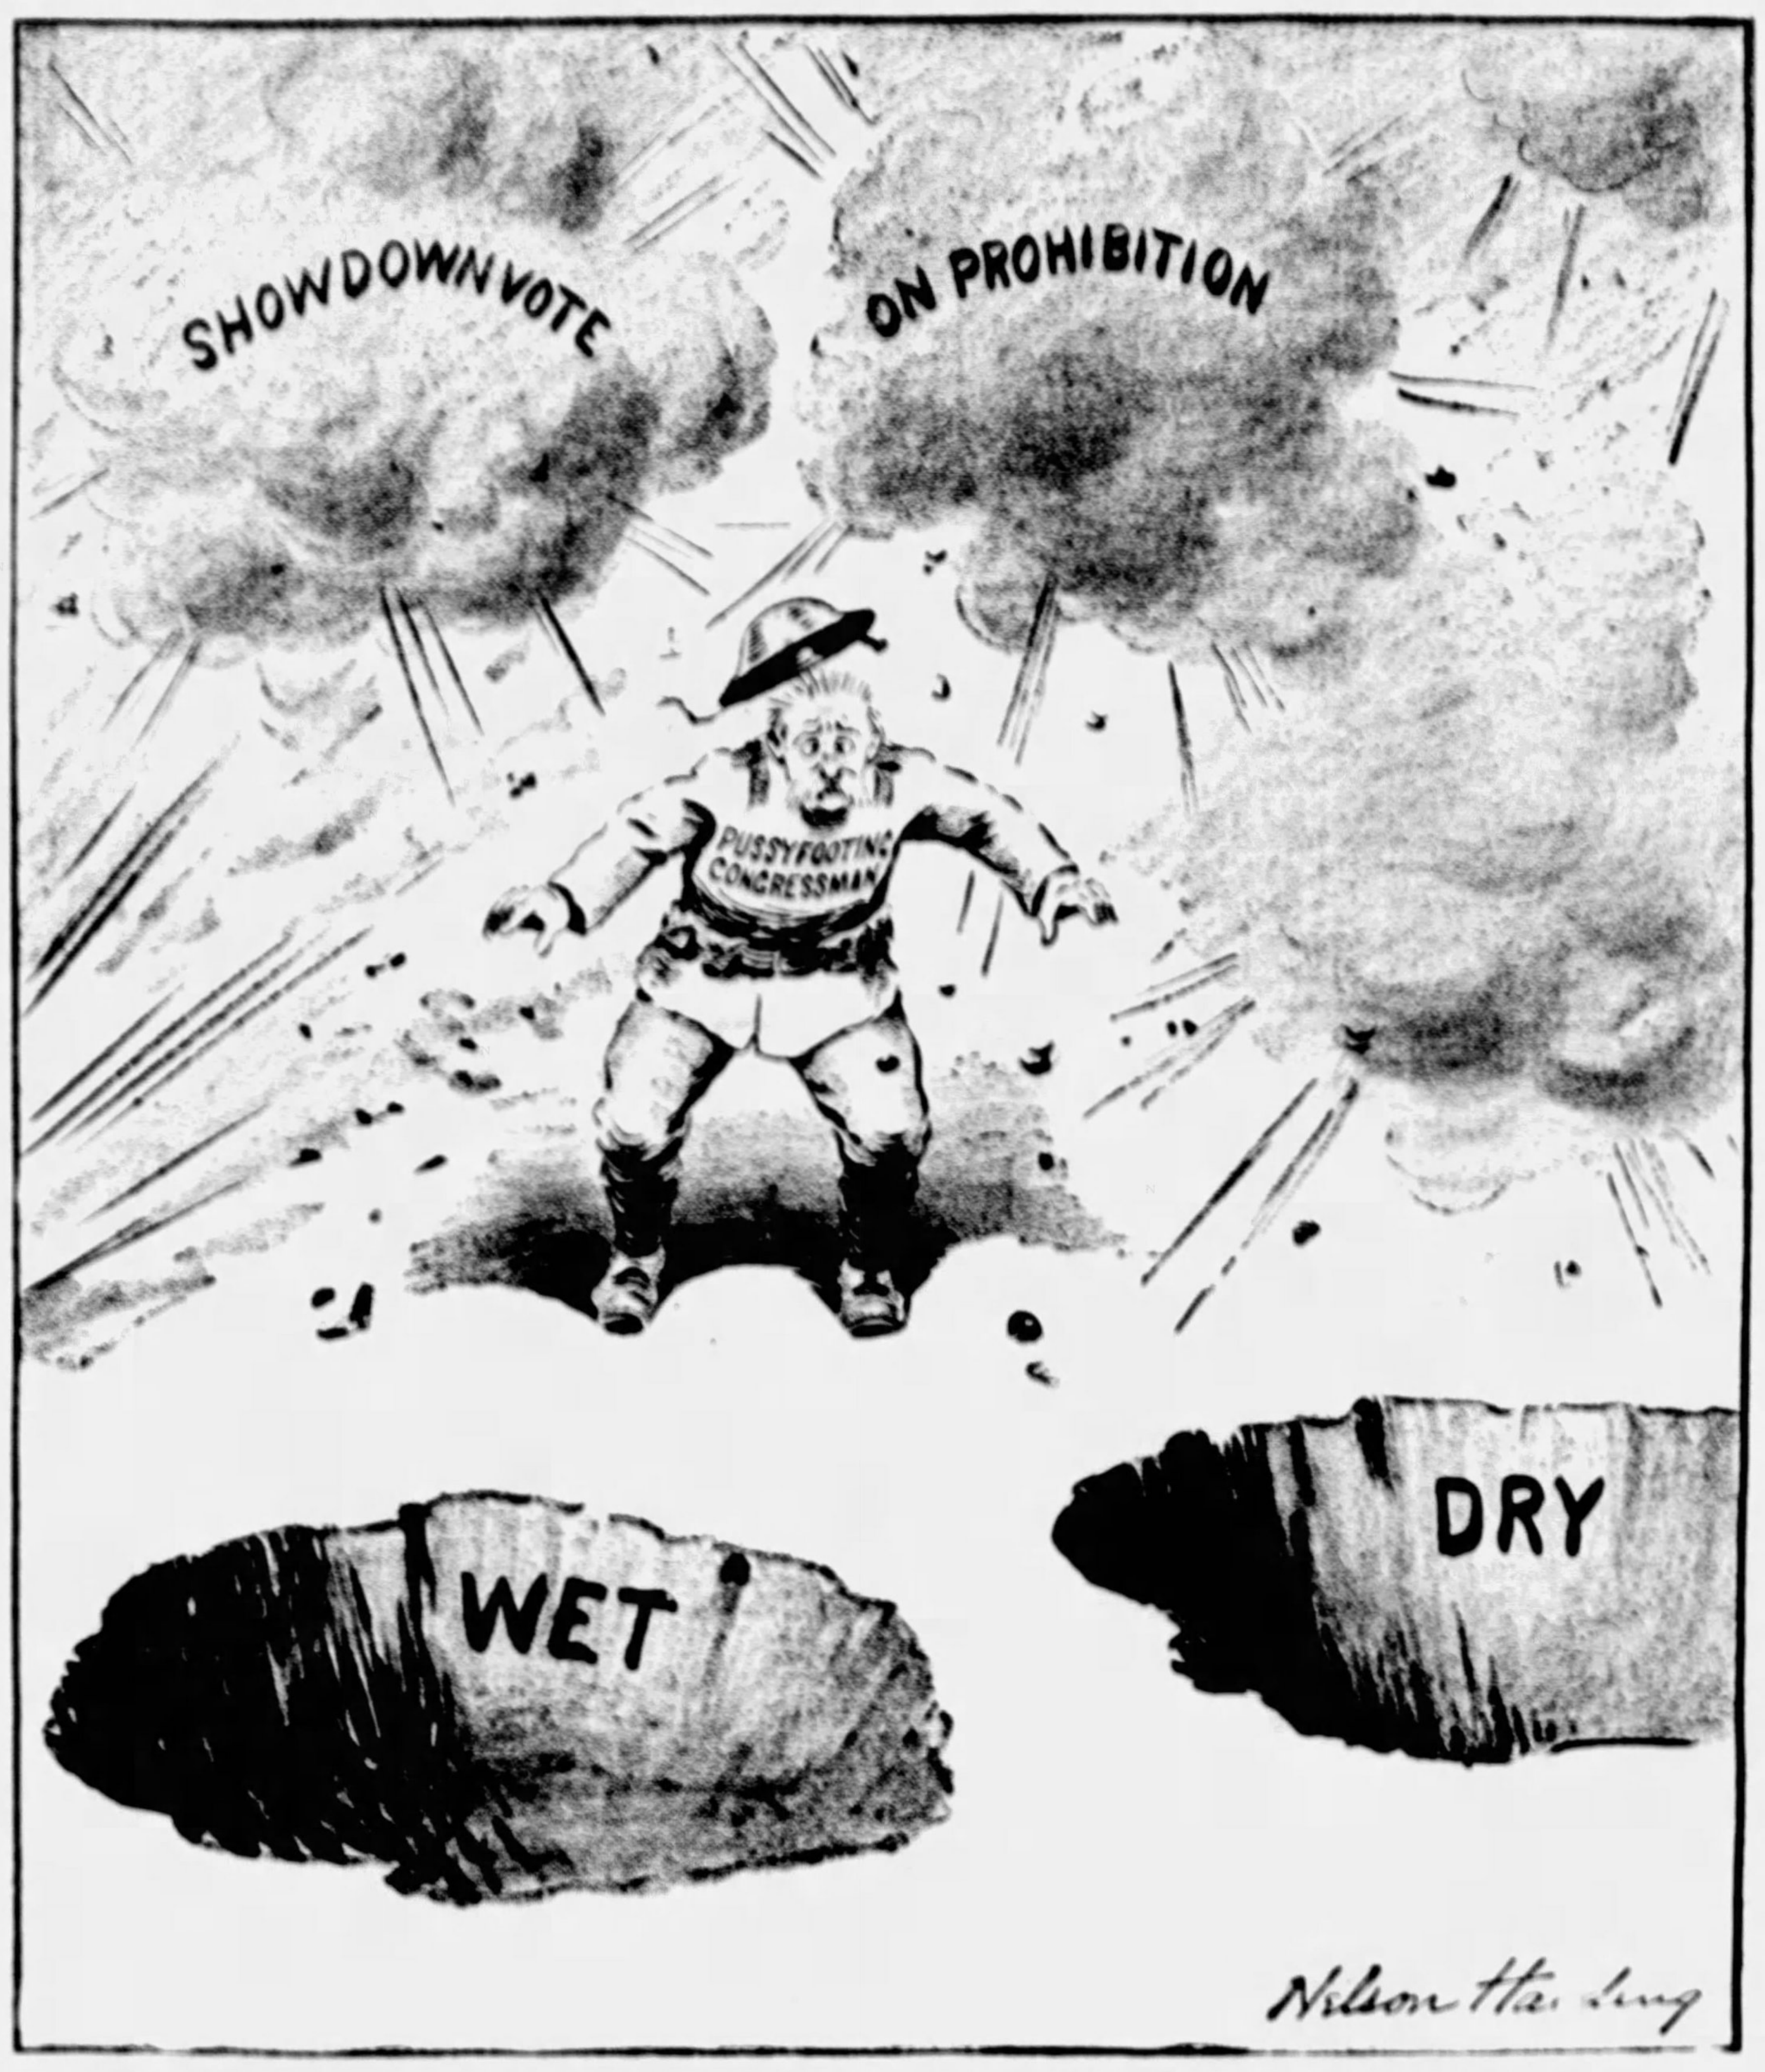
10—Fair public utility rates.

The Better 'Ole? ⁘ ⁘

By Nelson Harding



The bursting shells are coming close,
The firing is becoming hot
And our uncertain hero finds

He's tiptoed round in No Man's land
Till suddenly he must decide
Which one will ultimately prove
The better hole in which to slide.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Marriage—The Alibi

There was a time, when you could always spot a married man by the sag of his shoulders, the spots on his coat and the wistful look in his eyes. He had "that married look."

* * *

But, in these days, it is as difficult to distinguish a Benedict from a bachelor as it is to tell a debutante from her mother—or even from her grandmother—by the back of their hair.

ARE YOU MARRIED ?

No matter how much married a man may be, he doesn't FEEL that way half the time! A man has nothing to REMIND him that he's married—not even a wedding ring. So how can the poor boy remember it in these days, when every woman he meets tries her best to make him forget it?

* * *

There is nothing in his whole existence to give him that domesticated feeling — unless his wife or his conscience can induce him to smoke a pipe. When a man is feeling nervous, he smokes a cigaret; when he is feeling expansive or complacent, he smokes a cigar. But when he is feeling frugal or conscience-stricken or MARRIED, he always smokes a pipe! A pipe-smoking husband is always a hearthside husband.

* * *

About the only times when the average modern man feels very much married are around the first of the month, the last of the week and the first of the year—when the bills come in. Then he has the evidence that he's "just a poor old married man." Somebody's Good Thing!

At other times he scarcely notices it—and he fervently prays that nobody else will notice it. He secretly hopes that every pretty woman will treat him just as though he were "Nobody's Darling;" that she will not let a little thing like a wife-and-family in Florida stand between her and a dinner-dance or a supper-show.

* * *

About the ONLY time when a man feels thoroughly and irrevocably married is when the girl, who has been trying to "help him forget it," suddenly begins to take him seriously and gets "unreasonable." When she hangs on his neck and demands too much of his time.

* * *

THEN, ah, then, he can prove to her in a thousand ways that he is "hopelessly tied!" Then he KNOWS that he's married—and thanks Heaven for it! Then he begins to think of marriage as the "ideal state," and of his wife as a Delivering Angel!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 11.—Thoughts while strolling: Leslie Howard's a thin edition of Conrad Nagel. And Frank Buck, the wild animal trainer, with a white eye patch could pass for Floyd Gibbons. Tony Hughes.

Harlan Dixon always carries a book. Lit-ry! Why don't they pronounce Houston street like Houston, in Texas? The abbreviated word "Inc." radiates an influence but means nothing. A horse-ring of the sentimental 90's rusting in an old Forty-ninth street wall. Push cart faces in imported limousines.

Rex Cole, a Port Huron, Mich., boy, who made good in the city. One word description of Lillian Gish—gishish. Russell Patterson graying at the temples. A favorite Broadwayite—Billy Moore. Overheard: "Two of her drinks and they laid me out like a rug." Katherine Freeze, the young mannequin, with snow white hair.

Hard to imagine Lowell Thomas was once one of the boys around hell-roaring Cripple Creek. That girl taxi driver is remindful of Winnie Lightner. The Rialto's best-dressed detective, "Duke" Broderick. Stanley Rinehart and Ring Lardner bear a resemblance. Ben Ali Haggin grows plump.

The most exciting period around Grand Central is just before the Twentieth Century thunders out. Those starchy old boys along Murray Hill who salute with frigid little bows. Some day I'm going to go aristocratic. And wear a square crowned derby. Hot-diggedy!

I can never remember whether Ibsen was a Dane or Norwegian. George Bye skedaddling along. Snips with baby doll stares hunting sidewalk adventures. Bishop Manning window shopping. Winston Churchill's face has the chubbiness of a happy baby. Life seems to melt in his mouth like butter.

Cobina Wright of the Social Register. Who conducts a Sutton Place supper club. That fugitive line running through my head all day: "Runs wild a clamor in the thorny scrub." Maybe I'm getting balmy! (Voice: Getting?) And will I tear into that upside down cake this evening!

* * *

Lowell Thomas, incidentally, is Grand Giraffe of the Tall Story Club, a worthy organization of romantic glossarians. Members offer a lofty sacrifice of veracity. It's the duty of each to give panache and altitudinous devotion to the Great American Whopper.

* * *

Dorothy Parker has high-hatted more editors and book publishers than any writer of her day and retained their profound admiration. She answers no letters, telephone calls or frantic telegrams. But when coming upon those who besiege her, seems startled into wide-eyed, disarming innocence. For almost everything save writing she expresses the wholesome vigour of an entire hockey team. Although she has a ready market in almost every editorial shop she has to be wheedled out of her copy often a paragraph at a time.

From Paris zips another story about Gilbert White, the painter. Mr. White, with Michael Angelo majesty and inartistic victoriousness of a bathing beauty, affects hair to his broad shoulders, an Elbert Hubbard tie and a wide Latin Quarter hat. With an American friend he cater-cornered across the Place de la Concorde the other week. Toward him came one of those incredibly filthy and ragged artists with a wild mop of hair and features blurred by tippling. Mr. White walked almost into him, stepped quickly aside and exclaimed: "Pardon, I thought I was looking into a mirror."

* * *

On White's visit last fall he was tossed a binge on Long Island. Afterward the guests piled into waiting limousines to ride home. For some reason there was no place for the artist. "It's all right," he said, "I'll trot behind and bark." And what is more, he did for several blocks.

* * *

A dull play offered a brief moment last night. A strange lady in the next seat demanded the lady in front remove her hat. She did and her hair ballooned to the proportions of a nail keg. And I silently trilled a trio of goodies!

* * *

Back home postcard: "Where do you get that coeur flottant marvellieux stuff? You were brought up on turnip greens, corn bread and black strap molasses."

But do I handle store vittles now! You know, the little finger high in the air!

LISTEN, WORLD ⁘

By Elsie Robinson

"Proudly we report to our forefathers that the Republic is more secure, more constant, more powerful, more truly great than at any other time in its history."

President Hoover's bicentennial address—February 22, 1932.

It was after midnight but I could not sleep. There was something wrong with the night.

I dressed and went down to the hotel lobby. Somewhere a band was playing. Girls, stripped to the waist—their breasts upheld by jeweled straps—floated in whirls of tulle, in gleaming swirls of satin, across padded plush.

Lights hung thick as fruit in the scented tropical air . . . crystal and topaz fruit, clustered in golden leaves, wreathed around long colonnades of marble trunks . . . A girl's laugh broke—fluttered like a blue butterfly among the fruit.

Thick, gleaming blades of glass revolved. I passed out to the street.

The streets were nearly empty. There had been a little rain. The asphalt gleamed—oily black as flood water.

On either side, the buildings heaved themselves into the night. Basalt cliffs, rimmed with silver, tiled with crystal plaques, rearing enormously against a stormy sky—

Presently, startled, I found that I had come into an alley which ran behind a row of restaurants and hotels. Very dark here. Only one light, guttering yellow in the thick, sour air. Slime underfoot. I stumbled, groping my way—

Something was moving ahead of me.

Something was creeping past me—as a sick rat creeps. Furtive dashes—then a slow, listless drifting.

Through the entire length of the alley, many Somethings moving—

Stooping—pawing aimlessly—

Hovering briefly—

Going on—vanishing in the darkness—

Further on, two or three scrambling together in sudden excitement . . . flopping at each other . . . grabbing with weak fury—

I drew nearer. They vanished. One, hurrying past, turned her face. A woman's face. Young? Old? I could not tell. The record was erased. Time did not matter any longer to that face. Vanity did not matter. Only one thing mattered. FOOD! Food . . . any kind of food.

I'd heard, but I hadn't believed. People living at night, out of the garbage cans? Thousands of people—in every city? It wasn't true. It couldn't be true. It was just another one of those stories.

But it was true!

These Things scuttling through the darkness . . . these flopping, hovering, brooding, fumbling things were—People! American people! People like myself—

And from far off—as if in echo—words also fell, complacent, perfect, through a brooding night.

Stock Exchange Should Be Deprived of Right to Make Suckers Out of Investors

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

IT is MORE RATIONAL for the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to investigate the WHOLE OPERATION of stock exchanges, rather than to concentrate solely on short selling.

If vicious short selling and bear raiding have hurt hundreds, then bull manipulation by conscienceless pools have injured HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS.

Overspeculation, ruthless bulling of stocks without regard to intrinsic values, excessive use of credit for stock market manipulation before the panic—upset economic balance and set in motion a train of events which have spelled nationwide unemployment and business disaster.

Instead of passing along to consumers, in the form of lower prices, and to labor in the form of higher wages, the benefits of the improved and more efficient industrial technology, executives sought to retain most of the gains in the form of profits to justify EXTRAVAGANTLY WATERED stock issues.

Now when the day of reckoning comes, a childish attempt has been made by the administration to find a scapegoat for all our troubles in the wicked bears.

The agitation against short selling deals with the FROTH of the depression, rather than the substance. Short selling is the corollary of margin buying, and one cannot logically be abolished without the other. It would be more rational to discontinue both, rather than one or the other.

TO meet the public clamor, the stock exchange has been experimenting in controlling short selling. It now insists that the short sale must be made at the price of the last sale of actual stock. It has also required brokers to get the consent of customers whose stock will be lent to shorts after April 1.

Two other voluntary reforms should be considered. Instead of keeping it as exclusive information for its own 40 governors, WHO ARE PERMITTED TO SPECULATE ON THEIR OWN ACCOUNT, the stock exchange should put before the price at which each short sale is reported on the ticker the letter "S." This would inform the whole world as to how much short selling is taking place.

Moreover, instead of permitting a short sale at the price of the last transaction, the stock exchange should experiment with the rule of allowing a short sale only above the price of the last transaction. This rule would force the bears to make good on the theoretical argument that they are a stabilizing influence, selling on the way up and covering on the way down.

But it is vastly more important to take steps to restrain speculation during bull markets. Speculative cliques have been permitted to use the machinery of the stock exchange TO EXPLOIT THE PUBLIC BY MARKING UP STOCK PRICES WITHOUT RHYME OR REASON.

One way to handle this situation would be to institute a rule or a state law to FORBID PYRAMIDING OF MARGIN ACCOUNTS. This could be accomplished in two ways:

1. Through fixing arbitrary collateral prices for stocks in margin accounts, as banks do, instead of automatically raising the collateral value of stocks to the market price.
2. Through requiring additional cash for additional commitments in margin accounts, instead of letting the paper appreciation of existing holdings count as margin.

Brokers are now definitely ON THE DEFENSIVE. Unless they reform their lending methods, the right to perform such banking functions should be taken from them by law, and reserved for chartered banking institutions under public supervision.

The administration, SEEKING POPULARITY, has spread the notion that the bears are responsible for failure of the efforts of the government to facilitate the return of prosperity. THE TRUTH IS THAT LACK OF APPLICATION OF FUNDAMENTAL REMEDIES, SUCH AS ACCELERATION OF PUBLIC WORKS, not mere bear gestures, EXPLAINS THE DISAPPOINTING RESULTS FROM GOVERNMENTAL INTERVENTION.

The long expected turn for the better which the administration has been continually promising has not occurred and unfortunately is not likely to occur while this purblind administration is in office.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

In nearly all establishments there are employes who carry tales to those in charge of the business or the department heads.

Usually such people don't confine themselves to matters pertaining to the business which the bosses ought to know.

Often there are personal matters with certain employes which are apt to have a bad effect on their chances for promotion or retaining their jobs.

The tale carrier hopes to make his position more secure and gain for him favorable consideration in future.

It is safe to say that the person who will bear tales about those working with him would also peddle information about the firm to those outside.

And the superintendent knows that such a one would not hesitate to say things about him to the men above him.

Such a person is not a safe employe for a responsible position, and responsible positions hold much inside information that it would not do to talk about outside the establishment.
